PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Haas & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. Cash.

L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."
This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."
We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. Cash.
L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."
This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

FLOWER POTS

We are trying to save you money through this advertisement. Our plan is to furnish you the best of ware at a very low price. It costs money to call on you personally. Let's get together on the mail order proposition and you save the difference. There are other reasons why you will want our pots. We are very fortunate in the quality of our clay, and you will be delighted with the ware. Our large output and advantages of cheap fuel, with our clay at our back door and the railroads at our front door, with little cost for selling, enables us to quote you very low prices. A sample order will convince you. Samples and prices on application. Whether you use car lots or smaller quantities, it is to your advantage to write us.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE freight car situation is a little better than it was a year ago, but the surplus of cars decreased almost 30,000 during the last half of September and a pinch is expected to come with the first really cold weather. Coal men advise getting the bunkers filled without further delay.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

PIPING FIVE OHIO HOUSES.

What is the best way to heat the houses shown in the enclosed diagram? A carnation temperature is desired, though the largest house, 24 x 50, will be used for lettuce, violets, etc., grown in ground beds. The center bed in the 15-foot house and in the 22-foot house will also be solid; aside from these, raised benches will be used. The houses are all four feet high at the sides. Two houses, as marked, have ventilators in one side; the other walls are boarded. The prevailing winds here are from the west. The lowest outdoor temperature ever experienced here was 20 degrees below zero. K. W. H.

The sketch shows two ranges of greenhouses. One of the ranges contains two houses, running north and south. Near the northeast corner of these is the other range, consisting of three houses, which run east and west. The boiler room and potting shed are in the angle formed by the two ranges and protect one end of all the five houses. To provide a suitable temperature for carnations in southern Ohio, where the mercury never drops lower than 20 degrees below zero, the following arrangement is suggested if hot water is to be used:

For the west house, which is 15 x 50, with glass ventilators in the west wall, use a 2½-inch flow on each plate and two coils, each containing three 2-inch

For the other north and south house, which is 24 x 50, with a wooden wall four feet high on the east side, use two 2 1/2-inch flows and eight 2-inch returns. one flow and four returns. In the north house, which has a wooden wall on the north side and is 22 x 50 feet, use two drop it down at the end and run a coil from the center on the wall either way to the corners of the house and then along the walls back to the other end, where a 2-inch pipe can be used to connect each coil with the main return.

2 1/2-inch flow pipes and two coils, each containing four 2-inch returns. Where only one flow pipe is used in a house,

For the main flow and return pipes use either one 4-inch pipe or two 3-inch pipes for each of the ranges. If possible, have the highest part of each main flow over the boiler and connect them at that point with the expansion tank. Run all of the flows with a slight fall, one inch in fifteen or twenty feet being sufficient.

THE FUEL MARKET.

The anthracite situation is continuing to show strength. Selling agencies reported the biggest September on record and October is promising to produce about the same amount of business. Fortunately, cars have been reasonably plentiful and shipment has been heavy enough to satisfy about all the demand.

In the matter of smokeless coal, the mine run price is somewhat variable. On single car lots orders are occasionally picked up at $1.60; about the best price on the five to eight car lot is $1.50, while it would be rather difficult to sell anything over ten cars for more than circular price of $1.40. The movement is steady and those who have contracted for coal are taking it.

Franklin county producers have put out a new circular price of $2.25 and are adhering to it. There has been no let-up in buying as a result. The Carterville operators are enjoying big business. Few of them have tried to get anything above $2 a ton.

The price of screenings has been moving up just a little. Every change for the better has been resisted by the big consumers. For screenings, anywhere from 45 to 55 cents for the lower grades and from 70 to 75 cents for the higher grades is being asked. With steam lump at anything like $1.30 to $1.40, the prevailing price, the screenings are too cheap.

HEAT FROM RESIDENCE BOILER.

Will you please inform me as to the arrangement of the piping and the size of pipe I should use in a small greenhouse I have just built? The house adjoins my residence and I wish to heat it from the hot water boiler in the basement. I have on hand a quantity of 1½-inch pipe which I wish to use, if possible. The house is 11 x 32. The sides are six feet high, with three feet of glass and the rest of the walls double boarded, with paper between. The height to the ridge is eight feet six inches. There is a door and some glass in the east end; the other end is built against the residence. I had thought of running the main flow about two feet under the ridge to the east end of the house and branching from that to manifolds under the benches on each side. Would this arrangement be satisfactory? The boiler will be about ten feet from the greenhouse and the top of it will be about on a level with the ground outside. I wish to maintain a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees in this southern Michigan climate. N. E. W.

To heat the house described to 60 degrees, a 2½-inch main should be run a couple of feet below the ridge and connected with twelve 1½-inch pipes under

"Superior to them all"
is the verdict of all who use the SUPERIOR
STANDARD.

MADE IN 9 SIZES

The SUPERIOR STANDARD is designed specially for greenhouse work after a close study of what was needed. It is easily cleaned, although it has more flues than any other boiler, but—more flues give more heat; more flues require less fuel; the water heats quicker and hotter, because the volume of water heated by each flue is smaller.

Firing on Clean Grates is a Pleasure

The TRAVIS ROCKER GRATE METHOD of handling a coal fire is undisputed

It is easy and requires but little coal during the first one or two hours. As the air spaces begin to bridge over with cinders, the effect is the same as when closing the damper door, and the longer you fire the more coal it requires to make the same amount of steam.

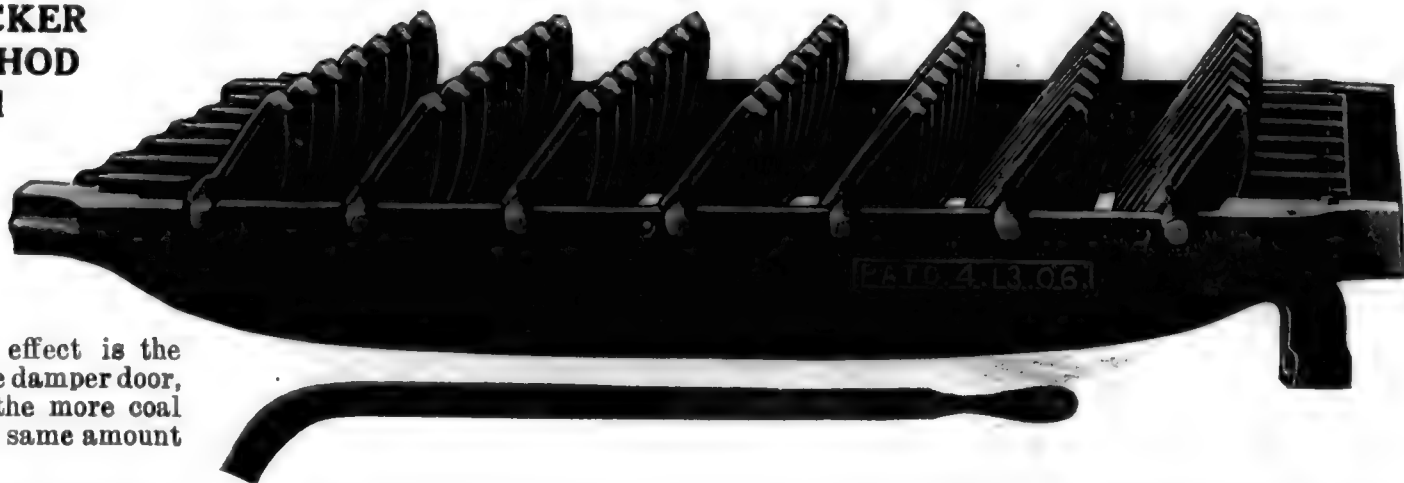

The TRAVIS ROCKER GRATES have the mash fingers, and the air space cannot bridge over. They will remain open and free from twelve to twenty-four hours. Figure the amount of coal that can be saved with perfectly clean grates. A saving of only twenty-five cents a day for five months would amount to $37.50. Figure again. Change from lump coal to slack. Note the difference in your expense for the winter months. We guarantee our grates to successfully use slack.

This is a small grate mounted on our specially made stand for cast boilers that do not have grate supports. Grates will free themselves readily and will not become clogged when opened wide.

Shown wide open, complete with hand lever. Its construction is unquestionably superior to any other style of grate. The only grate that opens all air spaces when operated. Isn't that just what you want?

We make them to fit the largest and smallest furnaces. They are installed in a few minutes' time without the use of tools. There is a difference in rocker grates, even though they look the same. OUR CATALOGUE will SHOW YOU the side benches or upon the walls. In case a generator is used, the flow pipe could be 2-inch and ten returns would answer. If it is preferred to use 1½-inch pipe for the flows, place one upon each of the wall plates and connect with the coils at the east end of the house, and use a generator.

A SMALL TEXAS GREENHOUSE.

I enclose a sketch of a small greenhouse, 25x30 feet. Will you please tell me the cheapest way to heat it? I have a Wilks hot water boiler, 24x42. The south end of the house is boarded up; the north end is protected by the boiler shed. The side walls and the roof are made with two rows of 16-inch glass that extend nearly to the ground; then there is a space of thirty-two inches covered with felt roofing over 1-inch boards; then two more rows of glass, and so on until the house is all covered. The house is five and one-half feet high to the eaves and eleven feet to the ridge.

There are four benches and I wish to use the space under them for plants. About half the house is for ferns; the other half is for mixed plants. Usually the outside temperature here does not drop lower than freezing point, even at night, but there are occasional blizzards that are decidedly cold and that last a few days at a time. There are four ventilators at the ridge of the greenhouse and four ventilators in each side wall, below the benches.

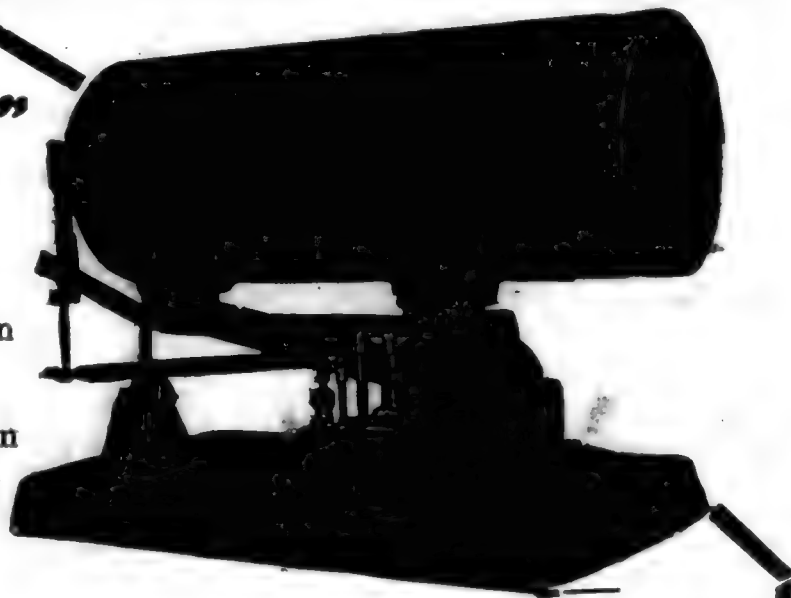

M. R. P. F.

From the description given, the house appears to be 25x30 feet, with one-half of the roof and sides covered with glass, the alternate 32-inch spaces being of boards covered with felt.

To heat this house to 60 degrees, run a 2-inch flow pipe under the ridge and two 2-inch returns from the farther end of the house back to the heater, passing under the west bench. The sketch shows two doors in the east wall of the house, making it impossible to run two other pipes along the east wall. The best that can be done is to run one return under each of the benches.

BUILT FOR BEGINNERS

Wilks Boilers are ideal for the man who owns a small greenhouse, who does his own firing and needs a boiler that can be relied on at all times.

FERTILIZER DEPARTMENT

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

There was last week the most activity in the local market that there has been this season and the indications are that the improvement will be noticeable each week until the Lenten period. Three or four large society weddings, with preceding receptions, teas, showers and other functions, occasioned a lively demand for cut flowers and decorations. Funeral work has also continued a prominent factor. Chrysanthemums are coming in more plentifully and are larger and better daily.

Various Notes.

Invitations have been sent out for the marriage of Willis S. Pino, the seedsman of Washington street, during the coming week.

Burke & Burns have made extensive alterations and improvements in their rose houses. All the interior woodwork has been replaced by cement. Their cut is fine and large. John Burke was in Worcester and Springfield last week, combining business and pleasure.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, won first prize for the best display of dahlias, the only prize offered, at the big fair at Danbury, Conn., last week.

N. Darrell Harvey is building an addition to his greenhouse at 114 Waterman street.

James Shaw has installed an extensive electric equipment at his range at Slatersville, including telephonic connections.

Henry C. Neubrandt and his wife left last week for a stay with relatives in New York and Philadelphia. They attended the world's series.

L. J. Reuter, of Westerly, recently received certificates of merit from the horticultural shows at Boston and New York for the Red Prince rose, a product of English soil, now being raised in Westerly.

William H. Tarbox, of West Greenwich, familiarly known locally as the dahlia king, has been at Danbury, Conn., the last week, attending the annual fair. He had a large exhibit of dahlias and made an immense floral horse entirely of white asters.

FUNGINE

An Infallible Remedy for mildew on roses, chrysanthemum and carnation rust, bench rot and various other blights which affect flowers, fruits and vegetables.

It is applied by spraying the foliage. Fungine, being readily soluble in water, contains no sediment, and, unlike Bordeaux and lime and sulphur, will not stain, but cleanses the foliage.

Fungine is an excellent fungicide for greenhouse plants.

The Market.

Trade has been holding up well. Funeral work has been fairly plentiful, some few weddings call for a little decorating, and counter trade has been improving. The weather has been almost too fine for the flower business. This is the middle of October and we have not had a killing frost, which is rather unusual. Stock is rather scarce. Mums are coming in, but not in large quantities, and they are being cleaned up daily. Carnations are improving in quality and length of stems, but the supply is limited. Dahlias are still to be had and find ready sale. American Beauties are of good quality. The short-stemmed ones are not so plentiful as heretofore. Killarney and White Killarney, Ward and Sunburst are the best sellers in roses. Some few orchids are coming in, but do not find a heavy demand. In green goods, smilax, ferns and leucothoe sprays are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the State Florists' Association was held at the wholesale rooms of the Smith & Young Co., on East Ohio street, October 7, with a fair attendance. The committee composed of E. G. Hill, Irwin Bertermann and Homer Wiegand, appointed to investigate the flower show situation for next year, was carried over and will report at the next meeting. The invitation of the Richmond florists to hold the November meeting in their city was accepted, and the meeting should be well attended, as Richmond is always an interesting place, especially during the mum season.

Wm. Roepke is excavating the cellar for his boilers and expects to erect a couple of greenhouses on East Washington street in the near future.

Elmer Schrader, with Wiegands' Sons Co., has been on the sick list this week.

S. T. Hitz & Son have been sending in some first-class early mums.

E. A. Nelson reports business lively at his place, there being a great deal of funeral work. H. L. W.

A Few Cents' Worth of Gas or Gasoline

each day will give you plenty of water at high pressure every day in the year, and you won't need to use an overhead or storage tank either. After years spent in studying the florists' and gardeners' water supply question, we developed a line of pumps and engines that are adaptable to almost any conditions. We have combined the two in one unit and make them in sizes that give a capacity of from 400 to 4000 gallons per hour.

STANDARD PUMPING ENGINES

may be used to pump directly into the pipe line and will give a steady, even stream suitable for spraying, irrigating or applying liquid fertilizers. They can also be used with any other kind of elevated tank or air pressure systems when preferred. Tell us the conditions to be met in your case and we'll tell you the best system to overcome your difficulties. Write fully about all possible sources of supply and the work to be done. We will freely give our expert advice to exactly fit your case, and in addition will send you our catalogue telling lots more about Standard Pumping Engines. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The flower department of L. S. Donaldson's big store, in charge of William D. Desmond, is far different from the stand that bears the name of flower department in most stores of the kind. Eighteen large greenhouses supply the stock and, to deliver it, a new limousine has been added to the three special delivery cars. The trade has been developed to such an extent at this store that the dollar box sale has been abandoned, as made-up baskets, disposing of much the same kind of stock, bring better prices. A popular feature now is the Dutch and colonial bouquets, sold under the brand, "L. S. D. Cupids." To handle this line and corsage work, five clerks are kept constantly busy.

The three houses given over to carnations are in fine shape now, White Wonder and Winsor being the standbys. The success with the latter is almost a surprise, as so many growers have discarded this variety. Among the novelties, Philadelphia is under trial. The two houses of roses are exceptionally good. Aaron Ward, in particular, has been a strong favorite in this part of the country. The mums are now the center of attention and Dolly Dimple is a variety of importance. Gracia has proved to be one of the best of the small varieties for the retail trade, taking the place of the Shasta daisy, in clusters, not disbudded. The begonia, Gloire de Chatelaine, is used extensively for the fancy basket trade, and poinsettias planted with asparagus ferns are to be one of the Christmas specialties. The retail trade calls so strongly for ferns that two houses are given over to them.

DECREE

FOR THE DISTRICT OF INDIANA.

JOHN A. EVANS,
Complainant, } IN EQUITY
v. } No. 11,166.
JAMES E. JONES,
Defendant. }

DECREE.

This cause having come on to be heard, upon the pleadings and proofs filed on behalf of both parties, and after hearing counsel for complainant and counsel for defendant, it is hereby ordered, adjudged and decreed as follows:

(1) That Letters Patent of the United States issued to John A. Evans, of Richmond, Indiana, as the assignee of Newton R. Evans, on the 20th day of March, 1906, and numbered 815,914, for improvements in Window Lifters, are good and valid in law, particularly as to claims 1, 4, 5 and 6 thereof, and that the said John A. Evans, the complainant herein, is the owner of said Letters Patent.

(2) That the defendant, James E. Jones, has infringed upon the said Letters Patent, and particularly claims 1, 4, 5 and 6 thereof.

(3) That the complainant do recover of the defendant the profits, gains and advantages which the said defendant has derived, received or made since March 20, 1906, by reason of said infringement, and that the complainant do recover of the said defendant any and all damages which the complainant has sustained since said date, or shall sustain by reason of said infringement by the said defendant.

(4) And it is hereby referred to the Master of this Court, who is hereby appointed to take and state the account of said gains, profits and advantages, and assess such damages and to report thereon with all convenient speed; and the defendant, his agents, officers, attorneys, clerks, servants, workmen and all in privity with him are hereby directed and required to attend before said Master from time to time, as required, and to produce before him such books, papers, vouchers and documents and to submit to such oral examination as the Master may require.

(5) That a perpetual injunction issue out of and under the seal of this Court, directed to the said defendant, his agents, servants, workmen, attorneys, clerks and any and all persons acting by, through or under the authority of, or in privity with, the defendant, enjoining and restraining them, and each of them, from directly or indirectly making or causing to be made, using or causing to be used, or vending to others to be used, in any manner, any devices containing, embodying or employing the invention covered by said Letters Patent, and particularly claimed in claims 1, 4, 5 and 6 thereof, or from infringing upon or violating the said Letters Patent in any way whatsoever.

(6) That the complainant do recover of the defendant his costs and disbursements of this suit, to be taxed, and that the question of increase of damages and all other questions be reserved until the coming in of the Master's report.

Des Moines, Ia.—A hail storm October 9 broke about 2,000 feet of glass in the greenhouses of the Iowa Seed Co.

FOR PLANT TUBS. FOR WATER TANKS.

For these every-day appliances (you greenhouse men all use them)—get none but THE BEST. CYPRESS is the certified wood for these uses, the same as for greenhouse construction. The experience of others costs you nothing—why not profit by it?

Read these testimonials:

The W. E. Caldwell Co., Inc., Tub and Tank Builders, Louisville, Ky., after using CYPRESS for more than 25 years, say: "Our preference for this wood for tank purposes is based on something more than fancy or sentiment. We have had personal experience with the other woods used for tanks—that is, white pine, poplar, yellow pine, cedar, Oregon fir, etc. We have built tanks of all these woods and our own experience, as well as that of our customers, conclusively establishes the fact that CYPRESS is far superior to any and all of them."

Dempster Mfg. Co., Water and Steam Supplies, Des Moines, Iowa, write: "I have been manufacturing tanks for the past 25 years and as yet have found no lumber to take the place of CYPRESS for making the better grade of tanks." (Signed) "C. C. NEWPORT, Supt."

The Hauser, Bremer & Fath Co., Cooperage, Cask, Tub and Tank Works, Cincinnati, O., say: "As to durability, we beg to state, we have CYPRESS tanks still in use which were made 30 years ago."

But what's the use to multiply cases? You greenhouse men know that it's CYPRESS from ridge-pole to foundation for greenhouse construction and greenhouse accessories.

NOW FOR A BOOKLET.

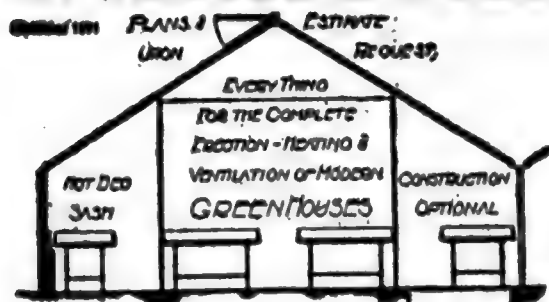

Which booklet do you want from the CYPRESS Pocket Library? All are FREE. Vol. 3 is all about greenhouses; Vol. 22 is a Tank book; Vol. 20 is the new Farm book; Vol. 4 is the new Barn book. Write for one or a dozen. Vol. 36 is the book that tells how to make easy many hard jobs of Carpentry. Vol. 37 is the big new Silo book.

A BOOK of KNOWLEDGE

This New Book is an Encyclopedia of Greenhouse Work

Just Fits the Book-Shelf

384 Pages in Full Cloth

IT CONTAINS A GOLD MINE of valuable information for every greenhouse owner. There are about 100 pages of useful tables telling How to Figure the Pipe for Heating Your Greenhouse, How to Heat Your Residence, How to Select a Boiler, How to Build Greenhouses, How to Set Up Boilers, How to Buy Coal, Temperature Variation in the United States, How to Select a Pump, How to Operate Pumps, How to Install a Pump, How to Erect Ventilating Apparatus, How to Blow Off a Steam Boiler, How to Install Generators; an article on Steam and Hot Water Heating, Properties of Steam, Heat in Water, Weight of Coal, How to Build Chimneys, Air for Combustion, Non-conductors of Heat, Radiation in Pipe and many other useful things too numerous to set down here.

YOU NEED THIS BOOK IN YOUR BUSINESS

The pages are full of items in which you are interested. The Index is a little book of itself, so we can't tell you here about the thousands of things in the book. It covers everything for greenhouse—from wheelbarrows and nails to the complete outfit. A large number of completed plants are illustrated, and then follow page after page of details of construction material—the Semi-iron House, Truss House, Flat Rafter House and all the many kinds of Woodwork, Gutters, Steel Parts, Fittings, etc. Then the Ventilating Machinery, Hotbed Sash, Paint, Putty, Metal Kote, Glazing Points, Glazing Machines, Brushes, Glass Cutters, Pneumatic and Storage Tanks, Engines, Pumps for Water System and Vacuum Pumps, Skinner Systems, the Celebrated Moninger Boilers, Radiators, Pipe, Fittings, Valves, Hose Goods, Sprinklers, Tools for Pipe, Carpenters' Tools, Thermometers, Gauges, Expansion Tanks, Generators, Circulators, Wheelbarrows and as many more different things as we have mentioned.

It Tells All About Everything Used in Greenhouse Work

You can put it in your library and use it as a reference book. It is the best book ever published on greenhouse work, and you can't afford to be without it. Mail a postal card at once and book will come right along.

WHY NOT have the best? The best is always the cheapest in the end. Take carnations, for instance; you have to pay $2.00 to $3.00 per hundred for any kind of ordinary stock. We quote the very best at $3.00 to $4.00. The best will certainly be the cheapest for you. In fact, you cannot afford to handle inferior flowers. The same thing applies to everything else. Our Beauties have large perfect buds. We quote them at $3.00 per dozen for long stems, and from that down, according to the length desired. You may be paying a higher price for small buds. Why not have the large ones?

Our roses are the kind that keep. We ask the same prices for them that you are asked to pay for small buds that have no keeping qualities. We offer everything else in flowers and greens along the same lines. The best is not any too good for your customers. That is the way we feel about our customers.

THE RETAIL FLORIST AND THE POMPON MUMS

Do you find the easiest selling to be along the lines of the easiest buying? Or hadn't you thought about it?

Every observant person has noted that certain retail florists have been able to double, perhaps triple or quadruple, their volume of business within a comparatively short time, say two or three or four years, while other retailers in the same cities, perhaps longer established, have been making slow if any progress.

But how many florists have stopped to analyze the methods by which sales have been built up so rapidly?

Think it over and it will be apparent that the selling has been only a part of the method, that its foundation lies in the buying.

Two Methods of Retailing.

The majority of florists lay in a general stock and wait for trade. Not so the retailer who is at present making the biggest stir in his community. This man buys heavily of some one item, the flower that at the moment is most plentiful and cheapest if taken in large quantities. Then, he advertises. Today he is selling Beauties, tomorrow roses, the next day cattleyas, and so on ad infinitum. He puts his whole selling energy into pushing the day's specialty.

There is nothing secret or exclusive about such methods—every observant person can see the operation of the system, and anyone who has the ability to handle a good size undertaking can go and do likewise.

The only advantage this new class of retailers had in the beginning was an endowment of extraordinary initiative, the ability to see a chance, the courage to grasp it and the determination to carry it through. They seldom are able to make an offer that the smallest competitor cannot duplicate within a few days. About all it amounts to is that the first man has been able to see the turn in the market just a little ahead of his competitors, which results in his relaxing his efforts to push the line that is shortening up and transferring his energies to the one that is becoming easier. A few days later pretty much everybody has done more or less the same thing, according to the scope of his business. There is a well marked tendency among retailers to buy the flower that is most plentiful, and push it, somewhat to the neglect of all the other flowers.

Get Ready for the Pompons.

The purpose here is not to argue whether or not this trend toward featuring the abundant article is advantageous to the trade at large, but to call attention that pompon and single mums soon will be more abundant and probably cheaper than they ever have been before.

Two years ago the little mums came into their own. Before that they had been considerably seen, to be sure, but it was in the autumn of 1911 that the supply in the markets became great enough to assume a place of large importance. The novelty had not worn off, the stock was fine and excellent returns were obtained by the growers. The returns were so good, in fact, that the production was greatly increased the following year, with the result that the wholesalers were hard put to it to make returns that would compare in any way favorably with the records of the previous seasons.

This year the growers have gone into pompons still more heavily. One specialist in young stock is reported to have sold 250,000 plants in 2½-inch pots last June and he had the field by no means to himself; there were scores of growers offering them in the classified columns of The Review. The results will begin to be apparent in the wholesale markets within a fortnight.

The retailers surely will have a chance to make good use of pompons this season.

Ideal for Small Baskets.

The pompons, and this includes the singles, never would have become as popular as they are if it were not that they are about as adaptable as any flower the retailers ever have had to work with. They can be used for almost any purpose for which flowers ordinarily are employed. Some of the double white varieties compete with the carnation as filling for funeral designs, you see other sorts in corsages, while long, graceful sprays of them are ideal for decorative purposes. But it is for table centerpieces and for basket work that they are so well adapted that they refuse to take second place to any flower available in their season. The supply dealers have not failed to appreciate this and there is this season an infinite variety of small baskets designed for use with the small mums. Perhaps, however, none of the newer shapes excels the old, standard high handled basket in small sizes for this purpose.

The retailer who plans to make the pompon and single mums an important item of his stock during the next six weeks should see to it that he not only has a good supply of baskets, but an adequate stock of ribbons of the right character, widths and colors. The baskets of pompons and singles are incomplete without the use of ribbon. You cannot use wide, heavy satin taffeta ribbon for these baskets; the right article is the satin edged gauze or a light ribbon that will be in harmony with the light, graceful character of flowers and receptacle. A wide range of colors is useful. Of course the width of the ribbon will depend more or less on the size of the basket.

The filling of the baskets is a simple matter for any florist and the selling will be equally simple if the window and tables in the store make an attractive showing of them.

IT'S GOOD AD COPY.

Why do you so seldom meet a florist with a grouch? Maybe you never noticed that florists are uncommonly uniform in their good nature and happy disposition, in spite of the long hours and hard work that fall to their lot. This was not the line of reasoning by which it was discovered that flowers have a tremendous influence on people's dispositions, but this, nevertheless, is the assertion of scientists, physicians and psychologists—and why should we doubt it?

Florists, of course, may have their own opinion of the elevating influence of flowers and especially of certain varieties, which may or may not agree with that of these other eminent men. The fact remains, however, that this line of argument sounds well, has a strong appeal to a great many people and is beginning to be used generally by florists to boost their sales. The reasoning is simple: You send flowers to a sick friend to cheer him up; you take a big bunch of American Beauties to your girl when you are in wrong and want to get right; you bring home a box of flowers to your wife and she doesn't mind at all if you go to the lodge or club and stay out late; so why not make everybody feel fine, at home and at the office, by having flowers around all the time? Joking or serious, the argument is just as strong, and it will win customers. The reasoning is sound and the conclusion logical; the idea is one that reaches every person and has an appeal for each.

The advertisement of Penn the Florist, which is reproduced herewith, presents the thought in sober earnestness, with a sincerity and logic that grip the reader. It is one of many that are got up along this line and makes forceful business use of a newspaper editorial. Florists can easily work up similar ideas to use in their local papers. It is the kind of advertising that appeals to everybody and makes new flower buyers.

ALL RIGHT, TELL 'EM IT'S GROSS.

The following has been received from Irwin Bertermann, of Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, commenting on a note in The Review in which it was urged that retailers in sending orders for delivery in other cities make clear whether the price named was net or gross. The Review suggested specifying in all cases that the price is net:

"The undersigned has tried to reconcile himself to the article in The Review of October 16 with the title 'Tell 'Em It's Net,' but so far has been unable to do so from any viewpoint. A large number of the better class of florists throughout the country have at various times strongly advocated the naming of the gross amount in placing an order. It will be removing all doubt as to the amount received by the original recipient of the order.

"Whenever telegrams are received stating the net amount there is always a disposition to believe that all is not well with the order. The Florists' Telegraph Delivery has always placed itself upon record requiring its members to name the full amount in ordering flowers, and as there are some 150 of the most prominent florists in the country recorded in this organization, would it not be better to follow their lead and advocate the direct opposite of what is set forth in the article?"

All right, we like to get in line with the F. T. D. whenever we can. Let's make it gross, always. The point is that the one who receives the order must know which is which. Make it gross.

WHY FORTUNE SMILED.

"A Florist Upon Whom Fortune Smiled" is the caption under which the North American, of Philadelphia, in advertising for advertising, gives the story of how a Pittsburgh florist built up his business by advertising. The florist who thus got on the right side of that fickle goddess is A. W. Smith, and the A. W. Smith Co., of Pittsburgh, has a big business that is still growing. The way he caused the dimples to show in the goddess's cheeks is the way that florists are coming slowly but surely to realize as the one way to get big returns. Newspaper advertising is profitable; the florists' field is a big one and a fertile one. That is why the daily papers want the florists' advertisements and that is why the florists more and more are giving them to the papers. This is the North American's story of Mr. Smith's winning way:

"In the city of Pittsburgh there is a florist who grew tired of standing around waiting for business to come to him.

"While his roses wilted and lost their bloom, he pondered over the problem. Many plans were presented to him. He devised many schemes of his own. But when he sifted them to the bottom he found them defective.

"No matter which way his mind turned, it encountered advertising; but knowing nothing about advertising, he considered it impossible on account of his preconceived idea regarding the expense.

"He finally sought the advice of a small merchant who used the newspapers in a modest way constantly.

"How can I advertise flowers successfully?" he asked.

"The small merchant thought a moment, and then suggested:

"Why don't you sell—every Saturday—a box of flowers for a dollar? Offer something different each week. Give more flowers for a dollar than anyone in Pittsburgh ever heard of, and see that they are fresh and attractive."

"I'll do it," declared the florist, as he hurried away to prepare for his first sale.

"That was three years ago. Today that once discouraged florist sells more flowers than all the other florists in Pittsburgh put together. Thousands of those dollar boxes find their way into the homes of the Iron City each week. Hundreds are shipped to customers in the surrounding territory.

"Today that florist is big, but he is growing bigger. He is rich, but he is growing richer.

"He confines himself to small space, and is a firm believer in newspaper advertising.

"He not only sells flowers for a dollar a box, but he is recognized as one of the leading florists of Pennsylvania. He has captured the better proportion of the so-called high-class trade in every branch of his business.

"He advertises flowers at a bargain price, but—"He realized that nature does not impose upon God's creatures in the manufacture of flowers. The violet is as fragrant and beautiful in the doorway of the peasant as it is in the garden of the king.

"By advertising he created a wonderful reputation for selling the best

What Flowers Do for Weary Brains

THE eyes and the brain of the busy man, no matter what kind of work he follows, become weary and need rest, just the same as any other part of the human body.

Nothing has been found in the wide world that will give weary eyes and a tired brain more immediate rest than a few moments gazing on a pretty bed of bright colored flowers. The contrast is so great from that which has occupied the organs until they were well nigh exhausted, and the effect is simply marvellous.

Flowers in the home divert the mind and rest the weary eyes of the housewife and mother.

A bouquet in the sick room aids in keeping the mind off the disease, and often starts the brain on a new channel of thought that puts the patient on the road to recovery.

Flowers in the office, or on the desk of the weary clerk or stenographer, will produce such a telling effect that by actual comparison more work is accomplished by those whose eyes and brains are rested by the presence of those gifts from nature.

Artists visit the parks and gardens to study the flowers, and their orbs are wonderfully toned up by the refreshing glimpses of the colors in nature, and no artist has ever been successful who does not study colors in the beautiful flowers.

It will pay any student, or anyone deeply engrossed in thought along any particular line which is apt to make the brain weary, to have a pot of bright flowers on the desk.

at the lowest prices. Now he is master of his own greenhouses and acres and acres of flower beds, and sells direct to the people.

"He accomplished all this by advertising—starting in a small way.

"Any florist in Philadelphia can do the same thing. In fact, this has already been demonstrated here. But the field is capable of much more intensive cultivation.

"You, too, can prove this to your entire satisfaction—increase your popularity—swell your profits. You can start in a modest way and as your business increases you can increase your advertising. You can send your message into the homes of the class and the best of the mass—people interested in the home, flowers and the finer things of life."

A DISTINCTIVE DECORATION.

The notable feature in the table decoration shown in the accompanying illustration is the center figure of modeled clay. The decoration was for a dinner at the Grosse Pointe Hunt Club, given by forty-two members of the club in honor of the originator, who is soon to be married, and, to add that touch which gives a table decoration the merit of distinction, the center figure of a hunter in the act of taking a barrier was conceived. The idea was executed by the L. Bomb Floral Co., of Detroit, Mich., known far and wide through the fame of its proprietor, who has been called "F. T. D." Pochelon because of his enthusiastic work as secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

The floral part of the decoration was a splendid piece of work in itself, combining simplicity with effectiveness. In the estimation of Mr. Pochelon, however, it is nothing out of the ordinary; in his eyes, as in the table decoration, the striking thing was the clay figure. Every now and then this firm uses in its decorations a clay model to add a certain suggestive touch that gives the finished work a greater effectiveness. One like this, however, could not be bought at any store; in

Mr. Pochelon's words, "the only way to get it was to make it." And that was what was done. At 8 o'clock in the morning the work was started; a piece of scantling, a few other short pieces of wood and plenty of clay were the materials. By 4 o'clock in the afternoon the completed figure was on the table. While the clay was still soft, some gold bronze was blown over the figure, giving it a beautiful tone, well matching the color scheme of red and white used throughout the decoration. How much a center figure of this kind adds to the beauty and distinction of a table decoration is easily seen in the reproduction of this example.

FORCING PANSIES.

I should like to get some information on forcing pansies. We have two houses that we want to plant with pansies for a winter crop. What is the proper distance apart to plant them? How is it best to pack the flowers for shipment? We are 125 miles from market, and can reach it in six hours.

R. B.

Set the plants six inches apart each way. Let the soil be well enriched. Give them a night temperature of 40 to 42 degrees in winter, with a rise of 10 degrees during the day. Tie in bunches of twenty five or fifty each for shipment. They will travel well a much longer distance than you have to send your flowers.

C. W.

CANTERBURY BELLS.

I have a nice lot of Canterbury bells, grown from seed planted last May. They are now in 4-inch pots and as fine as one could wish. I should like to get some cultural directions for them from now on. I want them for Easter. Do they need a shift now, or would that be advisable? Any help you can give me will be appreciated.

C. G.

Shift the Canterbury bells now into 6-inch pots, using a fairly rich compost. Keep them outdoors in an open, sunny spot until cold weather arrives, of sufficient severity to endanger the pots. Then place in a coldframe or pit. The earliest plants can be started any time after Christmas, in a temperature of 45 degrees. Not over 50 degrees at night should be given at any stage of their growth. The plants must be securely staked before the flowering stems become too far advanced. Successional batches can be brought along as required. Another season plant your stock outdoors and lift late in the fall. You will get much finer plants in this way than by growing on in pots.

TEMPERATURE FOR KILLARNEY.

In my answer to H. G. A. in the issue of The Review for October 16, my meaning might be misunderstood. The subscriber asked if 80 degrees at noon is too high for Killarney. I said "80 degrees is too high a temperature for Killarney at any time if it can be kept lower by giving more ventilation." In other words, if on a hot day the ventilators are full open and the temperature runs up to 90 degrees or more, it can not be prevented and does not materially injure the plants.

W. J. K.

THE WHITE SUNBURST.

Is there the opportunity for a white Sunburst that was found awaiting the yellow parent? Sunburst has proved an easy doer thus far, for a quality rose, with most of the growers who have tried it. It really has not had a thorough commercial test, for last season all the wood available in winter months was taken for propagating purposes. Sunburst is recognized as the yellow rose of quality, and if it proves to do as well in midwinter as it does prior to the propagating season, its commercial future is assured. Now comes forward Ira B. Sturges, proprietor of the Baker Floral & Seed Co., Baker, Ore., with a white sport of Sunburst. As a forcing rose it will come into competition with White Killarney, which is a quite different proposition from competing with Perle, or even with Mrs. Ward or Melody.

TO PREVENT MILDEW.

Will you kindly tell me how I can prevent mildew from coming on my roses? We watch the temperature carefully; our watering is right, and, except that our houses are low, we can find no cause for the appearance of the trouble. Can you tell me of any other good remedy, besides the burning of sulphur, and how can I prevent more of the mildew from coming?

E. M. L.

Sulphur has so far been found to be the best remedy for mildew, and is used either by dusting it over the foliage in the form of a powder or by painting it on the heating pipes. Grape Dust is also used a great deal in the first-mentioned way, with good results. But it is not so much a remedy as a preventive that you are probably looking for, and the preventive is to keep a little heat in the houses from now on every night and on chilly days, leaving enough ventilation on the houses to keep the temperature down to the right figure. It is especially important, also, to keep the plants in good growing condition, as in most cases the plants have received a check from some other cause before mildew has attacked them. The presence of mildew is favored either by too close an atmosphere or by weakness of the plants from being starved.

W. J. K.

SEEM TO NEED FEEDING.

I have a bench that contains about 100 own-root Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond roses, which do not seem to be doing well. They were planted in the last week of July, from 3-inch pots, after arriving in rather poor condition. The Killarneys were in bad shape, being affected with black spot and red spider. The Richmonds were clean, but small and weak-looking. They all dropped most of their leaves, but the wood looked well and had plenty of good eyes, just starting. They broke well and made a fair start, but the foliage looked dry and harsh as time went on and they seemed to be starved. I watered them once with Bon Arbor, as I was doubtful whether the soil was rich enough. They freshened up after that and looked better, but did not maintain the improvement.

About three weeks ago they had a slight touch of mildew and I evaporated some sulphur on a small oil stove. The air was quite strong with the sulphur fumes and a few days afterward the plants began to drop their leaves. Could I have used too much sulphur? It did not catch fire. There has been no mildew since then. The Killarneys are doing better now, but the Richmonds are not making much headway. The soil is a heavy clay, loam and is none too rich. They were kept on the dry side; that is, the bench was not soaked, only watered around the plants, until I was advised a week or two ago to soak roses that were not doing well. I then gave the bench what I thought was a thorough soaking, but not enough to run through. Since then no water has been applied except in spraying, but the bench has not dried out yet, though the drainage is good. We are having dark, muggy weather, with the outside temperature seldom under 60 degrees. I turn on a little heat every night, with the top ventilators open about an inch.

Should I mulch the plants? I have some old, thoroughly decayed manure, a mixture of horse and cow manure. If the plants were outside or were larger and stronger, they would get the mulch at once, but I am not sure about young stock and I know the mulching can be overdone.

W. C.

If the soil in which the roses were planted does not contain one-third barnyard manure and a good sprinkling of bone meal, about one pound to five square feet of bench, it is probably too poor to permit the plants to make a good growth. Moreover, even if the soil does contain sufficient food to supply the plants, if it is not dissolved with water the roses can not absorb it and will not make a good growth. The fact that the plants, as stated, were refreshed for a time by the application of a stimulant, seems to show that they were in need of it and probably want still more nourishment.

A light mulching with the decayed manure, as suggested in the inquiry, will do them good—about a good double handful to each row on both sides of the bench. Dissolve this thoroughly by working it through the hand while the water is running over it, until it is all fine. Do not let it lie on the bench in lumps, as in that case it would only dry up and the plants would get no benefit from it. If the plants freshen up again after receiving this dose, give them another in two or three weeks. "Little and often" is the rule to follow until you have good, strong plants, and even then the plants will do better if the benches are not overloaded with manure, but kept open to allow the air to get to the roots.

That the roses dropped their leaves after the sulphur was evaporated in the house, is no doubt due to an overdose. The best way to fumigate with sulphur is to keep it painted on the heating pipes. The fumes of an oil stove are injurious to the plants and may also have had something to do with the dropping of their leaves.

W. J. K.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

BLEACHED OR FADED FOLIAGE.

I am puzzled by the fact that the leaves of my Silver Wedding mums turned from a fine, dark, rich green to a grayish white soon after the buds were taken. The plants, grown in the open from top cuttings, in this mild California climate, are nearly five feet tall, and are well nourished and well cared for. The discoloration was first observed three years ago, when the plants were in sandy soil. This year they are in heavy soil, and until three weeks ago they looked splendid. Though we had some exceedingly hot weather, the blooms never seemed to be affected. Both in size and quality, the plants were among the best I have ever seen. Chrysanthemums of other varieties, planted in the same beds, do not show the discolored foliage.

The trouble starts along the veins of the leaves and does not seem to be noticeable on the under side of the foliage, but there is a bleaching of the color cells on the upper side. I inclose a leaf, but presume it will be useless, as it will probably wilt.

B. P. G.

It is difficult for a person living in the east to suggest remedies for conditions prevailing on the other side of the continent, some 3,500 miles away, and B. P. G.'s inquiry opens up some interesting possibilities. While he grows flowers outdoors, we in Jersey grow them indoors, and yet the same bad tendency is shown in some varieties—the tendency of the foliage to change and become a dirty, grayish white instead of a rich, dark green, such as we are accustomed to associate with the chrysanthemum when it is doing well. I have always believed it is caused by the sun, but it is a problem that I have so far been unable to solve positively.

The variety Lenox, sent out by Elmer D. Smith, is a splendid thing in every respect except this one particular; the foliage apparently bleaches in the sunlight. An Australian variety, Mrs. Geo. Heaume, which we sent out about six years ago, has a similar defect—why, I am unable to say, after studying the question for some time.

Everyone is familiar with the tendency shown by the blooms of certain crimson varieties to burn quickly under the sun's rays. In fact, the flowers of all varieties burn somewhat when the sun is extremely hot, though the original color of the mum, yellow, burns less than any other. But why the foliage burns I cannot conceive. The leaves inclosed with the inquiry indicate well nourished plants and it is not lack of nourishment that has caused the plants to act as they have. I am sorry to say that about all I can do for B. P. G. is to suggest that the question be passed up to the experi-

RETARDING CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

How can I retard chrysanthemums so as to have blooms for Christmas, and what varieties are best suited for this purpose? Would rooted cuttings, put in the bench now, serve the purpose?

Y. F. C.

The only way to secure a late chrysanthemum crop is to plant varieties which are naturally late, such as Bonaffon, J. Nonin, Maud Dean, Mrs. Chadwick, Gold Mine and others. Keep these as cool as possible and at least a good proportion of them will last till Christmas, unless the weather chances to be abnormally mild. It is of no use to put cuttings in any later than the early part of June, as the plants would be poor and puny. Rooted cuttings put in the bench as late as the end of September would give poor returns.

C. W.

A LONG ISLAND MUM GROWER.

When Arthur Cockcroft started in business at Northport, L. I., about two years ago, the main output of his plant was of carnations. This line is still the chief part of the business, but chrysanthemums are at the same time assuming greater importance. The new section added to accommodate the increasing trade in mums is shown in the illustration. The standard of quality is high, for only the cream of the standard and novel varieties are grown.

To meet the heavy demand for cuttings and young stock of carnations, the number of plants has been increased from 28,000 to 42,000. These include only the most profitable varieties, which have been selected after a trial of eighteen varieties for two years. The varieties that have survived this trial are Mrs. Ward, Northport, White Wonder, Perfection, Enchantress, Pink Delight, Beacon, Benora and May Day.

In order to turn out the highest grade of cuttings and young stock for the trade, which is Mr. Cockcroft's specialty, he installed this year an equipment which J. George Jurgens, superintendent of the plant, believes will make an ideal propagating house. A heating system both of steam and hot water keeps the temperature under perfect control at all times. All the shading is done by overhead curtains, which makes it possible to gradually harden the cuttings for shipment. The minor details are in keeping with these improvements and show that no pains are spared to keep the standard of Mr. Cockcroft's specialties as high as possible.

THE WHITE SUNBURST.

Is there the opportunity for a white Sunburst that was found awaiting the yellow parent? Sunburst has proved an easy doer thus far, for a quality rose, with most of the growers who have tried it. It really has not had a thorough commercial test, for last season all the wood available in winter months was taken for propagating purposes. Sunburst is recognized as the yellow rose of quality, and if it proves to do as well in midwinter as it does prior to the propagating season, its commercial future is assured. Now comes forward Ira B. Sturges, proprietor of the Baker Floral & Seed Co., Baker, Ore., with a white sport of Sunburst. As a forcing rose it will come into competition with White Killarney, which is a quite different proposition from competing with Perle, or even with Mrs. Ward or Melody.

TO PREVENT MILDEW.

Will you kindly tell me how I can prevent mildew from coming on my roses? We watch the temperature carefully; our watering is right, and, except that our houses are low, we can find no cause for the appearance of the trouble. Can you tell me of any other good remedy, besides the burning of sulphur, and how can I prevent more of the mildew from coming?

E. M. L.

Sulphur has so far been found to be the best remedy for mildew, and is used either by dusting it over the foliage in the form of a powder or by painting it on the heating pipes. Grape Dust is also used a great deal in the first-mentioned way, with good results. But it is not so much a remedy as a preventive that you are probably looking for, and the preventive is to keep a little heat in the houses from now on every night and on chilly days, leaving enough ventilation on the houses to keep the temperature down to the right figure. It is especially important, also, to keep the plants in good growing condition, as in most cases the plants have received a check from some other cause before mildew has attacked them. The presence of mildew is favored either by too close an atmosphere or by weakness of the plants from being starved.

SEEM TO NEED FEEDING.

I have a bench that contains about 100 own-root Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond roses, which do not seem to be doing well. They were planted in the last week of July, from 3-inch pots, after arriving in rather poor condition. The Killarneys were in bad shape, being affected with black spot and red spider. The Richmonds were clean, but small and weak-looking. They all dropped most of their leaves, but the wood looked well and had plenty of good eyes, just starting. They broke well and made a fair start, but the foliage looked dry and harsh as time went on and they seemed to be starved. I watered them once with Bon Arbor, as I was doubtful whether the soil was rich enough. They freshened up after that and looked better, but did not maintain the improvement.

A White Sunburst.

About three weeks ago they had a slight touch of mildew and I evaporated some sulphur on a small oil stove. The air was quite strong with the sulphur fumes and a few days afterward the plants began to drop their leaves. Could I have used too much sulphur? It did not catch fire. There has been no mildew since then. The Killarneys are doing better now, but the Richmonds are not making much headway. The soil is a heavy clay loam and is none too rich. They were kept on the dry side; that is, the bench was not soaked, only watered around the plants, until I was advised a week or two ago to soak roses that were not doing well. I then gave the bench what I thought was a thorough soaking, but not enough to run through. Since then no water has been applied except in spraying, but the bench has not dried out yet, though the drainage is good. We are having dark, muggy weather, with the outside temperature seldom under 60 degrees. I turn on a little heat every night, with the top ventilators open about an inch.

Should I mulch the plants? I have some old, thoroughly decayed manure, a mixture of horse and cow manure. If the plants were outside or were larger and stronger, they would get the mulch at once, but I am not sure about young stock and I know the mulching can be overdone.

W. C.

If the soil in which the roses were planted does not contain one-third barnyard manure and a good sprinkling of bone meal, about one pound to five square feet of bench, it is probably too poor to permit the plants to make a good growth. Moreover, even if the soil does contain sufficient food to supply the plants, if it is not dissolved with water the roses can not absorb it and will not make a good growth. The fact that the plants, as stated, were refreshed for a time by the application of a stimulant, seems to show that they were in need of it and probably want still more nourishment.

A light mulching with the decayed manure, as suggested in the inquiry, will do them good—about a good double handful to each row on both sides of the bench. Dissolve this thoroughly by working it through the hand while the water is running over it, until it is all fine. Do not let it lie on the bench in lumps, as in that case it would only dry up and the plants would get no benefit from it. If the plants freshen up again after receiving this dose, give them another in two or three weeks. "Little and often" is the rule to follow until you have good, strong plants, and even then the plants will do better if the benches are not overloaded with manure, but kept open to allow the air to get to the roots.

That the roses dropped their leaves after the sulphur was evaporated in the house, is no doubt due to an over-dose. The best way to fumigate with sulphur is to keep it painted on the heating pipes. The fumes of an oil stove are injurious to the plants and may also have had something to do with the dropping of their leaves.

BLEACHED OR FADED FOLIAGE.

I am puzzled by the fact that the leaves of my Silver Wedding mums turned from a fine, dark, rich green to a grayish white soon after the buds were taken. The plants, grown in the open from top cuttings, in this mild California climate, are nearly five feet tall, and are well nourished and well cared for. The discoloration was first observed three years ago, when the plants were in sandy soil. This year they are in heavy soil, and until three weeks ago they looked splendid. Though we had some exceedingly hot weather, the blooms never seemed to be affected. Both in size and quality, the plants were among the best I have ever seen. Chrysanthemums of other varieties, planted in the same beds, do not show the discolored foliage.

The trouble starts along the veins of the leaves and does not seem to be noticeable on the under side of the foliage, but there is a bleaching of the color cells on the upper side. I inclose a leaf, but presume it will be useless, as it will probably wilt.

B. P. G.

It is difficult for a person living in the east to suggest remedies for conditions prevailing on the other side of the continent, some 3,500 miles away, and B. P. G.'s inquiry opens up some interesting possibilities. While he grows flowers outdoors, we in Jersey grow them indoors, and yet the same bad tendency is shown in some varieties—the tendency of the foliage to change and become a dirty, grayish white instead of a rich, dark green, such as we are accustomed to associate with the chrysanthemum when it is doing well. I have always believed it is caused by the sun, but it is a problem that I have so far been unable to solve positively.

The variety Lenox, sent out by Elmer D. Smith, is a splendid thing in every respect except this one particular; the foliage apparently bleaches in the sunlight. An Australian variety, Mrs. Geo. Heaume, which we sent out about 85 years ago, has a similar defect—yes, I am unable to say, after studying the question for some time.

Everyone is familiar with the tendency shown by the blooms of certain crimson varieties to burn quickly under the sun's rays. In fact, the flowers of all varieties burn somewhat in the sun is extremely hot, though the original color of the mum, yellow, is less than any other. But why the foliage burns I cannot conceive. I have leaves inclosed with the inquiry in the well nourished plants and it is lack of nourishment that has caused the plants to act as they have. I am sorry to say that about all I can suggest for B. P. G. is to suggest that the question be passed up to the experiment station, where it would be studied from a scientific standpoint.

RETARDING CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

How can I retard chrysanthemums so as to have blooms for Christmas, and what varieties are best suited for this purpose? Would rooted cuttings, put in the bench now, serve the purpose?

Y. F. C.

The only way to secure a late chrysanthemum crop is to plant varieties which are naturally late, such as Bonaffon, J. Nonin, Maud Dean, Mrs. Chadwick, Gold Mine and others. Keep these as cool as possible and at least a good proportion of them will last till Christmas, unless the weather chances to be abnormally mild. It is of no use to put cuttings in any later than the early part of June, as the plants would be poor and puny. Rooted cuttings put in the bench as late as the end of September would give poor returns.

A LONG ISLAND MUM GROWER.

When Arthur Cockcroft started in business at Northport, L. I., about two years ago, the main output of his plant was of carnations. This line is still the chief part of the business, but chrysanthemums are at the same time assuming greater importance. The new section added to accommodate the increasing trade in mums is shown in the illustration. The standard of quality is high, for only the cream of the standard and novel varieties are grown.

To meet the heavy demand for cuttings and young stock of carnations, the number of plants has been increased from 28,000 to 42,000. These include only the most profitable varieties, which have been selected after a trial of eighteen varieties for two years. The varieties that have survived this trial are Mrs. Ward, Northport, White Wonder, Perfection, Enchantress, Pink Delight, Beacon, Benora and May Day.

In order to turn out the highest grade of cuttings and young stock for the trade, which is Mr. Cockcroft's specialty, he installed this year an equipment which J. George Jurgens, superintendent of the plant, believes will make an ideal propagating house. A heating system both of steam and hot water keeps the temperature under perfect control at all times. All the shading is done by overhead curtains, which makes it possible to gradually harden the cuttings for shipment. The minor details are in keeping with these improvements and show that no pains are spared to keep the standard of Mr. Cockcroft's specialties as high as possible.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The committees have examined new varieties as follows:

At Chicago, October 11, sport from Glory of Pacific, pinkish white, exhibited by H. Weber & Sons Co., Oakland, Md., scored as follows on commercial scale: Color, 15; form, 12; fullness, 9; stem, 14; foliage, 14; substance, 14; size, 8; total, 86.

At New York, October 11, J. 5, chestnut bronze, Japanese, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows on commercial scale: Color, 17; form, 12; fullness, 8; stem, 14; foliage, 12; substance, 13; size, 9; total, 85. Exhibition scale: Color, 14; stem, 5; foliage, 4; fullness, 12; form, 13; depth, 12; size, 26; total, 86.

At Cincinnati, October 11, sport of Glory of Pacific, bluish white, exhibited by H. Weber & Sons Co., Oakland, Md., scored as follows on commercial scale: Color, 12; form, 11; fullness, 9; stem, 15; foliage, 14; substance, 13; size, 8; total, 82.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Gardenias.

The amount of sunlight is now steadily declining, and it behooves growers of gardenias to take greater pains with their plants from this time on. It is an easy matter to keep plants dark green in color and well clustered with buds while warm, genial weather prevails. It is a different proposition when we get long spells of dark, cold, damp weather, when little ventilation can be given and much fire heat is necessary. Plants, until now, will have done well with a minimum of fire heat, but when the outside temperature drops to 30 degrees, or even 40 degrees, the house will become damp and clammy unless the heating pipes are warmed.

It is unwise to rush the plants in any way. From 60 to 62 degrees at night will suffice now, and ventilation can be freely given. When watering, soak the benches thoroughly, but be sure to allow them to dry out tolerably well before applying any more. With a soil sufficiently porous so that water will pass away freely, and with some bottom heat, and a nice, genial atmosphere, there will not be any considerable number of buds dropping. Plants in pots are less liable to drop their buds in midwinter than those in benches, and, where but a few are to be grown, pot culture is far the best. One good syringing a week with the spray nozzle will take care of mealy bug, but do it on clear, warm days. The foliage should be allowed to dry before nightfall. Avoid any feeding now. If the plants show any white roots on the surface, give them a thin mulch of old, decayed cow or horse manure, but do not apply any liquid manure or chemicals; these may produce plants of great vigor, but it will be only at the expense of buds.

Dutch Bulbs.

The planting of Dutch bulbs such as tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, crocus, scillas, chionodoxas, etc., should be pushed forward now. Do not use fresh manure in the beds. It should be old and well decayed. Cover hyacinths four inches; large bulbed narcissi, four to five inches; smaller ones three inches; tulips, four inches; crocus, snowdrops, scillas and chionodoxas two to two and one-half inches. Solid beds look best, especially of tulips and hyacinths. The two do not look well together. Narcissi do not clash, as all the varieties have white or yellow flowers. If, instead of planting nothing but early tulips, beds of Darwins and cottage tulips are used, much greater satisfaction will be given, and the bulbs of these, if set in clumps where they can be undisturbed, will be as good or better the second year.

Of the narcissi, the big trumpet sorts, such as Emperor, Golden Spur, Princeps, Victoria, and Empress, are all good for cutting. So are all the poeticus section, also the Leadsii, Barrii, and incomparabilis varieties. Poeticus ornatus will be found most useful, coming, as it does, several weeks ahead of the type, and it is well to remember that while only a few of the large trumpet varieties, such as Emperor, Princeps and Victoria, will persist outdoors, practically all the short trumpet section do better year after year with a minimum of care. Where narcissi are to be naturalized, the short trumpet section is the one to depend on.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

A new rose, registered by George Burton, of Wyndmoor, Philadelphia, Pa., is filed with the American Rose Society. It is a distinct sport from Maryland, discovered in 1910 and now filed for the first time.

At its October meeting the executive committee of the American Rose Society, following the instructions of the meeting of the society at Minneapolis, relative to the adoption of plans and rules for test rose gardens at Washington, D. C., Ithaca, N. Y., Minneapolis, and New Brunswick, N. J., took up the correspondence and plans pertaining to this work. Theodore Wirth, president-elect of the S. A. F., sent on a carefully drawn plan. John Cook, of Baltimore; C. A. Beal, of Cornell University, and M. A. Blake, horticulturist of the agricultural station of New Jersey, submitted suggestions as to what they could do toward starting and caring for the test garden. These matters were carefully gone over. President W. R. Pierson submitted a set of rules for the practical working of the test garden, and these were considered section by section and submitted for suggestion or amendment.

The proposed extension of membership and affiliation with local societies was reported to be receiving commendation. The effort to obtain an accurate list of all roses originated in America is being taken up with interest; reports have come from California, Canada and widely separated sections.

The premium list for the spring exhibition, to be held in New York city the last of March, 1914, will be taken up and issued without delay.

The National Rose Society of England, in its annual report, gives recognition to the members of the American Rose Society who were present at its exhibition. Ex-President Adolph Farenwald and E. G. Hill are finely photographed therein.

More members have paid the membership fee for 1913 than have done so in any one year before. This is what we need. "Come with us and we will do thee good." The annual bulletin for 1913 will be an interesting volume.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Calanthes.

As the flower spikes of calanthes advance, the foliage begins to turn yellow. It is wise now to reduce the water supply gradually. A little weak manure may be given once or twice more, but after November 1 only clear water should be afforded. Keep the plants in a warm and rather dry house where the night temperature does not run below 62 degrees, and, to assist in the proper development of the flowers, 65 degrees at night will be better. A light shade only is now needed; it is better not to afford the full sun after the flowers start expanding, as this causes the pink varieties to fade out badly. Be sure plants are not standing in any drip, as this has a tendency both to spot the leaves and to start decay of the bulbs.

Cœlogyne Cristata.

As the bulbs of Cœlogyne cristata are now well made up, with flower spikes showing prominently at the bases, the water supply should be decreased. Syringing, also, should be discontinued, except that a light spraying is still permissible on the mornings of clear days. The plants will now stand full sunshine. Do not make the not uncommon mistake of trying to force along an early batch in heat. This cœlogyne will not tolerate any such treatment any more than will odontoglossums or masdevallias. The flowers will come but little earlier than those in a cool house, and will lack the texture of the latter.

Odontoglossum Grande.

As plants of Odontoglossum grande, the showy autumn-flowering orchid commonly known as the baby orchid, pass out of flower, keep them drier at the roots. They succeed best hung up close to the light in a comparatively cool house, although this odontoglossum will withstand hot weather well. As new growths show at the base of the latest made up bulbs, any necessary repotting can be done. I find fern fiber grows this orchid to perfection, and it is better not to use sphagnum moss, as this brings shell snails, small in size, but destructive to the flower spikes of all the odontogloss and oncidiums.

Vanda Cærulea.

What a beautiful orchid Vanda cærulea is when well flowered! Many growers are unable to flower it satisfactorily; the reason for this usually is that they are grown too shaded. Fine, dark-leaved plants are produced in the shade, but flowers are usually few and far between. Give the plants plenty of sun and a light shade even in summer. Then they will flower well, although their foliage will be a trifle pale and may not win applause. Plants which have become tall and ungainly can be cut down, leaving one or two good roots on each top. These can be planted in well drained pots in a mixture of fern fiber and sphagnum. The plants seem to luxuriate with a covering of live, growing sphagnum. V. cærulea does well at the cold end of the cattleya house.

Odontoglossum Crispum.

Midwinter, the coolest part of the year, is the season which suits the colder blooded odontoglossums the best. The plants stood the late summer particularly well, as we had but few torrid days. Now that we are getting steadily cool weather, a considerable improvement in their condition can be seen. Fall is the time when the majority of the crispums, Pescatorei, Andersonianum, Hallii and other varieties and hybrids, need repotting. All will not be ready at one time. It is not possible to select a psychological moment for an entire batch. Disturb the roots as little as possible, but remove all worn-out compost. Fill the pots half full of clean crocks or charcoal and use fern fiber for compost; add sphagnum sparingly for small plants and not at all for strong ones, as it rets and tends to sour the compost. Pot firmly and water sparingly until root action starts. Also avoid exposing newly potted plants to bright sunshine. Plants which are not to be repotted will do better exposed to the full sunshine for the next four months.

Lælia Purpurata.

Any repotting of Lælia purpurata can be done now and, like all other cattleyas and lælias, it should now have all possible sunlight. Use a compost of pure fern fiber of rather coarse texture and pot firmly. Give the plants an elevated position, as near the glass as possible. Spray about the pots, but give water only in moderate quantities for some time yet.

Cattleya Labiata.

What would we ever do without Cattleya labiata, this free-flowering, attractive and most generally useful of all fall-blooming orchids? It is getting more scarce each year, and the price steadily climbs. Unless some new source of supply appears, it will soon be prohibitive in price for commercial growers, but we hope seedling raisers will anticipate such a possible shortage and raise thousands of good type plants annually. Then we shall be in a considerable measure independent of forest production.

Plants in bloom, or opening, must have a reduced water supply, but when taken to store windows or exhibitions where the air is likely to be warm and dry, more moisture at the root should be given. All plants in bloom should be protected from the sun and given a rather cooler location. Be sure, however, it is dry, for if cool and damp the flowers will soon become discolored.

SANDERS' GROUP.

In the last few years, and especially since the orchid has come into commercial prominence as a cut flower, some splendid groups of plants in bloom have been seen at American exhibitions, but it has not yet been possible in this country to equal the magnificent displays that are a feature of English flower shows. Take, for instance, the group at the recent Holland House show in London, by Sander & Sons. It was given a gold medal in its class and also the challenge cup as the finest feature of the exhibition.

DISTINCTIONS IN PRIMULAS.

A recent issue of The Review contained an inquiry in regard to certain distinctions in the naming of primulas, with a brief reply by one of The Review's correspondents. That the matter in question aroused an unexpected amount of interest is evidenced by the fact that two members of the trade have since written, intimating that the subject needs further elucidation and expressing their views about it. The two letters are here appended.

In a Review of recent date I noticed what was to me an interesting question: "What is the difference between gigantea and grandiflora primulas?" The answer given was, in substance: "Both are supposed to indicate the large-flowered types." That is correct, as far as it goes, but it may be important to state, for the benefit of any grower or dealer who does not already know it, that Primula obconica gigantea and P. obconica grandiflora are two different types of the same family, as gigantea was originated by crossing with another family of primulas.

Grandiflora, the older type, blooms early and freely and has flowers of more different colors than gigantea; therefore, for early blooming, it is better than gigantea. The gigantea type, on the other hand, is stronger and more robust in growth, with extra strong flower stems and large flowers and clusters, but does not bloom so freely early in the season; hence, it is better for later or spring blooming. The gigantea comes only in a few different colors, mainly pink, red and lilac, with no white as yet. E. R.

The inquiry probably had reference to Primula obconica grandiflora and Primula obconica gigantea, or perhaps to P. Chinensis grandiflora and P. Chinensis gigantea. In this instance, "grandiflora" stands for "large-flowering" and "gigantea" stands for "giant-flowering," and it is certain that any honest dealer will not willingly mix up these two words, but will use them only when the difference in his stock is such as to justify such distinctions. This difference may be gained through a constant selection of the largest-flowering plants. Or the infusion of new blood into the existing variety may produce a giant-flowering variety, as is the case with P. obconica gigantea, which is the result of a cross between P. obconica grandiflora and P. Megasefolia, obtained by Mr. Arends, of Germany.

The difference between the obconica gigantea and the obconica grandiflora may be clearly noted in the plants, even without a flower. A like difference, but not in so marked a degree, exists between Chinensis grandiflora and gigantea.

The flowers of obconica gigantea are, as a rule, much larger than those of grandiflora, with the exception of grandiflora Appleblossom, which is as large as any gigantea. The flower stems of gigantea are also much stronger and stiffer, and the foliage is decidedly larger, of a heavy, leathery texture and darker in color. Gigantea, however, does not produce as many flower stems as the grandiflora type and it is a question which is the better. Judging from the orders received by me, grandiflora is the more popular, and I am also inclined to think it is the better of the two. Which will prove to be the more popular of the Chinese primroses would be difficult for me to say, as this is only the first season in which I have grown a large quantity of P. Chinensis gigantea.

J. L. Schiller.

CHARGING FOR ESTIMATES.

The plan of the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, to charge a nominal sum for estimates and sketches for greenhouses, as told in The Review last week, has awakened interest among greenhouse builders. Briefly, the plan is to charge everybody $3 for an estimate and sketch. In case of order the $3 would be credited on the bill. The idea is to cut down the expensive system of free estimating and save this to the people who actually buy material. It is claimed that out of three estimates only one results in an order. The party sending the order must therefore pay for all three estimates in the added cost of doing business. The following letters show the sentiment of the trade:

Engelmann Greenhouses, Maryville, Mo.—"In regard to charging for estimates, we want to say that the average person in the trade does not realize the cost of such work. You have enlightened us and we ourselves have often written for various bids without thinking or knowing what it cost someone else as well as ourselves. We think a good way to save on estimating would be to have standard houses, as described in the article in The Review some time ago. You could have standard specifications for these, also, and give approximate estimates. This would cut out those who are only interested to the extent of knowing the cost of certain houses. But to get down to brass tacks, anyone who means business and is actually going to build is willing to pay for estimates and we will cheerfully pay for ours, just what it costs, whether $3 or $5."

Samuel Pearce, Chicago, Ill. — "That's right. Everybody pay his share and nobody will be out any money. It's a good plan. Every greenhouse manufacturer should charge for estimates."

John Rindfleisch, Beloit, Wis. — "That article in The Review about charging for estimates is good common sense. Mr. McKee is right and if every company charged for estimates the greenhouse owners would save annually at least $25,000 as I figure it. If I want to build a residence and go to an architect for plans, specifications and estimates do I get this service for nothing? I guess not! The florists ought to push this thing through. Let us pay for what we get and not for what others get."

Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—"Hope you will succeed in carrying your plan into operation and give us credit for plans made for us."

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, Ill.—"It is a good idea in every way. The fellow who won't pay $3 don't intend to build. Go ahead and then give us credit on all the jobs we have given Moninger. All jokes aside, though, the plan is fine."

BEATING THE KANSAS DROUGHT.

At the plant of the Independence Greenhouses and Gardens, at Independence, Kan., there is no longer any fear of the drought, which has ruined so much stock in that state this year. Perry Bunyar, the 19-year-old son of Robert Bunyar, proprietor of the concern, has rigged up an irrigating plant that furnishes plenty of water from the creek near by. A home-made box flume, a flywheel from a steam engine and a fifteen horse-power gas engine are the prime features of the plant. The gas for the engine is supplied from a well on Mr Bunyar's property, so that the expense is slight.

The pump is capable of drawing 45,000 gallons an hour. There is, therefore, an ample supply for the twenty-two acres included in Robert Bunyar's gardens. The excess power has been used to run a four kilowatt generator, also made by Perry Bunyar, which supplies current for a large number of small lights and one large arc searchlight that can be seen for several miles. The power plant and its maker can be seen in the accompanying illustration.

NORFOLK, VA.

Blick the Florist, with two handsome stores in this city, has branched out into a new enterprise. One hundred acres of ground have been purchased near Norfolk that will be run as a vegetable plant and seed farm. Frank Brunton, formerly of Richmond, Va., will act as manager. The business name will be the Blick-Brunton Co., Inc., with headquarters in this city. A general vegetable plant and seed business will be done and it will be quite distinct from the florists' firm, although the same moving spirit is in both. Phil.

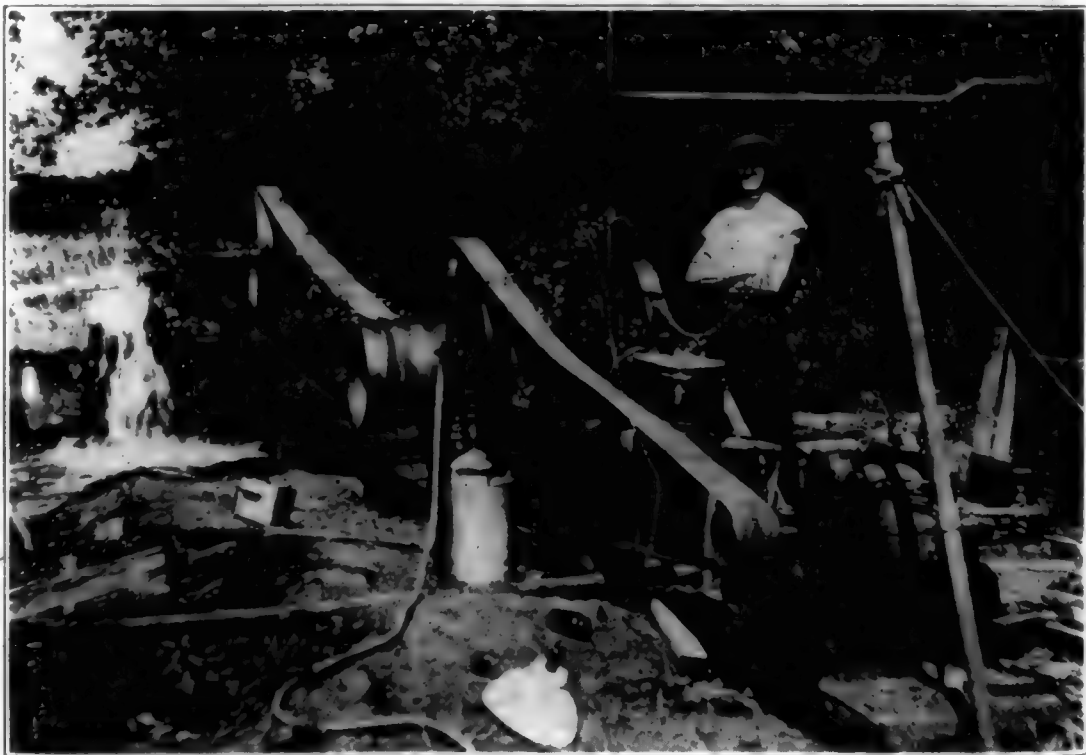

NEW YORK.

The Market.

This week opened with rain and gloom, but the cold snap which followed was exactly what the wholesale cut flower market needed. Last week was lifeless and the flood of chrysanthemums dominated everything with its ever increasing volume. Prices were at low ebb, and even the finest of the mums were sold at half the prices of former seasons. There is a good deal of medium and low grade stock that is practically unsalable.

In roses, American Beauty showed better appreciation, and prices advanced above the low figures of a week ago, but all the other varieties only held their averages, even with the increased demand. With the many new varieties now appealing to the public's love of novelties, the rose gives assurance of its kingship this season after the passing of the mum. Many of the tea roses arriving are still small and short-stemmed, and sell at a low figure. Shawyer, Russell and Milady grow in size, beauty and popularity.

Carnations do not advance in price, though they do in quality, and it is only the best that command reasonable prices. The absence of novelties this season is quite noticeable. Lilies and valley are about the same, $6 and $3 being top prices, and there is no shortage of either. Orchids were away down last week; 25 cents was high and this was obtained only for the selects.

Wonderful how fast the mums have come in this year! Two weeks ahead of schedule! Some fine novelties are already seen. Dahlias have made their farewell bow. The displays were good, and the variety of flowers was wonderful, but they were not half appreciated. Bouvardias, tritomas and cosmos are abundant. So are violets, but they are away ahead of time, as usual. It is pretty early to quote $1 per thousand, but it was true last week.

A Visit to Manda's.

The invitation of W. A. Manda to the New York Florists' Club to visit his greenhouses and nursery at South Orange, October 17, was accepted by Messrs Siebrecht, Donaldson, Miesem, Bunyard, Traendly, Fiesser, Holt, Shaw, Wagenfohr, Dahlborn, Nilson, Henshaw, Falkner, A. J. Manda and Joseph Manda. The party met at Hoboken, where Mr. Manda welcomed his friends and furnished special transportation. On arrival at South Orange dinner was served at Mr. Manda's home and the health of his household was given in champagne. Addresses were made by Messrs. Siebrecht, Bunyard and Traendly. Mr. Traendly spoke of the great influence of Mr. Manda in the flower shows and the hope for his cooperation in the March, 1914, exhibition in New York. He also suggested Mr. Bunyard as the logical candidate for president of the New York Florists' Club for the coming year.

The investigating committee of the club had under consideration Mr. Manda's new dahlias, including Mrs. Dupont and Beatrice Manda, and will report at the club's November meeting, which, by the way, will be ladies' night and at which Mr. Manda will make a suitable decoration.

The company enjoyed several hours in visiting the nursery and inspecting the many novelties to be seen there. Everyone returned to the city laden with dahlias. The reader can imagine the sensation on the train, under the leadership of Messrs. Traendly and Bunyard.

Various Notes.

Commencing October 29 and continuing for five days the big fall flower show will be held at the Museum of Natural History. On the same dates the meeting of the Gardeners' Society will be held and on the evening of November 3 the annual banquet at Hotel Endicott. Tickets for the last mentioned event can be obtained from M. C. Ebel, secretary, Madison, N. J.

Business at the plant auctions has been slow. Some fine decorative palm stock has been sold and prices have been at about half their actual values. Messrs. Troy, Stumpp and Abrams were heavy purchasers.

Messrs. Bunyard and Armstrong are again at their New York stores, after a successful summer at Newport, R. I. Wadley & Smythe also report an excellent season at that resort.

THE MAYOR OF BRAMPTON.

WIELDING the mace with the same facility, or felicity, he does the pruning shears, Thomas W. Duggan has achieved in the politics of the Dominion the same honorable position he holds in the trade by reason of his conspicuous success as managing director of the Dale Estate, Brampton. In fact, as Mayor of Brampton Mr. Duggan's well known administrative abilities have been so useful to the municipality that the Conservatives among his constituents now propose to make him stand as their candidate for member of the House of Parliament, the retirement of the present member for Peel having created an unexpected vacancy. To Mr. Duggan's friends in the trade, knowing his policies but not his politics, it will be a surprise to learn that he is a Conservative, for a growing establishment of the size and comprehensiveness of the Dale Estate never resulted from anything but the most liberal of administrations.

many New York friends. W. A. Bridge-man is manager. The building is six stories high, with a conservatory on the roof. The architecture is colonial. The Tiffany studios are responsible for the Wedgewood design in white and blue. The evergreen effects in outside decoration are profuse and beautiful. Originality is manifested in everything. There is no other flower shop just like it. The basement work-rooms are ample. The roof conservatory is reached by elevators and many novel effects are promised visitors there. The ammonia pipe system is installed for the ice boxes.

Stumpp & Walter Co. has an attractive window display this week, including the inevitable windmill in a showing of bulbs of every seasonable variety.

The pompon chrysanthemums and the lilies from Dreyer Bros., of Woodside and Whitestone, attract favorable comment from Wm. Kessler's customers.

The Astoria bowling club visited W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., October 16, at Chap-pequa and were entertained at dinner, where cider and honey from his own trees and bees flowed freely. Those present were Messrs. Miesem, Donaldson, Dorval, Garbe, Jacobson, Doerhofer and Kessler. The Astorias bowl every Thursday evening.

One of the prettiest stores on upper Broadway is that of Charles Habermann. Jas. P. Neehen, formerly with McIntosh, is manager.

A. T. Bunyard had a large wedding decoration at Cold Springs, N. Y., last week, at which yellow chrysanthemums and autumn foliage were used abundantly.

S. D. Green, the New York representative of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was a recent visitor, fresh from a successful canvass of New England.

Hoffmeir had the O'Neill-McDonald and "gigantea" stands for "giant-flowering," and it is certain that any honest dealer will not willingly mix up these two words, but will use them only when the difference in his stock is such as to justify such distinctions. This difference may be gained through a constant selection of the largest-flowering plants. Or the infusion of new blood into the existing variety may produce a giant-flowering variety, as is the case with P. obconica gigantea, which is the result of a cross between P. obconica grandiflora and P. Megaseæfolia, obtained by Mr. Arends, of Germany.

The difference between the obconica gigantea and the obconica grandiflora may be clearly noted in the plants, even without a flower. A like difference, but not in so marked a degree, exists between Chinensis grandiflora and gigantea.

The flowers of obconica gigantea are, as a rule, much larger than those of grandiflora, with the exception of grandiflora Appleblossom, which is as large as any gigantea. The flower stems of gigantea are also much stronger and stiffer, and the foliage is decidedly larger, of a heavy, leathery texture and darker in color. Gigantea, however, does not produce as many flower stems as the grandiflora type and it is a question which is the better. Judging from the orders received by me, grandiflora is the more popular, and I am also inclined to think it is the better of the two. Which will prove to be the more popular of the Chinese primroses would be difficult for me to say, as this is only the first season in which I have grown a large quantity of P. Chinensis gigantea.

CHARGING FOR ESTIMATES.

The plan of the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, to charge a nominal sum for estimates and sketches for greenhouses, as told in The Review last week, has awakened interest among greenhouse builders. Briefly, the plan is to charge everybody $3 for an estimate and sketch. In case of order the $3 would be credited on the bill. The idea is to cut down the expensive system of free estimating and save this to the people who actually buy material. It is claimed that out of three estimates only one results in an order. The party sending the order must therefore pay for all three estimates in the added cost of doing business. The following letters show the sentiment of the trade:

Engelmann Greenhouses, Maryville, Mo.—"In regard to charging for estimates, we want to say that the average person in the trade does not realize the cost of such work. You have enlightened us and we ourselves have often written for various bids without thinking or knowing what it cost someone else as well as ourselves. We think a good way to save on estimating would be to have standard houses, as described in the article in The Review some time ago. You could have standard specifications for these, also, and give approximate estimates. This would cut out those who are only interested to the extent of knowing the cost of certain houses. But to get down to brass tacks, anyone who means business and is actually going to build is willing to pay for estimates and we will cheerfully pay for ours, just what it costs, whether $3 or $5."

Samuel Pearce, Chicago, Ill. — "That's right. Everybody pay his share and nobody will be out any money. It's a good plan. Every greenhouse manufacturer should charge for estimates."

John Rindfleisch, Beloit, Wis.— "That article in The Review about charging for estimates is good common sense. Mr. McKee is right and if every company charged for estimates the greenhouse owners would save annually at least $25,000 as I figure it. If I want to build a residence and go to an architect for plans, specifications and estimates do I get this service for nothing? I guess not! The florists ought to push this thing through. Let us pay for what we get and not for what others get."

Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—"Hope you will succeed in carrying your plan into operation and give us credit for plans made for us."

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, Ill.—"It is a good idea in every way. The fellow who won't pay $3 don't intend to build. Go ahead and then give us credit on all the jobs we have given Moninger. All jokes aside, though, the plan is fine."

BEATING THE KANSAS DROUGHT.

At the plant of the Independence Greenhouses and Gardens, at Independence, Kan., there is no longer any fear of the drought, which has ruined so much stock in that state this year. Perry Bunyar, the 19-year-old son of Robert Bunyar, proprietor of the concern, has rigged up an irrigating plant that furnishes plenty of water from the creek near by. A home-made box flume, a flywheel from a steam engine and a fifteen horse-power gas engine are the prime features of the plant. The gas for the engine is supplied from a well on Mr Bunyar's property, so that the expense is slight.

The pump is capable of drawing 45,000 gallons an hour. There is, therefore, an ample supply for the twenty-two acres included in Robert Bunyar's gardens. The excess power has been used to run a four kilowatt generator, also made by Perry Bunyar, which supplies current for a large number of small lights and one large arc searchlight that can be seen for several miles. The power plant and its maker can be seen in the accompanying illustration.

NORFOLK, VA.

Blick the Florist, with two handsome stores in this city, has branched out into a new enterprise. One hundred acres of ground have been purchased near Norfolk that will be run as a vegetable plant and seed farm. Frank Brunton, formerly of Richmond, Va., will act as manager. The business name will be the Blick-Brunton Co., Inc., with headquarters in this city. A general vegetable plant and seed business will be done and it will be quite distinct from the florists' firm, although the same moving spirit is in both. Phil.

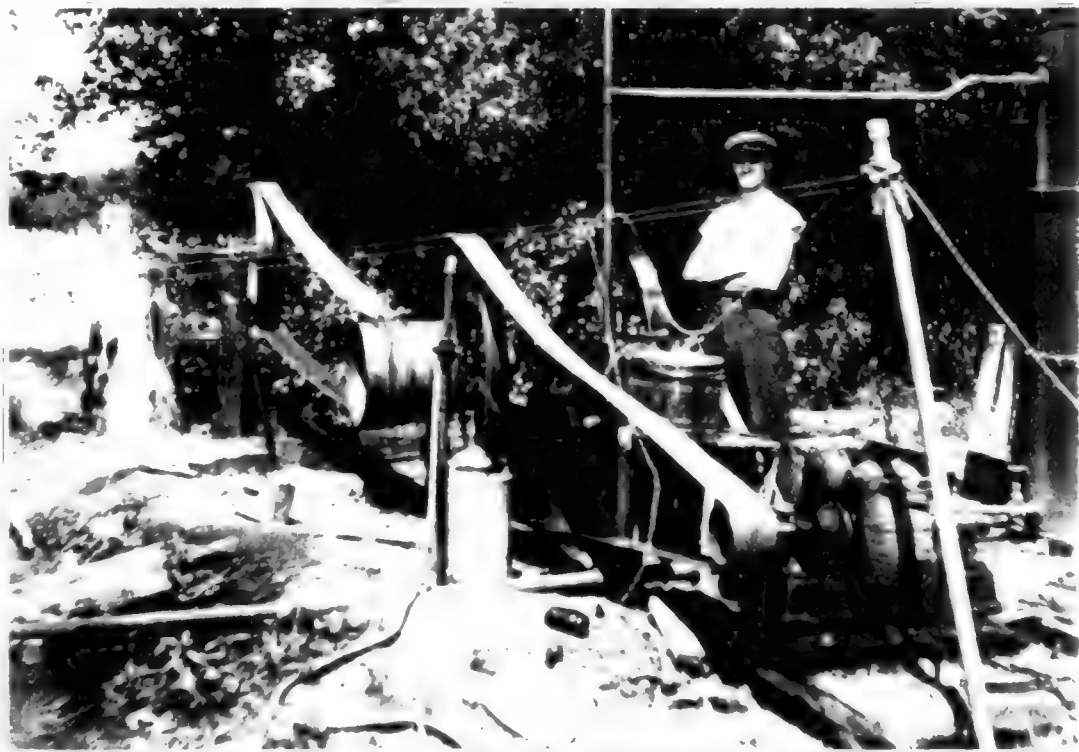

NEW YORK.

The Market.

This week opened with rain and gloom, but the cold snap which followed was exactly what the wholesale cut flower market needed. Last week was lifeless and the flood of chrysanthemums dominated everything with its ever increasing volume. Prices were at low ebb, and even the finest of the mums were sold at half the prices of former seasons. There is a good deal of medium and low grade stock that is practically unsalable.

In roses, American Beauty showed better appreciation, and prices advanced above the low figures of a week ago, but all the other varieties only held their averages, even with the increased demand. With the many new varieties now appealing to the public's love of novelties, the rose gives assurance of its kingship this season after the passing of the mum. Many of the tea roses arriving are still small and short-stemmed, and sell at a low figure. Shawyer, Russell and Milady grow in size, beauty and popularity.

Carnations do not advance in price, though they do in quality, and it is only the best that command reasonable prices. The absence of novelties this season is quite noticeable. Lilies and valley are about the same, $6 and $3 being top prices, and there is no shortage of either. Orchids were away down last week; 25 cents was high and this was obtained only for the selects. Wonderful how fast the mums have come in this year! Two weeks ahead of schedule! Some fine novelties are already seen. Dahlias have made their well bow. The displays were good, the variety of flowers was wonderful, but they were not half appreciated. Bouvardias, tritomas and cosmos are abundant. So are violets, but they are away ahead of time, as usual. It is pretty early to quote $1 per thousand, but it was true last week.

A Visit to Manda's.

The invitation of W. A. Manda to the New York Florists' Club to visit his greenhouses and nursery at South Orange, October 17, was accepted by Messrs. Siebrecht, Donaldson, Miesem, Bunyard, Traendly, Fieser, Holt, Shaw, Wagenfohr, Dahlborn, Nilson, Henshaw, Falkner, A. J. Manda and Joseph Manda. The party met at Hoboken, where Mr. Manda welcomed his friends and furnished special transportation. On arrival at South Orange dinner was served at Mr. Manda's home and the health of his household was given in champagne. Addresses were made by Messrs. Siebrecht, Bunyard and Traendly. Mr. Traendly spoke of the great influence of Mr. Manda in the flower shows and the hope for his cooperation in the March, 1914, exhibition in New York. He also suggested Mr. Bunyard as the logical candidate for president of the New York Florists' Club for the coming year.

The investigating committee of the club had under consideration Mr. Manda's new dahlias, including Mrs. Dupont and Beatrice Manda, and will report at the club's November meeting, which, by the way, will be ladies' night and at which Mr. Manda will make a suitable decoration.

The company enjoyed several hours in visiting the nursery and inspecting the many novelties to be seen there. Everyone returned to the city laden with dahlias. The reader can imagine the sensation on the train, under the leadership of Messrs. Traendly and Bunyard.

Various Notes.

Commencing October 29 and continuing for five days the big fall flower show will be held at the Museum of Natural History. On the same dates the meeting of the Gardeners' Society will be held and on the evening of November 3 the annual banquet at Hotel Endicott. S. F. Galvin's new store at Forty-street and Fifth avenue is unique in beauty and decoration. Mr. Galvin himself is here to welcome his wedding last week, at Flat Rock, and the Frost-Cleveland wedding at Bretton Hall.

Brown, of the Belnord, has been busy with dinner and funeral work. His shop is one of the leaders in richness of decoration.

Henry A. Rohs, manager for C. C. Trepel at the Bloomingdale store, welcomed the stork with a ten pounder last week.

Sydney B. Wertheimer says the sale of ribbons and chiffons is breaking records and that the call for novelty in these lines is insistent; the retailers in the larger cities being constantly on the lookout for something new.

McHutchison & Co., who are specialists on import matters, have printed a card and explanatory letter, giving full information regarding the new duties on horticultural imports. The card and letter have been mailed to 3,000 importing florists, seedsmen and nurserymen, most of whom are expected to hang the card on the wall.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., of White Marsh, Md., submits for registration the cannas described below. Any person objecting to the registration or to the use of the proposed names is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objections to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Jessica—A beautiful shade of rose carmine; flowers are large, trusses enormous, freely produced throughout the entire season; dark, bronzy green foliage; height, about three and one-half feet. Seedling of Wm. Saunders.

Benivolia—A brilliant, rich shade of Lincoln red; flowers are beautifully formed and borne in great profusion; dark, rich green foliage, showing a tinge of bronze; dwarf grower. Seedling of Wm. Saunders.

Horatio—Large, waxy flowers of beautifully formed petals; brilliant crimson scarlet, edged with bright golden yellow, yellow throats, spotted red; foliage dwarf, robust, of good texture, deep rich green. Seedling of Wm. Saunders.

Lafew—Medium to large flowers in large trusses, which are profusely produced; the foliage is a very dark medium green, overlaid with a bronze sheen; dwarf, sturdy grower, orange scarlet. Seedling of Wm. Saunders.

Gonzabo—Brilliant carmine; large flowers of waxy petals; enormous trusses; luxuriant, dark, bronzy green foliage; grows about three and one-half feet high. Seedling of Wm. Saunders.

Mercutio—Intense vermillion scarlet, shading to pink at the base of petals, golden yellow at edge; the foliage is clear, rich green; about three feet high; an early and continuous bloomer. Seedling of Wm. Saunders.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

The regular monthly meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society was held October 14. The ball committee, of which John T. Allen was chairman, reported that it had a substantial balance on hand, to be turned over to the lecture fund.

The John Lewis Childs silver cup, which was awarded at the recent flower show to Dennis Foley, gardener for E. Rollins Morse, was presented. It was decided to have a course of lectures during the coming winter, in conjunction with the Gardeners' Association, and these will be in charge of H. W. H. Powell, James Robertson, William Grey and Mrs. Hoffman.

Various Notes.

Twenty-five hundred rhododendrons from the fields of Walter Greene, of Saunderstown, have been purchased by Mrs. George D. Widener for the grounds of her new estate on Bellevue avenue. W. H. M.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

Business last week was a decided improvement over that of the previous week. The demand for stock was about equal to the supply, with one or two exceptions. Beauties are scarce and the two new red roses, Milady and Mrs. Chas. Russell, are eagerly sought after. In mums the supply of yellow is limited. Chrysolora is the most popular early yellow. Some pompons are seen. Mums will soon hold full sway. Snapdragons sell well. Violets are coming in, but as yet the quality is not of the best and they move slowly.

Various Notes.

C. M. Strom, of New Britain, is receiving the congratulations of his friends on the arrival of a baby girl.

George G. McClunie, of Main street, south, is an ardent booster of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, is erecting a new office building, two stories high, of red brick. This firm has one of the largest stocks of mums in the country. A visit to the establishment during mum season is always of special interest. Not only is the latch string out for those in the trade, but many flower lovers from all over the state annually visit the place in November.

The Hartford Horticultural Society will hold chrysanthemum night November 7. R. C. S.

AN OYSTER ROAST.

Virginia is famous for many things, among them its fair ladies, brave men and toothsome oysters. In the accompanying illustration we have all three, for the lady is Mrs. Carrie M. Terry, the progressive florist of Phoebus, on the Chesapeake, where the oysters come from. Mrs. Terry is seen in the act of dispensing oyster roast to her soldier friends. She has built up an excellent business, the last season having been by far her best to date.

OBITUARY.

John B. Byer.

John B. Byer, of the firm of Byer Bros., Chambersburg, Pa., died of old age October 4. He was 83 years of age. The business will be continued by the other member of the firm, Charles A. Byer.

Robert Kinkaid.

Robert Kinkaid, a florist and landscape gardener of Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa., died October 11 at his home at 121 West Rittenhouse street at the age of 45. He had been suffering from Bright's disease for some time. He was born in Ireland and came to Philadelphia when a young man. He opened his own store fifteen years ago. He was a member of Loyal Orange No. 112, Loyal Patriots of America and German Purple Heroes. His widow, five daughters and two sons survive.

Frank H. Vick.

Frank H. Vick, a son of the late James Vick, of Rochester, died October 10 at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. H. S. De Mott, 44 Irving place, Rockville Center, L. I., at the age of 61. He was a landscape gardener and had charge of the grounds surrounding government buildings in New York city. He was born and educated in Rochester and was associated with the business of his father, James Vick, before entering the government employ.

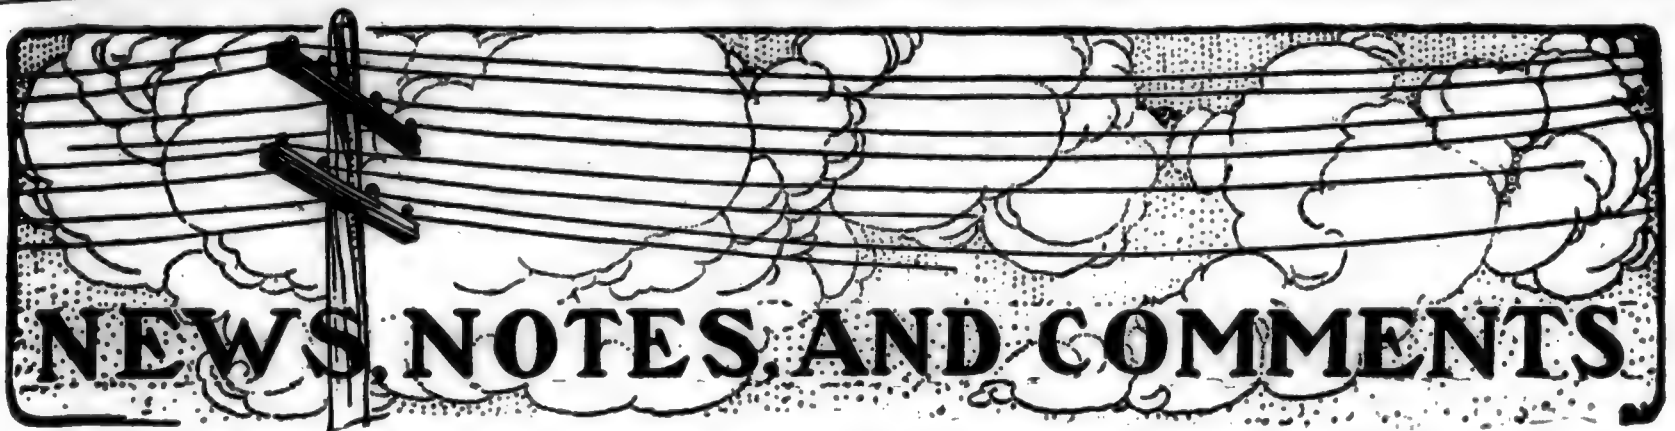

Allentown, Pa.—At the fair here the exhibits of O. J. Sawyer and Ernest Ashley, of this city, are attracting much attention.

Huntingdon, Pa.—J. S. Seal has taken a partner and established with him the Huntingdon Floral Co., in place of the Huntingdon Greenhouses.

Geneseo, Ill.—Miss Daisy Williams, the popular saleslady of the Neal Floral Co., has returned to her work after spending the summer in New York city.

NEWS, NOTES, AND COMMENTS

Mt. Kisco, N. Y.—The Westchester County Horticultural Society will hold its annual exhibition here October 31 to November 2.

Saginaw, Mich.—The Stevens Gladioli Co., Inc., won three first prizes at the Saginaw County School Fair, October 3 and 4, on gladioli, asters and bulbs in variety.

Dayton, O.—The Heiss Co. has been incorporated with a capitalization of $15,000, to do a general florists' business. The incorporators are Horace R. Frank, Forrest E. Nitman, Fred C. Moore, Clara A. Heiss and Ione B. Frank.

Atlanta, N. Y.—B. C. McKay has started in the greenhouse business in a small way, having previously confined himself to outdoor crops, calling his place the Spring Brook Gardens. His slogan has been "From Grower to Grocer."

Madison, N. J.—The Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold its eighteenth annual exhibition at Assembly hall, October 28 and 29. The committee consists of W. H. Duckham, Charles H. Totty, Robert M. Schultz and Arthur Herrington, which is a sufficient guarantee of a good show.

White Marsh, Md.—At the seventh annual dahlia show at the dahlia and canna farm of Richard Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. the first part of this month, there were said to be 250,000 blooms of 200 different varieties. A large number of visitors from Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and other cities came to see the wonderful sight.

Wading River, N. Y.—E. S. Miller has sold to John Lewis Childs his entire stock of bulbs and hardy plants, including over 300 choice gladiolus seedlings, which he has been selecting for the last eight years and which have not been disseminated. In the future Mr. Miller will devote all his time to fruits and general seed growing.

Boonville, Ind.—Ernest L. Lutz is completing the erection of a greenhouse, in which he will grow early flowering plants, lettuce and vegetable plants for the local market. As it is the only greenhouse in Boonville, where there is a good market for flowers, the venture should prove a success. Mr. Lutz is planning the erection of a shop and a potting house.

Norfolk, Va.—October 1 Blick the Florist opened a branch two blocks away from the main store, in the Arcade. Every caller, and there were many, received a flower and a souvenir booklet. The souvenir was beautifully gotten up. It described all the principal varieties of plants and flowers, their uses and their language. Miss Blick is the managing genius of both the older store and the new branch. The opening was a tremendous success.

Asbury Park, N. J.—The Elberon Horticultural Society will hold its annual chrysanthemum show here October 27 to 29.

Houston, Tex.—The opening of R. C. Kerr's new uptown store, at Main street and McKinney avenue, was held October 11. Special features for brides were shown at the time.

Des Moines, Ia.—In the big hail storm of October 10 the Wilson Floral Co. suffered a loss of $700 through 1,000 panes of glass being broken. The Iowa Seed Co. had between 700 and 800 panes broken.

Glen Cove, N. Y.—The ninth annual chrysanthemum show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society will be held at Pembroke hall October 28 and 29. Fifty-five classes are scheduled, of which twenty-five are for chrysanthemum plants or blossoms.

Savanna, Ill.—Fred C. Jenks has purchased the outstanding stock of the Savanna Greenhouses, securing a half interest in the concern; the remaining interest is held by J. W. Dunn. The company now has a plant covering five acres and does an extensive business in the vicinity.

Holyoke, Mass.—At the last meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club at Northampton, arrangements were made for the flower show to be held here November 13 in Windsor hall. Cash prizes are offered amounting to $200 and thirty exhibitors from this city and out of town are already booked.

Baltimore, Md.—At the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club October 13, J. Thomas Lyons spoke on "Publicity." On the subject of encouraging the greater use of flowers by the public, remarks were made by Wm. J. Johnston, Thomas R. Vincent, E. A. Seidewitz, Robert L. Graham and James Hamilton.

Grand Junction, Colo.—Don C. Piatt, manager of the Grand Floral Co., has leased the business to F. X. Goeschl, who recently came here from Denver and expects to specialize in landscape gardening in connection with the business. Mr. Piatt and his family will soon move to California, where they expect to reside permanently.

Beatrice, Neb.—The Dole Floral Co. made several improvements at its store and at the greenhouses during the summer. An addition to the store has been built, doubling the floor space. A rest room for customers is a new feature. The salesroom has been redecorated and a rear room turned into a workroom in line with other provisions for handling out-of-town trade. G. M. Johnston, Jr., is boosting this department by trips in his automobile.

Sewickley, Pa.—Hitchings & Co. are erecting a greenhouse for Alex. Laugh-ten.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—Charles P. Dudley has purchased six acres of land on Dudley road, on which he will build greenhouses, which will be used in connection with the new store opened in the Union Trust building October 20.

Madison, N. J.—At the show opening here October 28 there is a class for twelve varieties of vegetables staged on tables 4x6 feet that should bring out an interesting competition. The premiums are $75, $50 and $25; enough to inspire any gardener to do his best.

Greenville, Tex.—E. D. Barlow is adding 2,000 feet to his plant on North Walnut street, making a total of 6,000 feet. One house will be used for ferns and the other for mums, followed by lettuce as an experiment. A new boiler with a capacity to heat 12,000 feet of glass is being put in.

New Castle, Ind.—Myer Heller, president of the South Park Floral Co., was host to a party of florists of Richmond, Ind., and Cincinnati, O., who visited the greenhouses here. Among the number were Joseph Hill, of Richmond, and C. W. Jones, Julius Baer, Arthur Becker, Fred Gear and C. E. Critchell, of Cincinnati.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Edward B. Cowan, of Cowan Bros. & Co., was thrown from his buggy October 10 when an automobile struck the buggy and frightened the horse. Mr. Cowan was stunned and, on removal to the Union hospital, was found to be suffering from concussion of the brain. He was quite conscious two days later and in all likelihood will recover.

Dayton, O.—At the first meeting of the season of the Dayton Florists' Club, October 9, held at the J. F. Young store, on Fifth street, a plan for coöperative advertising in the local papers was taken up. It is proposed to take space in the newspapers in which to show the offerings of the market and give the names and addresses of the Dayton florists. At the next meeting C. M. Schaeffer will give a talk on coöperative advertising.

Columbus, O.—The court of appeals reversed the decision of the court of common pleas and granted an injunction to Charles R. Wheeler, administrator of the estate of William Graff, enjoining Samuel Graff from continuing in the florists' business. Upon the death of his brother, Samuel Graff opened a store, although he had signed an agreement when his brother bought him out previously that he would not again enter the business. The lower court held it to be a personal contract terminated by death, but the upper court holds it as an asset of the estate, as the widow still runs the business.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1913: President, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; vice-president, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.
Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

It is just as bad business for a florist to buy too good materials as it is to buy too cheaply. No use buying a dollar article where an 80-cent one will do as well. The skillful buyer is the one who knows what is necessary to get the desired result.

ONE of the weak features of the flower business is the general reluctance to ask for one's money. Retailers should speak of their credits as "accommodation accounts" and emphasize that they are payable monthly. When the retailers get their money promptly they will be able to meet their own obligations in full each month.

ONE of the significant tendencies in the trade is that toward opening downtown stores by those who previously have retailed from the greenhouses. In many instances it is for the purpose of meeting the competition of the store that gets its supplies from some big city market, but in others it merely means that the florist is going after business instead of waiting for it to come to him. It is a good thing.

A POINT on which The Review prides itself is its accuracy. In newspaper work the constant tendency is toward exaggeration, overstatement and carelessness of the facts so long as the story reads well. The Review tries to avoid the overstatement that discredits some other publications, but it does not aim to go so far as it did last week when a typographical error made the length of the houses of the Miller Floral Co., Farmington, Utah, 100 feet, when they are, in fact, 300 feet long.

HAIL INSURANCE FOR 1914.

The board of directors of the Florists' Hail Association has fixed the rate of hail insurance for the year ending November 1, 1914, at 15 cents per hundred square feet of single thick glass and 6 cents per hundred square feet of double thick glass.

John G. Esler, Sec'y.

RAPIDLY CLEANING UP.

When a florist has a surplus—stock he does not need for his home trade—he quickly cleans up if he lets the others know it through a classified ad in The Review. It does not make any difference where the florist is located; just two things are necessary: that it be good, seasonable stock and that the ad appear in The Review. Then the orders come in and the items clean up, one after another, like this:

Please take out my ad of cyclamens, as I am sold out, thanks to The Review.—C. H. Jacobs, Westfield, Mass., October 7, 1913.

And then one week later:

Please take out my ad of Boston ferns, as they are all sold, and still thanks to The Review.—C. H. Jacobs, Westfield, Mass., October 14, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A drop in the temperature of 35 degrees, which was followed by a snow storm of real winter severity, took place October 20 and as a result the local wholesalers look for a check in the crops that will cut down the rather abundant supply of roses and mums. Carnations were found to be short of the demand with the opening of business this week and with the change in the weather conditions fears were expressed that the roses and mums would take a like turn. Killarneys have been in good supply up to the present and of other roses there are enough so that all orders are being filled without trouble. Beauties continue to arrive in large numbers and, while the short sell more rapidly than the long grades, the market cleans up on all lengths. The Beauty market is much stronger than it was last week, when the buyer made the price on the long grade.

Mums have assumed a more important position. Since the last report dozens of growers have begun cutting, with the result that there are greater quantities offered than have been seen heretofore. With the decrease in the supply of carnations, however, the prices of mums have held up in good shape and they have cleaned out without much effort on the part of the dealers. Some really fine flowers are to be had in both white and yellow, as the midseason sorts are in, and pink and red both find favor with the local buyers. Pompons have been cut in small quantities, but as yet the yellows are the only ones to be found in any quantity. There is nothing wonderful in the way of quality among the first arrivals and they do not bring any unusual returns.

Violets are cutting more of a figure as the season advances and they continue to improve in quality. Last week's receipts were far above the needs of the market, so that the best sold cheaply and some of the poorest not at all. There are all kinds of violets offered: Eastern doubles, local singles, a few local doubles, and Octo-

and all the other best mid-season Mums

THIS WEEK we have a big lot of Chrysolora, everywhere said to be the best yellow mum now in season—all over the country it has been reported as selling better than any other mum this month. We can fill your orders for it. But you can't get along with only one kind of mum, and we have all the others: Touset, Early Snow, Halliday, Monogram, Amaranta, October Frost, Alice Salomon, Glow, Kalb—all colors included. Prices according to size, $10.00 to $35.00 per 100.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

The retailers certainly have been ordering our Beauties liberally of late—we have done a big business—but we are able to take care of still more out-of-town customers. Can offer fine stock at prices that will be specially attractive to those who can use the medium to long grades. Please remember that while the largest orders do not tax our resources, we never are too busy to take equally good care of the small orders—order of us whether you want one hundred or one dozen.

FANCY ROSES

Of course we can supply the shorter grades of Roses, as many as you want, but what we wish to emphasize is our ability to furnish a fancy grade you cannot get everywhere. Indeed, there are few, if any, places in America where there is so large a supply of long-stemmed stock. Try Amling on Roses and you will conclude you could not ask for a more satisfactory source of supply.

CATTLEYAS

We have the fine fall crop of Labiata. These Orchids are second to none, and the supply will be steady for some weeks, by which time other varieties will be ready. You can count on us for Orchids.

VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley to you need. But a good way would be to place a standing order for regular shipments.

VIOLETS! VIOLETS!! VIOLETS!!!

We are Violet headquarters for the whole West. No reason for ordering elsewhere. We have quality and quantity and can make prices.

CARNATIONS

Our Carnations are of a quality that will please your customers. Nice, clean flowers, stems rapidly lengthening; most of them long enough now to please the most critical trade. All colors.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies every day in the year.

ber 20 a shipment of San Francisco violets reached one of the wholesale houses.

Valley is even with the demand, but good Easter lilies are none too plentiful. Cattleyas are slightly less plentiful than last week and oncidiums are on the down grade, but there are plenty of white orchids and cypripediums have come in.

There have been dahlias, gladioli, asters and cosmos up to October 20, but the freeze probably has put an end to them for this season.

Smilax is anything but plentiful and, with social activities bolstering the demand, there is some trouble in filling the calls. Plumosus strings also are scarce. Other greens are to be had without trouble.

Association Meeting.

At its meeting October 16 the Cook County Florists' Association, by a vote of 28 to 8, declined to concur in the recommendation of a majority of its board of trustees that the organization be merged with the Chicago Florists' Club under the name of the Chicago-Cook County Florists' Club. A. Henderson, H. N. Bruns and W. J. Keimel were the trustees who had attended a conference with a committee from the other club and each made a speech in favor of accepting the overtures of the Chicago Florists' Club. The principal speech in opposition was made by H. E. Philpott, but the vote showed that he voiced the views of the majority of those present when he argued for the maintenance of the separate organization. The association voted to accept the invitation of the Chicago Florists' Club to join in the ladies' night to be given November 6, when the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be in town for its annual show. Tickets for all local people are $1.

Fred J. Wolfrum, 2433 North Richmond street; Joseph Seidowitz, 1456 Oakdale avenue, and Henry Frederick, of Des Plaines, were elected to membership. Applications were received from Gus Wiedenhoef, foreman for Wiator Bros.; Arthur Weber, Bowmanville; W. H. Amling, Maywood; John Ristow, Rogers Park.

Various Notes.

George Wienhoeber says the season has opened splendidly for the Fleischman Floral Co. The store, with a new floor, is in better shape than ever before. The advertising this year is confined to one morning and one evening paper, large spaces being used. A distinctive border has been adopted for all the advertising. Mr. Wienhoeber believes the store is well enough known so that it is not necessary to say much in its advertisements, but he is careful to see that each one contains a specific offer of desirable flowers at an attractive price. He says each advertisement produces a prompt response, especially in telephone orders.

L. H. Winterson has severed his connection with Winterson's Seed Store. The Batavia Greenhouse Co., according to O. Johnson, has had excellent success with its mums this season. Only a couple of benches of them are

A dodge that has been worked successfully in a great many other places brought an amateur to grief October 18, when he tried to beat the A. L. Randall Co. out of five dozen long Beauties. He said he was the new messenger of a well known retailer and got away with the goods all right, but the deception was detected inside of five

The executive committee of the Horticultural Society of Chicago is holding frequent meetings, perfecting arrangements for the chrysanthemum exhibition at the Art Institute November 5 to 7. The Chrysanthemum Society of America numbers among its members the foremost growers of mums in this country and the fact that this is the annual exhibition of that society in conjunction with the Horticultural Society of Chicago and the Chicago Florists' Club insures an exhibit of more than usual interest. Orders for the decorative material for the automobile and land shows have been received by L. Baumann & Co. A new catalogue showing the line of late fall and Christmas decorations manufactured by this concern is just off the press. F. H. Gelderman reports orders coming thick and fast and they have already started the Sunday work, usual before the holidays.

The new retail store of H. N. Bruns is almost completed. The construction work is done and all that remains is the interior finishing. There have been many delays, due to strikes, etc., but Mr. Bruns hopes to have the glass set in the show windows this week, which will enable him to move in at once.

The Market.

The last two weeks have been good from a business standpoint. There has been no frost, but the weather has been favorable and the demand for cut flowers has been good. There is a large supply of dahlias and they are the best we have ever seen. There is a wider range of varieties and they are almost perfect, although the stems are short as a result of the drought. More and more we are learning that this flower can be successfully grown in the south if it is given plenty of good, deep tillage.

Chrysanthemums are coming in more freely, although there still is a shortage. Roses continue in large supply, almost all varieties being plentiful. The Beauties are especially fine. As soon as there is a good frost, to stop the dahlias and other outside flowers, roses will undoubtedly clean up better and the prices will be better. Asters are a thing of the past, but violets are coming in, and there always is a good demand in this market for violets. Orchids are selling pretty well. We have two growers who are quite successful with them.

There has never been a better demand for bulbs than thus far this fall. The planting has begun and there is every evidence that there is to be a good business in perennials of all kinds. Buddleia and abelia are two shrubs that are growing rapidly in favor. They are both practically evergreen here and the former is fine for cut flowers. Florists can find good use for a few. We frequently see sprays two feet long on well grown shrubs. Where they are not hardy, cuttings can be rooted in the fall and carried over in pots and set out every spring. A plant out of a 4-inch pot set in May will be five feet tall by fall, as large in diameter, and will furnish hundreds of sprays from the last of June until frost. The abelia is one of the best shrubs we know for massing against foundations and in porch corners. It is also desirable for cemetery use.

CUT FLOWERS

Weather-Proof Flowers

Crepe Flowers last longer than any others; they are next to nature in form and color too, making them irresistible to lovers of the beautiful. They are particularly appropriate with Magnolia Wreaths, though this is only one of the many ways in which they may be used to advantage.

Crepe Flowers come in many forms—Dahlias, Chrysanthemums, Sweet Peas, Roses, St. Joseph Lilies, Carnations, Calla Lilies. The colors range from white in the lilies, through many colors in the other flowers: white, pink, lavender, red, pink tint and purple tint.

The Market.

Trade, considering the unfavorable weather, has been fine. Many excellent mums are on the market; in fact, the only poor kinds are Unaka and October Frost, many of these being left over. Pompons and anemones are now making their appearance and find a ready sale. Dahlias, which were exceptionally fine this year, are gone. Roses are of a good quality and plentiful. Rhea Reid and Sunburst are especially good. Double violets are coming along nicely. Easter lilies and callas are in fair supply and are cleaned up daily.

Carnations were fairly plentiful during the week, but on Monday a great scarcity was noticed, with no white to be had at all. The best in the market is Philadelphia and it is in great demand. One of the leading retailers had a large table decoration in which he used 700 of this flower and reported a well satisfied customer.

Club Meeting.

A well attended meeting of the Florists' Club was held October 20. Many retailers were present, as it was retailers' night.

John De Carteret, gardener for Ledyard's, showed some specimen blooms of the bronze mum, Ongawa, which were pronounced exceptionally fine by the members present. Fred Pautke also was on hand with a beautiful early pompon seedling known as Bronze Beauty.

Fred Schneider was elected a member of the club.

Several speakers were on the program, as follows: Walter Taepke, on "Funeral Work"; E. A. Feters, on "Buying"; J. F. Sullivan, on "Selling"; A. Pochelon, on "Expenses," and Hugo Schroeter, on "Estimating Decorations."

Mr. Feters, in speaking on "Buying," said among other things that buying and selling are among the principal factors in business. "Do not buy too many," he said, "of any one kind of basket or ribbon. Job lots of ribbons do not pay. I always take a chance on a good job lot of cut flowers, however, and find that it pays. The buyer must have a reputation for honesty, so as to have the confidence of shippers."

Though J. F. Sullivan had been announced as the speaker on "Selling," Philip Breitmeyer took the task off Mr. Sullivan's hands. "We should appreciate having a local commission house," he said. "It is difficult to measure the profit we should have on goods bought. Selling is most important of all; salesmanship is what counts. A good salesman can get any reasonable price."

Mr. Breitmeyer also carried out Mr. Pochelon's part of the program, as the latter was absent. One of his points was that "we should know each week just where we stand or what our expenses and profits are."

In J. F. Sullivan's opinion, the renting of palms is a most important subject and few get enough rental for them. The question as to what should be charged was most thoroughly discussed and many good points were brought out.

GRADUATED CORNER LADDER

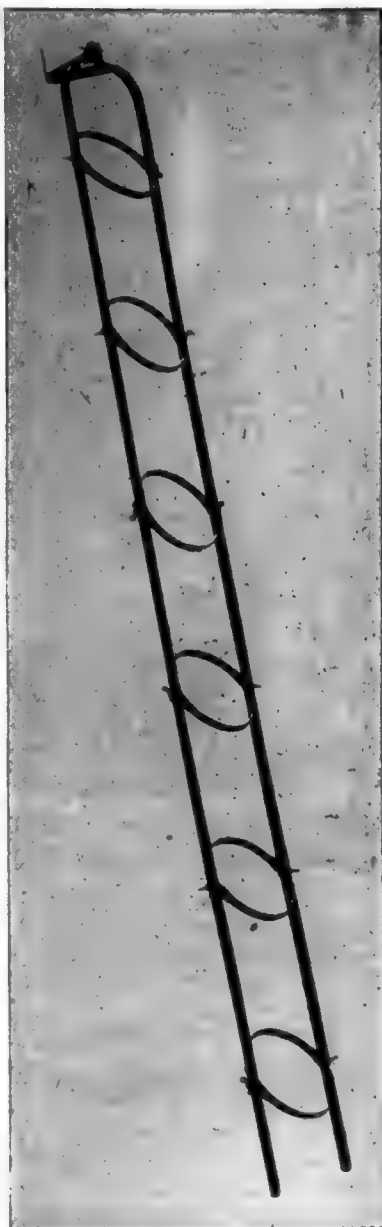

The judges of the trade's display at Minneapolis were quick to recognize that the Adjustable Corner Ladder is an article not wholly new, but of great value for the decorator. The ladder makes an ideal decoration for the corner of a room or window. The standard size, as shown in the illustration at the right, is six feet high, with six 6-inch rings. The ladder is adjustable to any angle, and each ring tilts so that plants can be placed in any position the decorator pleases. The bottom of the ladder is equipped with rubber tips to prevent marring polished floors. Finished in heavy green enamel. Sizes other than the above made on special order and prices gladly quoted on application. The price of the standard adjustable ladder is

The Perfection Graduated Corner Ladder serves the same purpose as the Adjustable Ladder and is identical with it except that the rings on the Graduated Ladder range from 5-inch to 9-inch in size, smallest at the top and largest at the bottom. "Variety is the spice of life"—sometimes. The weather during the last week has been changeable and has been rather hard on greenhouse men. Good, warm weather and then rain, followed by bitterly cold winds, do not improve things much. Still, a satisfactory amount of business has been transacted. The wholesale house has been a pretty busy place and the quantity of stock that has come and gone has been surprising. Chrysanthemums are plentiful and the local growers are bringing in some remarkably good stock.

There is no surplus of any of the more popular flowers and on Saturday there was a good clean-up. Violets are among the kinds that are apt to hang at present, but there is no great surplus. Carnations are getting more plentiful and are good in size and quality. A great quantity of cosmos has been shipped in this week, but has gone at low prices. Good tuberose are being cut, with good blossoms on each stem. Roses are abundant. The bulk of the offerings are Killarney and White Killarney. Some excellent Richmond, Taft and Ward are also coming and are selling well. Mrs. Sawyer is a fine pink rose and sells quickly. Beauties are not selling fast, but the prices remain about normal. There is a scarcity of Easter lilies, but valley is fairly plentiful. Dahlias are getting toward the end, but, considering the damage the frost did to them a few weeks ago, they have been good. The green goods market is well supplied. A few good blossoming plants would be much appreciated, but there is nothing promised in this line for a week or two. Good business is being done in the bulb trade and the season promises to be good.

ter is promised, and William Pitkin, Jr., landscape gardener, has drawn up some excellent plans. It is the intention to do away with the architectural features of former shows and make a greater use of flowers and shrubbery. The association has the promise of exhibits that will eclipse those of last year, both in size and quality.

Although the idea of an annual flower show originated with members of the Rochester Florists' Association, the scope of the project has broadened from year to year until it has become a municipal enterprise, fostered by Mayor Edgerton, by Superintendent of Parks Calvin C. Laney, by members of the park board, and by the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations. The New York state commissioner of agriculture, Calvin J. Huson, has been appointed a member of the committee and has expressed much interest in the show.

After the flower show had been discussed, George Arnold gave an interesting talk on asters.

Various Notes.

George T. Boucher has had a busy week, with several weddings and a large decoration for the K. of C. banquet at Powers' hotel. The new refrigerator is now complete and in working order and is among the finest of its kind for the business. Mr. Boucher is on a business trip to New York.

D. C. Dennison, of Clarkson, N. Y., has returned to the florists' business after a lay-off of nearly four years on account of sickness, from which he seems to have fully recovered. Most of his old greenhouses have been sold and moved away; there is only a small one left, which he has filled with carnations. He expects to erect new greenhouses in the spring. He has the best wishes of his fellow growers in his undertaking.

Henry P. Neun has a good and conspicuous electric sign placed above his large and always prettily arranged window.

Visitors this week include: W. H. Kurth, of Reed & Keller, New York; G. Reising, of Baumann & Co., Chicago; William Dykes, of Ed. Jansen, New

The Eastern Market.

The market is groaning under a heavy load of flowers. Everything seems to be more plentiful than it was a week ago. I say seems to be, because, while the demand is larger, yet the supply exceeds the demand by a greater margin than it did. The contrast to the first days of October, when stock was scarce, is striking.

The quantity of chrysanthemums coming in is large. The quality is excellent in most cases. The price is moderate for the season, low the wholesalers and growers would call it, but what can you expect when there has been no frost? Varieties of a grade that would ordinarily bring $2 per dozen go at $1.80, while varieties that ordinarily would bring $1.75 are sold at $1.50 to $1.25 per dozen. Still the market is absorbing great numbers of them at these prices. But, you ask, what of the varieties? Chrysolora is proving itself the best commercial yellow for this season. Pacific Supreme is the best pink, while Early Snow leaves something to be desired, as the leading white from its tendency to softness. Virginia Poehlmann, which has just arrived, is an aspirant for honors. Pompons have come in all the colors.

The rest of the market may be summed more briefly. Roses are in oversupply, though there is an excellent demand for the better grades. Every grower seemed to be on crop at once with white, a most disastrous coincidence, for white had been scarce the week before and may easily be scarce a week hence. There is no especial demand for the novelties. Carnations have fallen off a little, in sympathy with the rest of the market. Valley has been in oversupply, a funny thing when you consider the shortage last month, for this is the month when valley is usually in demand. The quality is fine. Violets are selling a little better, particularly the best singles. Gardenias, cattleyas and mixed orchids find better support than they have done, owing partly to lighter receipts. Dahlias are losing ground in public favor to an extent that induces the wholesalers to discourage shipments except on orders. Cosmos is plentiful.

A Panama Party.

Charles H. Grakelow celebrated his birthday, October 16, by inviting a large number of his masculine friends to spend the evening with him at 1643 North Broad street. It was a delightful entertainment and, while not wholly floricultural, there were enough of the brethren there to admit of description. The guests, numbering away over three figures, were seated at long tables. Their host, knowing full well that human machinery demands lubrication, provided lubricant most thoughtfully at the beginning. Then came moving pictures of comedy and the locks in the great canal, which Mr. Grakelow has just visited and so glowingly describes. There were funny stories told as only Mr. Grakelow can tell them, with some by others of lesser light. There were Spanish songs, and Mexican guitars, and "eats," to come down from music and poetry to the terrible slang of the day. All were hugely enjoyed. The guests of fame and flowers, most of them rising men of today, were George Auegle, Raymond Brunswick, Walter Davis, Benedict Gibbs, Alvah R. Jones,

Mrs. Claus Has Anniversary.

The local paper for the Tioga section prints a good cut of the store of Mrs. J. H. Claus and the following note:

"October 25, 1888, John H. Claus, a florist from among the foremost florists of Europe, started in business with a small capital, at 1119 Roy street (at that time Green street). He built three small greenhouses, sixty feet in length, which took all of his capital. This enterprising man at the end of the first year developed the business to double its size and had to enlarge the plant, which consisted of six greenhouses, but progress still went on until in 1892 he opened his first store, at 1917 Germantown avenue. The business increased until the premises at 1917 Germantown avenue were too small. In 1899 he had to move to larger quarters at 1959 Germantown avenue, where he had been established two months when death retarded his further progress. But all this time he had a wife, who took an exceptional interest in his affairs and carried on the business where he had left off. Mrs. Claus had the business experience of a veteran and moved to the present location, 3450 Germantown avenue, in October, 1911, where she has today one of the finest flower shops uptown. October 24 and 25 they will have their twenty-fifth anniversary, when a handsome souvenir will be given to visitors."

Canna Lilies.

There is a romance about the Chester valley that never fails to charm. Whether it be the beauty of hill and dale undulating in graceful curve as far as one can see, or the picturesque Brandywine and its branchlets, or the hamlets and scattered farm-houses with their air of peace and comfort, contrasting happily with the bustle of the cities, is hard to say. The romance is there, and you feel it from the moment you leave Wawa on the journey down that single-track road with its occasional loops where another train always whizzes past just at the right moment, luckily for you and all your fellow travelers. You are conscious of the romance as the pretty school girls glance shyly at you from the seats near by, where they appear to be studying their lessons with zeal, only where displacement of the standard sorts becomes extremely difficult. For the last two decades we have become so accustomed to an improvement on this or that existing type or color or shade of canna that it is hard to realize that the canna today has reached the point where it takes a wondrously good seedling to displace a leading variety. I have Antoine Wintzer's word for this, and on looking over the canna fields I felt that he had stated what no one could deny. Take Mrs. Alfred F. Conard, for instance. It is Mr. Wintzer's beau ideal of a pink canna, a shade for which he long strove and at last succeeded in realizing his hopes. Mrs. Conard is better today than it was last year and the year before. There is not one of the many really promising pink seedlings of last year that can equal Mrs. Conard.

Then there is Blanche Wintzer, considered quite the best white that the Conard & Jones Co. has ever had. Blanche Wintzer is free-flowering, and the flowers are of great size and the trusses enormous. Mrs. Kate Deemer is another variety that has seemed really to improve since it was first introduced. This variety was one of those that Mr. Wintzer saw in Lincoln park, Chicago, on his way home from the Minneapolis convention. It was among a half-dozen of his pets that were doing so splendidly that he said in his happy way, "It was a pleasure to see them doing even better there than at home, because you know sometimes plants do not." Olympic has done well this season, its rather unusual color showing to advantage until late. Meteor has brought joy to West Grove, for Meteor was adjudged the finest canna bed at Minneapolis. Beacon, while not a large-flowering sort, continues extremely free-blooming. Maid of Orleans is a lovely cream colored flower, charming by itself or in combination with delicate colors. Love-

The striking novelty not yet introduced is No. 4518, a Louisiana red whose individual florets are so large that when at their best they far exceed any others. Jennie Walls Fahline, primrose pink, was selected by a Pittsburgh lady to bear her name; it somewhat resembles the older variety Venus in an improved form. Panama is orange red edged with yellow; its foliage is green. Conowingo is a striking variety, having orange flowers with scarlet tips. There were a number of varieties of promise that were not in bloom that afternoon; some of them are likely to make their mark next season. Mr. Wintzer is as full of enthusiasm for his hobby as ever. You know he calls rose growing his business and canna hybridizing his hobby; he says that every man should have a business and a hobby. It is a question which gives him the greater pleasure; perhaps it is the roses from October to June and the cannas from July to September. As the gallant steed trotted back to the station, it was pleasant to think of the happiness that comes from successful achievement.

Mr. Grower:

I have had 18 years' experience in gathering forest products. Aside from Cut Ferns, we get Ginseng from the woods, and have set out large amounts in years past and now have as fine a Ginseng garden as exists under cultivation. You are the very best class to grow this paying crop. I can supply you with stratified seeds and plants, from yearlings to 3-year-olds, right from the very best garden, which is now paying larger returns from ginseng roots than any flower crop that ever was sold. Write for full particulars. E. H. HITCHCOCK, Glenwood, Mich.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Business was rather slack last week and there was a general weakening of prices. There are entirely too many flowers for the demand. The call is sufficient to take up an ordinarily good supply, but it cannot take up all of the present receipts.

Chrysanthemums are in a heavy supply. The rose crops continue heavy. Killarney and White Killarney are the leaders, although some fine Richmond, Ward and Sunburst are coming in. Beauties of the longer grades are more than sufficient for requirements. Shorter stock finds ready sale. Receipts of cosmos and dahlias are heavy and these have done more than any other flowers to bring about the present weakened condition of the market. The continuous rain we have had for three days may put these blooms out of the running if it is followed by a cold or cool snap. Carnations are cut heavily. The lily supply is still rather short. Both valley and orchids sell well. Violets are offered. There is an abundance of all kinds of greens except smilax.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

A drop in the temperature and a heavy, cold rain storm are being welcomed by the growers and storemen, who have suffered as a result of the activity in the dahlia market. As one grower puts it, "The less said about prices the better; we are actually selling goods without count." The warm weather flooded the market with all kinds of stock, greatly reducing prices. Large chrysanthemums could be had on the street as low as 5 cents per bloom, while the stores have been holding out for 15 and 25 cents. Polly Rose and Nagoya have made their appearance in the market; Unaka has been with us for some time. Everyone is praying for a heavy frost and it looks at this time as though the wish would be granted.

Locally grown single violets are improving in quality and carnations are being received in fine shape. The latter is about the only flower for which there has been a demand, aside from dahlias and cosmos.

Various Notes.

Florists were especially prominent at the ladies' night given by Kallipolis Grotto, a Masonic organization, the members of the trade forming a goodly part of its membership. The affair was given at the Hotel Willard, where the large ballroom was decorated by J. H. Small & Son. John Henry Small, Jr., was a member of the committee on decorations, and Edward S. Schmid was on the receiving line. C. L. L.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

There is little change in trade conditions since last week. With plenty of stock of all kinds to satisfy all orders, chrysanthemums have been doing rather better than usual for the first of the season. The best coming in are Chrysolora, Early Snow and Pacific Supreme. There also are plenty of the poor grades, which do not move so well. Beauties have been almost too plentiful, with quantities of Richmond, Maryland, Killarney and Ward coming in. Cattleyas and oncidiums have been in full crop. Yellow daisies, carnations, valley and lilies are good and plentiful enough to satisfy all demands. Green goods are abundant.

Various Notes.

Edward Ross, gardener for Frank Moore, Braddock and Frankstown avenues, was promoted into the hero class, October 17, when he captured a thug who assaulted a woman, robbed her and was making his escape. He threatened to shoot Ross if he came near but Ross took a chance and landed his man.

John Martin, of the McCallum Co., has been confined to his home for a week with an attack of grip.

C. Goodwin & Sons, Bridgeville, Pa., are sending some fine chrysanthemums to the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

The Polk Floral Co., of Polk, Pa., will put up another house for lettuce and spring bedding plants. There seems to be an opening for a vegetable grower.

The Indiana Floral Co. contemplates putting up additional glass for vegetables.

W. M. Deyoe, of Oil City, is consigning a fine lot of Bergman chrysanthemums to the McCallum Co.

Mrs. E. A. Williams has had a window decoration of fine crotons and baskets of dahlias.

The McCallum Co., has been making quite a run on dahlias, which seem to be more in favor than for several years.

W. L. Baker receives the entire output of the J. B. Murdoch Co., which consists of carnations and chrysanthemums.

Schenley Conservatories, Schenley park, are hard at work arranging their chrysanthemum show.

The Woodville Floral Co. has been cutting carnations, mums and lilies which they sell themselves, cutting out the middleman, but Mr. Walters says he finds he has made a mistake, as it costs more than his commission would amount to.

The John Bader Co. put up a new house this season, but reports being crowded worse than ever, having increased the stock of plants more than the glass was increased. Clarke.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

 Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

The Market.

Weather conditions continue to affect both flower production and sales. From October 1 to 19 we had only two clear days, and over four and one-half inches of rain fell on the remaining seventeen days. All flowers are showing the effects. Roses are, perhaps, in the worst plight. Many are off color; Killarney particularly so. For Killarney Queen the demand is quite brisk. Taft, Russell, Ward and Beauty are other favorites. Much of the short-stemmed stock is cleaned out quite cheaply. Carnations continue to sell well, considering that it is the mum season, and are making good prices. Chrysanthemums now are the leading flowers arriving. All varieties are later than usual. Leading sorts seen are Polly Rose, Glory of Pacific, Pacific Supreme, Halliday, Monrovia, Unaka and Ivory. The last named old variety still remains a favorite with some growers.

Violets, both single and double, continue rather soft, due to the continued warm weather. Some good callas are coming in, and the supply of lilies, longiflorum and speciosum, is just about equal to the demand. Some good Lady Lenox cosmos is seen. It sells well. Yellow marguerites are in demand, but whites do not clean up well.

Gladioli are drawing near the end. Fine dahlias are still seen. Bouvardias arrive, but only in small quantities. Pink snapdragon is popular, other colors neglected. Bachelor's buttons, pansies, forget-me-nots and heliotropes all have a moderate sale.

Cattleya labiata is much lower in price. Other orchid blooms are abundant. Valley sold well last week. Gardenias are only coming in small lots. Asparagus and adiantum are each selling rather better. Colored-leaved plants, Lorraine begonias, cyclamens, nephrolepis and palms are all selling quite well.

Various Notes.

Wax Bros. have enlarged their office and employed an additional bookkeeper to care for their increasing trade. They had two large weddings in Maine, at Calais and Bangor, October 13, and the Proctor wedding at Gloucester on the same day. October 25 they have an extensive decoration at Brookline.

W. J. Patterson, of Wollaston, continues to bring in fifty dozen fine dahlias daily in spite of the heavy snowstorm we had October 16, when the temperature fell to 31 degrees for several hours.

E. K. Mundy, of Reading, who specializes in Cosmos Lady Lenox, is the largest shipper of this popular variety to the wholesale market again this season.

Welch Bros. Co. reports business as opening up remarkably well.

The Boston Coöperative Market has decided to postpone its annual meeting and dinner for stockholders, salesmen, etc., and their wives, until November 1, at the Quincy House.

like Enchantress at its best. Mr. Fisher believes that Alice is so far superior to Pink Delight that no one will want the latter once they have tried it, and he usually speaks conservatively. He has 3,000 plants of it flowering.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, now have stands at the Boston Flower Exchange. Rose Mme. Cecile Brunner is one of their leading specialties this season.

Penn's had decorations for fourteen large weddings last week. Their shower bouquets are having a great run all over New England.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wax, who have had temporary apartments at Hemenway Chambers, have moved to beautiful new apartments at 134 Pleasant street, Brookline, where they will be at home to their friends after November 15.

Jackson Dawson, at the Arnold Arboretum, has grafted plants of Acacia pubescens in 7-inch pots which are seven feet in height. These were grafted in August, 1912. Cuttings put in at the same time are only four inches in height.

At Carbone's, on Boylston street, fall business is becoming active. There are always to be seen the most up to date novelties in plants and cut flowers, and always artistically arranged. In foliage plants Aralia pulchra is a favorite, although a good many A. Sieboldii also are sold. Nephrolepis Harrisii is well liked, also Polypodium Mandaianum and Cyrtomium Rochfordianum.

Inquiries made at local seed stores October 18 showed bulb business to have been wonderfully active. All stores reported that buying commenced earlier than usual this season and that, in spite of cables for additional supplies, stocks were never so low at this time. Darwin and cottage tulips have been the magnets. Murillo has also been in heavy demand, but all other bulbs are cleaning up well.

William Capstick, of Auburndale, is bringing in flowers of the Bird of Paradise flower, Strelitzia Reginae, which always attracts attention in the store windows.

The Andem Greenhouses, of Putnam, Conn., are shipping carnations, callas and mums to this market. Frank J.
McDonald handles the output.

A. A. Reed, of Whitman, is sending fine Cattleya labiata to the Boston stores.

William H. Elliott is cutting, among other roses, fine Killarney Queen and Richmond at Madbury, N. H. He has 35,000 carnations there this season, from which he has not commenced picking, but he says the plants look so well he is almost disposed to grow them more heavily, instead of roses.
From his Brighton establishment pot mums are now being marketed, of fine quality. W. N. Craig.

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The market last week was in a deplorable condition. Conditions were such that the wholesalers had a hard time unloading their consignments on any one day. The retailers bought generously enough, but the stagnation was mostly caused by the overproduction and the warm, spring-like weather.
A change will come this week, as today, October 20, we are having our first real cold snap, with rain and snow, which should stimulate business and reduce the quantities of outdoor flowers, which have crowded the market daily of late.

Chrysanthemums are fine and an increase in the shipments is noted daily.
All of the early varieties are now in.

Roses have been a glut in all grades and varieties, and have been selling away below their real value, with Killarneys in the majority. Violets are looking better each day and from now on should be at their best. Carnations, too, suffered all the week and the prices of them went down with the rest. While these are plentiful, only the few extra fancies bring anything like a price. Extra good valley and lilies hold their own in price. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Robert J. Windler returned home after a fifteen days' visit at Chicago. Mrs. Windler will remain a while longer and is stopping with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Zender.

The trustees of the Florists' Club have announced that J. F. Ammann, W. C. Young, W. E. Ogle and Pierre Schneider will have a four-cornered discussion at the November meeting of the club on "Profits in Cut Carnations."

William Dee and Marie L. Lammers, of the firm of C. Young & Sons Co., were married last week. The young couple received hearty congratulations from the members of the firm and friends in the trade.

Grimm & Gorly will open a branch store in East St. Louis, Ill., early next month. They have been contemplating this move for some time and there is a good field for a live florist on the east side.

Hugo Werner, of Werner & Bro., whom everyone thought a confirmed bachelor, informs us that he will soon join the married men's club and that the doctor has ordered him to drink warm water an hour before every meal. He says he couldn't swallow another drop after forty minutes.

William Holtz is back at his post at Angermueller's after a severe spell of sickness, looking as well as ever. Fred and Harry will not have to work so hard during the morning rush.

Any millionaire florist who objects to the income tax should phone Paddy Patton, at Smith's. He is willing to take over any millionaire's burden of wealth, tax and all.

The report comes from the St. Louis Seed Co., the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. and C. Young & Sons Co. that the bulb trade so far this season is ahead of last season.

The horse show, which will open next week at the Coliseum, should cause a boom for the local florists, as the show always creates a big demand for extra fancy mums, violets, roses and orchids.

R. Marshall, factory representative of the Dahl Mfg. Co., of Minneapolis, which manufactures the Dahl-Neo-Stat, has established an office here. Mr. Marshall is an expert on greenhouse heating and boilers, and has agreed to lecture before the Growers' Club at Kirkwood and the St. Louis Florists' Club at their next meetings, on "Economy in Greenhouse Heating."

Phil Goebel, Jr., of Webster Groves, reports that he had a profitable season in gladioli and will soon have a fine lot of mums ready to cut.

William Bouche and C. Fisher, landscape architects, are working on plans to lay out a big tract of land in St. Louis county, for which considerable nursery stock will be needed.

Some of the local retail florists report that they have received a number of advance telegraph orders for flowers and designs for the funeral of the late Adolphus Busch, millionaire brewer, who died recently in Germany. The funeral will take place the latter part of this week.

Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its regular monthly meeting at the Association of Commerce building October 17. P. A. Chopin presided, Secretary C. R. Panter was at his desk and a large number of members were present. The president appointed the following on the finance committee: Richard Eichling, Richard Steckler and Claude Ory.

J. A. Newsham showed some fine flowers of Mrs. H. Robinson chrysanthemum, with perfect stems and foliage; he stated that he has three houses, each 150 feet long, planted with them and All Saints' day will find them ready for sale. A bunch of Jonkheer J. L. Mock and Radiance roses, grown outdoors, were likewise greatly admired. Max Scheinuk's Robinsons were also of a high standard, and, like Mr. Newsham's, were grown under glass. J. St. Mard had a splendid specimen of Mrs. Robinson, outdoor grown.

C. W. Eichling gave a most interesting talk on the growing of outdoor cut flowers, for both the wholesale and retail trade. He recommended especially Gladiolus Francis King, asters and the different varieties of narcissi, stating that, according to his experiments, the imported bulbs, although a little higher in price, yield better results in the end.

The first of a series of exhibits of plants and flowers was held at this meeting. This one was of ferns and each firm was entitled to one entry. Five competitors entered for the three prizes offered. The first prize was won by the firm of U. J. Virgin, with a Davallia Fijiensis minor, exhibited by Richard Eichling, manager of the nursery. P. A. Chopin won the second prize with a Cibotium Schiedeii. Max Scheinuk was third, with a Nephrolepis davallioides furcans. All the plants entered for competition were splendid specimens of their respective varieties and were much admired. The individual exhibitors made brief remarks in regard to the cultivation and commercial value of their entries. Chrysanthemums will compose the November exhibit. Each firm is entitled to enter three varieties, three blooms of each. Since the first monthly exhibition was a success, the members are looking forward to a keen chrysanthemum competition at the next meeting.

Various Notes.

The formal opening of the Orchid Store, of which J. A. Newsham and H. Scheuerman are the proprietors, took place October 6. It created quite a sensation, not only with the local florists but especially with the public in general. The elegant and artistic decorations of the store and show window attracted much attention and several hundred visitors admired the rare exhibits during the day. In true keeping with the name, orchids in great masses and of rare beauty formed the principal part of the decorations of the table, mantels and modern baskets; there were also vases of such roses as American Beauty, Mrs. George Shawyar, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Milady, Sunburst and Taft; likewise of carnations and chrysanthemums. An impromptu reception was tendered in the evening to the members of the local horticultural society; the success of the new firm was toasted several times, to which the proprietors fittingly responded. F. J. Reyes & Co. report a constant increase of new customers; they are working overtime for All Saints' day, preparing artificial designs.

Abele Bros. are doing a big wholesale and retail fall business. The place is well stocked with fine, healthy plants of all kinds.

M. J. Gurtler & Bro. have, as usual, a large field of chrysanthemums and other flowers for All Saints' day; the flowers will be just right. R. E.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, O. O. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

W. S. PINO, of Providence, R. I., and Miss Edna B. Winslow were married October 16 and are honeymooning in the Berkshires via automobile.

A GREENHOUSE in which concrete is to be used throughout is one of the improvements being added by the Galloway Bros.-Bowman Co., seed growers, of Waterloo, Ia.

THE annual invasion of Holland bulb salesmen has begun, offering 1914 crop, almost on the heels of those who were selling for 1913. It has become a practically continuous performance.

ON the Marseilles boat that reached New York October 14 were fifty-four cases of French bulbs consigned to R. M. Ward & Co., raising the total imports for the season to 2,353 cases.

THE Imperial Seed & Plant Co., of Los Angeles, Cal., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000, of which $700 has been subscribed. The directors are Charles T. Rea, William W. Cawthorne, O. S. Nelson, O. W. Seastrom, F. H. Ford, M. L. Germain and Manfred Meyberg.

IT is reported that there will be little attempt to grow turnip seed this season in the vicinity of Nashville, where there has been a considerable acreage in recent years. The growers are discouraged with the results last season, when they were able to make only ten per cent deliveries on their contracts.

HENRY HIRSCH, who in August was burned out at Archbold, O., after having conducted a seed store there for several years, has leased a building at 152-6 South Erie street in Toledo, O., and will open there November 1. He expects to do both a wholesale and retail business in field and garden seeds.

L. W. WHEELER says that the northern end of San Benito county and southern end of Santa Clara county, embracing districts adjacent to Gilroy, Hollister and San Juan, is now the principal garden seed growing district of California. Over 5,000 acres will be devoted to garden seed culture in 1914, within a radius of twenty-five miles of any of the above towns. ..NOTICE OF REMOVAL..

After November 1 we will make our Headquarters at

where we have secured a very desirable tract of about 500 ACRES OF PROVEN SEED LAND, and where we will have available for irrigation purposes, if needed, a Well and Pumping Plant capable of producing A MILLION GALLONS OF WATER DAILY.

We will now be in a better position than ever before to serve the WHOLESALE SEED TRADE. We are constantly improving our stocks and believe our Onion and Lettuce to be second to none grown in the state.

We take this opportunity of thanking our friends for past favors and trust we will receive a continuance.

WE SOLICIT NEW BUSINESS and will be glad to quote 1914 CONTRACT PRICES on application.

Alto, will make headquarters at Gilroy after November 1.

VISITED CHICAGO: Joseph Schilder, of Schilder Bros., Chillicothe, O.

At the October meeting of the directors of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League resolutions were adopted on the death of Wm. Henry Maule, although that gentleman was not a member of the league.

AMONG the cargo that was lost when the steamer Volturno took fire in mid-ocean and sank were a consignment of twelve cases of Dutch bulbs for R. F. Lang and one of forty-eight bags of peas for Travis & Parks.

LESTER L. MORSE, president and manager of C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, by invitation responded to the address of welcome by the mayor at the Fresno meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen, October 16. John Valhance, manager of the Morse nursery, is the vice-president of the association, not Mr. Morse himself, as has been reported.

LOECHNER & Co. state that Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., Copenhagen, advise them all the crops of the Danish specialties, such as cabbage, cauliflower, sprouts, carrots, garden beets and turnips, as well as parsley, radish, spinach, turnips and mangels and carrots for cattle feeding, are splendid. The plants had favorable weather during the entire season, particularly during the month of September, which was the finest for many years. The seeds had ample time for their development, are well ripened and look healthy and plump.

SEEDSMEN DELUGE COMMISSION.

The Washington correspondent of The Review wired October 20, as follows: "Seedsmen all over the country today flooded the Interstate Commerce Commission with protests against putting books, circulars and catalogues under the parcel post, asserting that it will increase the postage on seed catalogues to a prohibitive extent. Today was the last day for filing petitions and the commission will go over the case, with the prospect of an early decision. The commission officials said the seedsmen were unduly aroused, as the proposed parcel post rate on catalogues would only affect catalogues weighing over eight ounces. It was said that a majority of seed catalogues are under eight ounces and will not be affected by the proposed inclusion in the parcel post. One seedsman wrote saying he would be subjected to increased rates, but most of the catalogues he cited were under eight ounces."

The danger that confronts the seed trade was first brought to the attention of a majority of the catalogue houses by the announcement in The Review of October 16 that it is proposed to put books and printed matter into the parcel post. The information was there given that the Interstate Commerce Commission would receive communications on the subject up to October 20 before undertaking to pass on the proposition under the law. That the correspondent should report the commission "deluged" with protests shows how vital the trade considers the matter as well as how universally The Review is read by seedsmen.

understood the official is in error who is quoted as saying catalogues under eight ounces in weight will be unaffected. It will increase the existing flat rate on printed books, pamphlets, catalogues and similar printed matter, when mailed in parcels up to four ounces weight, full 100 per cent. W. Atlee Burpee states that his postage on 400,000 catalogues will be increased from 4 to 12 cents for a large part of the edition. Three other catalogue firms stated that the proposed regulation would entail a loss of $80,000 in their business. It was pointed out that, with the existing low rate for such matter under the postal union laws, Canadian and English printers could print catalogues for American firms and mail them to all parts of the United States at lower rates than the American printers. James L. Cowles, of the Postal Progress League, filed a long protest in which he pointed to a long list of increases that the catalogue houses will have to stand if the proposed change is made, the most important of which "increase the existing rate 100 per cent on books weighing up to four ounces."

W. F. Therkildson, chairman of the committee on postal affairs of the American Seed Trade Association, has bent his efforts for the last few days largely to securing the assistance of the printers' organizations and caused large numbers of them to join in the protest, saying: "I can think of no better way to defeat this than to line up the printers, who are the ones, supposedly, who are to be benefited."

LOS ANGELES SEED NOTES.

The outlook for business was never brighter than at present. The hundreds of new residences going up, not only in this city but in all the surrounding small towns and settlements, create a demand that is practically constant the year around for all classes of seeds and roots, both flower and vegetable. Then, the florists' business has increased so much in the last few years that all classes of seeds, bulbs and plants for forcing are in better demand than ever. There is not likely to be any let-up in this, either, when as many as 8,000 people arrive in Los Angeles in one day, as occurred on a was a surprise party they rigged up for him and he took all the honors at the card tables. Besides the immediate family, John Bodger, Jr., Walter Bodger, W. James, Herbert George and their wives and several members of Mrs. Bodger's family were present. Mr. Bodger makes the trip from his home to the seed growing ranch every day, and his reports on crops are encouraging, notwithstanding the hot spell of a few weeks back, which matured too early much of the later seed of asters, tomatoes and other stock. Threshing and seed deliveries are now taking the full attention of all the members of this firm.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. has leased the basement of the building back of the Main street store and fitted it up as additional storage and packing rooms. Dutch and French bulbs are being handled now in immense quantities and the place will be ideal later for packing nursery stock, being cool, airy and dry. A general rearrangement of the nursery buildings is in progress, which will greatly improve the delivery facilities.

A. L. Deal, representing W. W. Johnson & Co., of Boston, England, is on a visit here in the interests of his firm. H. R. R.

to have been sold out completely. Of tulips, all the yellow sorts are in demand, and all late flowering sorts have cleared out completely. Darwin tulips are selling well. Gladioli are being lifted and promise a good crop, but the fancy prices of last year have dropped to an ordinary level.

Summer weather prevails at a time of the year that usually sees frost and the work of planting for the 1914 crop is much farther advanced than is usual at this date.

IMPORTS UNDER NEW TARIFF.

The imports of seeds during the week from October 4 to 11, the first week under the new tariff law, were only fairly heavy. Aside from the increased duty on hyacinth bulbs, the only changes made by the new law were some reductions in the rates on vegetable seeds, which have not yet this season begun to arrive in quantities. The bulb imports are included under trees and plants in the New York customs house summaries and their value cannot therefore be given, although it undoubtedly is the greater part of the $61,843 given as the total. The total value of the peas imported was $10,254. The week's imports of seeds were as follows:

Seed.	Pounds.	Value.
Anise	11,200	$ 743
Celery	37,800	6,403
Coriander	75,000	3,519
Fennel		13
Grass	106,300	7,911
Poppy	22,400	889

DUTCH BULBS STILL COMING.

The Rotterdam steamer that arrived in New York October 14 brought a good number of small consignments of Dutch bulbs. The great majority of this season's imports seem to have come in under the wire in time to escape the raised duty on hyacinth bulbs. The consignments on the boat were as follows:

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

FOR report of the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen, at Fresno, October 16 to 18, see the Nursery Department, pages 72 to 74.

EFFECTS OF THE DROUGHT

Not within the memory of the oldest horticulturist in central California have we ever been in such desperate straits for moisture as we are at the present writing. The season of 1911-12 was the driest for half a century and that of 1912-13 was practically a repetition of the previous season. No one anticipated two such scanty rainfalls. When the first season's stock dried out early in 1912, there was but little hesitancy in replanting, only to find a much worse state of affairs at a corresponding period in 1913. Two dry years in succession destroyed all chances of obtaining water from underground, except in low-lying districts, and irrigation was immediately necessary to save even a part of the crop.

To further complicate matters, during the months of February and March of the present year we were visited by several weeks of dry, hot winds. The effect of these on freshly planted stock can hardly be understood by one who was not on the ground at the time. Even where irrigation was in use the results were most unpleasant. Everyone who has had much experience in California planting knows that a hot, dry atmosphere overhead cannot be well controlled by plenty of moisture below. This refers, of course, to cuttings and small seedling stock; larger stock can be handled even in the face of extremely trying conditions when there is plenty of water handy. With growers, however, who depended on the usual ample supply of rainfall in California to get their moisture, the results in many cases were ruinous, and the writer has seen hundreds of thousands of cuttings and other small stock a total loss to the planter.

With the seed growers, who also depend on the rainfall, the season's losses, coupled with those of last year, have eaten up the profits of several previous years. Thousands of acres of peas were planted in our favored localities, only to find that the cost of the seed, the planting and the lease of the land were all contracted for, without the chance of getting a penny back.

With the orchardists and vineyardists in this section, the results are not quite so apparent, except in the newly planted places. Since many of these are on high ground and on hillsides, the percentage of young stock lost is quite heavy. One might add that early in April a severe frost was added to our other afflictions, and the grape crop suffered heavily. In bearing orchards in many places the trees are showing a tendency to die back, and in driving around the country, one cannot but notice the hundreds of wells that are being bored in the hope of getting down to where water is to be had. This is a large expense in itself, and when the cost of pumping and distributing is added as well, the amount rises rapidly. Certainly there are many places where these tactics are not necessary, but there are many more growers who do not intend to be found without water another season, in case we are treated to more drought.

With the growers of ornamental trees and shrubbery, conditions have also been far from satisfactory for the same reasons. Growths are generally poor, and unless the stock is on low, moist land, or there is an abundance of cheap water for irrigating purposes, it does not take even a practiced eye to discover that the usual healthy growth of branches is noticeable chiefly by its absence. G.

The Market.

With all the immense number of chrysanthemums now coming in, there still seems to be no glut of these flowers and on some varieties the demand has exceeded the supply. But by the time these notes appear the Bonnafons will be in full blast and there will be plenty for all, if not a surplus. A peculiar condition exists now in the carnation market; a well known wholesaler says he cannot get enough good whites, but is overloaded with all other colors; yet there are possibly more whites grown than of any other. A scarcity of white roses developed one day, but a few days later the market was loaded and this is the way with most other flowers. Reds and pinks are too plentiful. Beauties are about even with the demand. Baby roses are scarce, but good in quality. Orchids are scarce. Valley is about equal to the demand.

An abundance of good funeral work, with a considerable sprinkling of weddings and other social affairs, is responsible for keeping down the surplus of flowers.

Various Notes.

A wedding decoration running close to $1,000 in cost, at St. Thomas' church, was among the orders recently executed by Morris Goldenson. Beauty roses and smilax were the most salient points in the decoration, large numbers of each being used. The bride's bouquet was of white orchids and lily of the valley; the maid of honor carried cattleyas and the bridesmaids carried Beauty roses. John Gordon was in charge and everything went smoothly and successfully.

Another boost for the Los Angeles climate: F. Sperry, of the Los Angeles Flower Market, likes it so well that he has persuaded his father to leave the confines of historical Edinburg, Pa., to come to the City of the Angels. He arrived here October 10 and is already a booster for southern California.

Another young man is going to try his luck at the retail business; this time it is Harry Hansen, recently of the force at Wright's Flower Shop, who will open at once at Seventh and Hill streets. So far I have heard no particulars, but Mr. Hansen has had considerable experience in the best trade in this town and is decidedly popular. Everyone will wish him success and he will doubtless deserve it.

Three flower shows in one week close to Los Angeles—at Hollywood, Montebello and Santa Monica—yet Los Angeles herself is apparently unable to swing one.

The usual number of eastern growers and helpers generally have arrived here during the season of tourist fares, some, no doubt, to do well here, but others, it is feared, to waste time looking for snaps and then return to say California is "no good." Perhaps it is needless to remark that personality counts for something—also ability; the west is not now so wild and woolly that everyone who calls himself a grower is accepted as such.

Tom Wright still looks a little shaky, after his operation for appendicitis, but he keeps going and is rapidly regaining his strength. The Beauties coming from the Gardena plant are certainly fine, as, indeed, are all the varieties of stock grown there.

O. C. Saakes was among those who attended the San Francisco flower show; his name was inadvertently omitted last week.

W. A. Taylor has opened the Oviatt Flower Shop, at 602 North Pico street, with Mrs. Avery, lately in business on West Eighth street, as manager.

Walter Armacost is busy potting bulbs at the Sawtelle place. The roses coming in are fine in color and stem.

John Morley, park superintendent of San Diego, called here on his way to Fresno to attend the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen. Theodore Payne left on the same train with Mr. Morley, October 15. The attendance from Los Angeles will not be as large as usual, owing to the counter attraction of the San Francisco show.

The Freeman-Lewis windows continue to be the talk of Fourth street and are exceedingly attractive.

Before the busy season again starts in earnest, another kick is perhaps in order as to the way funeral and other flowers are handled in this city. Boys on motorcycles, bicycles and crowded street cars take out choice pieces and flowers with absolutely no protection, and, as far as I know, only one retailer has any kind of delivery wagon. The advertising value of a neat delivery car would more than pay operating costs; yet none has appeared as yet from our retailers and only one from a wholesaler.

The H. N. Gage Co. has been incorporated and will in future be known as the H. N. Gage Co., Inc., with offices at 536 South Broadway, Los Angeles. The nursery business has been added to that of the wholesale flower business, the large grounds at Montebello giving the firm additional facilities along this line. It is a close corporation, no shares being offered for outside subscription.

The Market.

Business is gradually increasing in every line as the season advances. The frost has about killed the outside stock, with a few exceptions. Cosmos and dahlias are to be had in limited quantities. There is a good cut of roses, with satisfactory flowers and stems. Beauties are still rather short-stemmed, but move well. Carnations seem rather late this season and there seems to be a general scarcity, especially of the white varieties. The supply of mums is gradually increasing, but they are still far from a surplus. Bonnaffons are being shipped from the California market. Orchids, valley and violets are scarce. There has been considerable trouble with cold storage valley pips this season; often two-thirds of them produce no flowers.

The Market.

Business would be better if more stock could be had. As it is, the florists are pretty hard pressed to make any showing. Carnations have not been so scarce for two years, and the supply is not increasing at any considerable pace. Many of the flowers coming into town are being shipped out by the wholesalers. Roses are a little more plentiful, but they are not coming in as we should like to see them. California violets are in the stores and on the streets, but they are of extremely poor quality. A few home-grown violets are coming in and being quickly snapped up. Some good orchids are on sale. Chrysanthemums, both local and California stock, are selling well. In pot plants ferns and palms are all that are being sold.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held its annual meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing year October 14. There was a large attendance, a more than usually good attendance of the retail trade and a hearty meeting. The following officers were elected: President, Thomas Wylie; vice-president, John Holze; secretary and treasurer, Fred Gust; executive committee: J. J. Bonnell, Ira Wilson, Tom Rhoades and Carl Melby. A discussion of the violet peddlers resulted in the appointment of a committee to try to get them off the streets. The question of purchasing Duch bulbs was also discussed and the members were unanimous in deciding to purchase their next season's bulbs direct from the Holland growers and to give no orders to traveling salesmen. J. J. Bonnell gave an interesting talk on conditions in Paris and London, both of which cities he visited on his recent tour, and he also gave an account of the methods of growing and handling bulbs in Holland.

The first show of the newly formed Dahlia Society of Seattle was held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce October 10 and 11. Considering the lateness of the season, the quantity and quality of the blooms shown were wonderful. The trade exhibits put up by R. W. Gill, of Portland, J. A. Sahli, of Brighton, and J. J. Bonnell and E. G. Benson, of Seattle, contained many new and the best of the older varieties, while the amateur exhibits also had many of the new kinds. R. M. Buttle, president of the society and an enthusiastic dahlia grower, is endeavoring to have the dahlia adopted as the official city flower. The society, though still in its infancy, promises to be an important factor in floriculture in this city.

Olaf J. Wingren, of La Conner, Wash., is a large grower of bulbs in addition to his dahlias. He grows narcissi, tulips and hyacinths, and asserts that forcing bulbs grown in this state are far superior to imported ones, that they bloom earlier when forced and send up better flowers. If they can be grown as cheaply here, what's the matter with keeping in this country some of that money that annually goes to Holland?

PREPARATION FOR EXPOSITION.

Another era in the progress of preparation for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition will open this month, when the work of transplanting thousands of trees and shrubs from the Presidio nurseries to the exposition grounds will begin on a large scale under the supervision of John McLaren, landscape engineer, assisted by his son, Donald McLaren.

Of no less significance in the development of the exposition site is the preparation of the soil for the great South Garden, a tract of about fifteen acres, lying between the already completed service building and the Baker street entrance to the grounds. This large area of flowers and decorative trees and bushes will surround the Palace of Horticulture and the Festival Hall. The grading of the South Garden is nearly completed. Rich loam from the fertile valleys of California is being spread over it, and on top of this tons of fertilizer are being laid, as in the case of the esplanade of the Marina, along the bay shore to the north, which is now verdant with grass grown from seeds planted but a few weeks ago.

For months John McLaren and his son have been gathering trees, shrubs, plants and flowers from all quarters of the earth, and several acres of land in Tennessee Hollow, on the Presidio military reservation, have been turned into nurseries and conservatories to receive them. Here they have been nurtured preparatory to transplanting.

The horticultural treasures are among the sights of the exposition grounds during the period of preparation. In the Presidio nurseries are more than 200,000 trees, shrubs and plants. The trees are in boxes, stayed with wire to keep them from upsetting. Some are placed along the driveways leading through the reservation; others are in clusters or small groves in convenient spots. The plants and flowers are in beds and conservatories, and even in their present temporary resting places are delights to the eye.

The first trees to be transplanted will be the acacias, veronicas, pines, cypresses and eucalypti. There will be several varieties of each of these, particularly the pines and acacias. The transplanting will begin with the trees and shrubs for the esplanade of the Marina and there will be representatives of many lands among them. For instance, there will be acacias and eucalypti from Australia, palms from Central America and the Canary Islands, pines from Norway and Alaska, cedars from Japan, cypresses from Italy, and so on through a long list.

It is expected that all the trees, shrubs and plants for the exposition will be transplanted from the Presidio nurseries and conservatories to their final beds on the grounds by the autumn of 1914, in ample time for them to take firm root and grow vigorously before the exposition opens, February 20, 1915.

The South Garden will be more than a garden. It will be a horticultural exhibit in itself, for it will include large numbers of beautiful and rare trees and shrubs, and myriads of wonderful flowers will be placed in its several flower beds. The world has been ransacked for the best specimens of its flora, and with such success that the Panama-Pacific Exposition will present

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

ON the New York manifest of the steamer Volturmo, which caught fire and sank in mid-ocean, was a consignment of twenty-four cases of trees for P. Ouwerkerk.

ARTICLES of incorporation have been issued to the Divide County Nursery Co., of Crosby, N. D., with a capital stock of $15,000. The incorporators are Edwin Bondo and Ludwig Palm, of Ambrose, and Alfred M. Johnson, of Crosby.

AN order has been entered by Judge A. G. Dayton, at Wheeling, W. Va., in the bankruptcy case of the American Horticultural Co., of Chicago, appointing Arthur Langhans, Max L. Hess and Chester G. Whitham as appraisers of the property of the firm at Wheeling, known as the Wheeling nursery.

THE value of the mere presence of a nursery to a town is shown by the offer of $3,500 by the Commercial Club of Eaton, O., to the Ernst Nurseries, of Moscow, O., for the removal of the plant to that place. The firm expects to be firmly established at the new quarters by next February and will make its spring shipments from there.

A VERDICT for $5,520.12, with interest from March 7, 1912, was returned by the jury in favor of Cornelia and Catherine Cruger, proprietors of the Shateme Nurseries, of Barrytown, N. Y., against John T. Withers, of Jersey City, N. J. The defendant was formerly an agent for the concern and the suit arose from a dispute over the final accounting, the defendant claiming a set-off.

ARTICLES of incorporation have been issued to the Horticultural Selling Co., of Elyria, O., with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are W. P. and C. D. Bates, D. Y. Robertson, S. O. Weldon and A. E. Lawrence. The company has been operating on a small scale for two years, but will now build a warehouse and engage in the business of importing stock from abroad, especially shrubbery for landscape work.

THE citrus growers of Florida met at the state university at Gainesville October 13 to 16 for the citrus seminar, at which the various phases of citrus culture were discussed. The university professors gave some interesting lectures and H. Harold Hume, of the Glen St. Mary Nurseries Co., of Glen St. Mary, spoke on "Citrus Growing in Southern Europe," on which he is well posted, as he was sent recently by a New York syndicate to look over some citrus holdings across the water.

TREES for reforestation are being supplied the landowners of New York by the State Conservation Commission, which has at present over 13,000,000 young trees to be delivered. The trees are sold at nominal prices for planting under regulations set by the commission. They are from 2 to 4 years old and include white pine, Scotch pine, Norway spruce, red pine, European larch, white ash, tulip poplar and black locust. The commission also supplies Carolina poplar cuttings and basket willow cuttings.

The nursery at East Onondaga of the State College of Forestry of Syracuse University supplies the larger part of the trees.

CALIFORNIA NURSERYMEN MEET.

Officers Elected.

The officers of the California Association of Nurserymen for the ensuing year, elected at the final session of the third annual convention, October 18, are as follows:

President—D. W. Coolidge, of Pasadena.

Vice-presidents—I. E. Mabey, of Fresno; John Vallance, of Oakland; Walter Birch, of San Diego; E. Wightman, of Chico, and Arthur Cann, of San Jose.

Secretary-treasurer—Henry W. Kruckeberg, of Los Angeles.

For the meeting place of the 1914 meeting San Diego was selected. The general understanding was that San Francisco would have the 1915 convention.

The Third Annual Convention.

The California Association of Nurserymen held its third annual convention at the Fresno hotel, at Fresno, Cal., October 16 to 18. The subjects which came before the meeting were of widespread interest and attracted an exceedingly large and enthusiastic attendance. The nurserymen represent a large part of the wealth of this state and their convention is an important matter to the public, which was invited to all the sessions.

One of the most important matters presented was that of rural credits. Invitations were sent to the bankers of California to attend the first session, at which E. J. Wickson of Berkeley, and Col. Harry Weinstock, of San Francisco, delivered addresses on this subject. These men were both on the commission appointed by the governors of the various states to consider the European systems, with an idea of establishing a similar system here. Walter D. O'Brien, manager of the bond department of the Agricultural Credit Corporation of California presented the plans of that organization for loans to farmers. A lively discussion followed the addresses.

The two expositions to be held in California in 1915, at San Francisco and at San Diego, were discussed in their relation to the nursery business. George A. Dennison, chief of horticulture of Exhibits a Feature.

The west end of the main lobby of the Fresno hotel was a center of interest, for here, set off by decorations, were the exhibits of the nurserymen from the various parts of the state. All the local nurserymen had fine displays and decorations. Among the exhibits on display at the hotel were the following:

Potted and balled plants, C. C. Morse & Co., of San Francisco.
Emperor grapes, F. H. Wilson, of Dinuba.
Burlap, Ames, Harris, Nevill Co., of San Francisco.
Pottery, J. A. Bauer Pottery Co., of Los Angeles.

Important Trade Addresses.

Besides those mentioned above, there were a number of addresses on trade subjects which were of great interest to the members of the association. All were followed by discussions under able leaders that brought out additional points of importance. The program of these was as follows:

"The Fruit Tree Grower and the Fruit Tree Planter," by W. F. Chandler, of Fresno.

"The Grape: Raisin, Table and Wine," by R. Schmidt, of the Department of Agriculture.

"The Work of the New Viticultural Commission," by Wiley M. Griffin, commissioner of the sixth district.

"The Tree, the Fruit, the Bug, and the Man," by F. S. Schell, Fresno county horticultural commissioner.

"Inspection and Disinfection in Field and Salesyard," by Wm. Wood, Los Angeles county horticultural commissioner.

"Experiences with Tropical Fruits in California," by D. W. Coolidge, president of the Coolidge Plant Gardens, Pasadena.

"How the Grafter Grafts the Walnut," by Edwin Gower, of Fowler.

"How to Make the Home Garden Beautiful," by Ernest Braunton, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles.

"The Plant, the Flower and the House Beautiful," by Mrs. F. E. Cook, of Fresno.

"New Creations in Floriculture," by Mrs. W. H. Francis, of the T. B. Shepherd Co., Ventura.

"Some New and Valuable Flowering Plants," by Fred H. Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles.

"Healthy Competition in the Nursery Business," by W. R. Wood, of the Roeding & Wood Nursery Co., Los Angeles.

The convention closed with a sight-seeing trip Saturday afternoon and a banquet at the Sunnyside Country Club in the evening.

BONDS UNDER QUARANTINE ACT.

A circular has been issued by the Treasury Department to the customs officers, calling attention to the restrictions in the bonding privileges of importers of nursery stock for commercial purposes. The instructions are as follows:

"The secretary of agriculture calls particular attention to the bonding privileges provided for in regulations 4 and 6 and states that the provision in regulation 4 for delivery in bond can only apply to commercial shipments from countries with inspection service; in other words, that shipments accompanied by a certificate of inspection may be entered without examination under the said act at the port of entry. The secretary adds that, on the other hand, however, nursery stock from countries without inspection service, from which shipments must necessarily arrive without a certificate of inspection, should not be admitted to bond pending the production of a permit for the reason that, under the present regulations, commercial importations from such countries are not permitted.

"It is further pointed out by the secretary of agriculture that the only

that will be a great seller with every retail florist

THE Japanese Dwarfed Kumquat is the smallest of the orange family. The fruit of the variety of "Neiwa," shown here, is large, round and looks very much like a small orange. The "Neiwa" is the sweetest of all the Kumquats. It is called the "Sugar Sweet." The color of the fruit is a beautiful golden yellow. The rind is smooth and aromatic, and is eaten with the fruit. The latter is delicious as an appetizer or dessert.

Japanese Dwarfed Kumquats are very fine for pot culture and become fully developed even in the smallest pots. When grown as a pot plant during the winter months, they come into bloom early and

A Christmas Holiday Suggestion

The Florist will readily appreciate the possibilities of using this tree. As a novel and beautiful table decoration, the Kumquat stands alone. This feature is always very popular and especially so during the Christmas holidays. The idea of passing the "orchard" from guest to guest, and letting them pick their dessert from the living tree has met with great success. This is only one example of hundreds of novel uses. Among others are as house plants, for children's parties, for window decorations, as gifts, etc.

There is a demand for Kumquat Trees in your community. Are you going to supply it, or let this profit go to someone else? Remember a demand is always supplied.

We offer you Kumquats at a price which will enable you to introduce them on a basis which will permit no competition.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Business was good throughout the city last week. All the retailers are pleased with conditions at this time. Stock is getting more plentiful, but is still far from an oversupply, especially in carnations, mums and violets.

Florists' Club Organized.

The St. Paul Florists' Club was organized Tuesday, October 14. A good representation was present at O. R. Eckhardt's store, where the meeting was held. The officers for the new club are as follows: President, Frank Gustafson; vice-president, O. R. Eckhardt; secretary, Charles R. Fuhlbruegge, and treasurer, N. C. Hansen. The executive committee is composed of Wm. Swanson, A. Lauritzen and Gus. Colberg. This is the first city club to be organized among the florists here and from the enthusiasm shown it will no doubt be a success.

The next meeting will be held at the wholesale house of the O. R. Eckhardt Co., Tuesday, October 28, at 8:30 p. m. sharp. All enthusiasts are invited to show their good fellowship by being present.

Various Notes.

The funeral of Mrs. Walter Demmler, of Eau Claire, Wis., was held at the residence of the deceased's parents, 1806 Hague avenue, this city, Saturday, October 18. Walter Demmler is the successor to his father in the florists' business at Eau Claire.

Chas. Vogt has been confined to his bed the last two weeks, but is now on the road to recovery.

E. Lemke was a visitor in the city from Grand Forks, N. D., and spent a few days calling on friends. His mother accompanied him on his return to Grand Forks.

Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, was in St. Paul recently. C. R. F.

What every Carnation grower really needs is a true Rose-pink Carnation.

The Philadelphia Pink is the one--

When we say that

is the Ideal rose-pink Carnation in every respect (color, productiveness, size of bloom, non-splitting calyx, length of stem, etc.), we state the plain, unvarnished truth.

But we do not want you to take our word for it. Investigate for yourself, before you place the order. We want you to see it growing. Come to Detroit at any time during the season, and see for yourself about thirty-five thousand plants—as clean, as vigorous, and as perfect as any you ever had the good fortune to have on your own place.

PHILADELPHIA is a producer superior to many and second to none. Its color is of that shade of rose-pink which sells at sight and which your average lady customer would designate as "perfectly lovely."

Place your order early to insure early delivery and remember that you reserve the right to cancel it if upon seeing the Philadelphia growing you conclude it is not up to your expectations.

NOTE:—Any Florist Club or individual wishing sample blooms can have them by addressing a postal to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, 38 Broadway, Detroit, Mich.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

The weather throughout the last two weeks has been ideal and seemed to have a wonderful effect on stock, which is of fine quality. It was a little too summerish, however, to create a great stir in business, for, aside from a good demand for funeral work, there was not much doing. There are still a good many outdoor flowers blooming in the yards, such as cosmos, dahlias and even geraniums, and as long as such conditions prevail, florists cannot expect business to be rushing. The day for chrysanthemums is here and the supply becomes heavier each day. Now that chrysanthemums are in, other stock has to take a back seat to a certain degree. Carnations are coming along well; roses are in good supply and the quality good; lilies, also, while not overabundant, are coming along well.

Various Notes.

The Dayton Florists' Club met last week for the first time after the summer adjournment; in fact, it was the first meeting since the spring flood. The club met at the establishment of J. F. Young, at 37 East Fifth street. The attendance at the meeting was good. Miss Olive Ritter was taken into the club. The plan of cooperative advertising was discussed, and E. E. Schaefer was appointed to prepare a paper on this subject, to be read at the next meeting.

J. W. Rodgers, manager of the Miami Floral Co., has moved his family to Dayton from Monroe, O. November 6 the Miami Floral Co. will give a reception at its greenhouses to the Dayton public, in order that Daytonians may become better acquainted with the company and that customers may see where the flowers they buy are grown. This company has recently added a Ford truck to the delivery service.

Miss Katherine Young is still busy decorating the interior of the retail store and when complete it will have an extremely attractive appearance.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lampert, of Xenia, O., were Dayton visitors last week.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Market.

Stock did not seem to clean up so well last week, as large quantities of the late varieties of outdoor stock were coming in. Carnations, roses and violets are getting better every day, and the cold weather that has now arrived will hasten the improvement. Mums are good and can be had in all colors; the varieties are Polly Rose, Pacific Supreme, Halliday, Chrysolora and Unaka.

Club Meeting.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Lancaster Florists' Association, held October 16 at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, thirty members were present and several interesting talks were given. J. P. Siebold, of this city, talked on "Success in Growing Snapdragons"; J. H. Linky, of Mountville, on "Benefits of the Club," and L. S. Landis, of this city, on "Commercial Greens." S. S. Pennock, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, talked interestingly about the florists' business in general.

The subject of coöperative buying was discussed, and the matter was referred to a committee composed of B. F. Barr, M. J. Brinton, E. P. Hostetter, Elmer Weaver and Chas. B. Herr, for a report.

It was decided to hold a ladies' night at the social hall of the Breneman building, November 6. A large attendance is expected on that evening, as the committee in charge has arranged a fine program. The club also wishes anyone who has a few good flowers of any kind to send them to this meeting, as a large table will be reserved for the exhibitors. C. F. E.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—The annual exhibition of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society will be held here October 30 and 31. Those wishing schedules should address the secretary, Herbert G. Cottam, Wappingers Falls, N. Y.

Kearney, Neb.—The Davidson Floral Co., of Holdredge, has purchased the interest of H. S. Thompson in the Kearney Floral Co., of which he has been the manager for the last two years, and the firm is now the sole owner of the business. J. E. Charleston, an assistant of Mr. Thompson, will take over the management, and the latter will probably engage in some other line of business.

The Market.

With outside stock still coming in to this market, stock is plentiful. Dahlias are a glut on the market and, selling at any price, hurt, of course, the sale of carnations, roses, etc. A good, hard frost at this time would materially help to strengthen the market.

Chrysolora is still queen, or king, of the early mums. A few early pompons are beginning to show themselves. The grand parade of these little money-makers will soon be on, and, judging from the quantities grown in this locality, there will be plenty and to spare.

Women's Florist Club.

A meeting is called for Monday evening, October 27, at the Florists' Club rooms, 2610 Detroit avenue, northwest, of all the ladies in any way interested in the florists' trade, whether in the employ or in the immediate family of a florist, for the purpose of organizing a women's florist club. The purpose of this organization is purely social, and it is being started with the intention of entertaining the wives of visiting florists during the coming flower show and during the convention of the American Carnation Society here in January. All ladies interested are urged to attend this meeting.

Needless to say, the floral decorations at the home of the bride's mother, where the ceremony took place, were a subject of much comment; they were of pink and white roses and smilax.

The biggest slaughter In Ferns - Ferns - Ferns The World has ever seen

To make room for our big importation of Azaleas and Palms, which arrived Saturday, October 18, from Antwerp, per steamer Marquette, we decided to close our eyes, and will give you a Boston, a Scottii, a Whitmani, a Scholzeli or a Glatrasii Fern, as big as a basket, worth from 50c to 75c—look! for only 25c and 30c each! One week only—you never again will get a chance like this.

Hit the Bull's Eye and Buy from the Firm that Protects your Interests

Now the time has arrived to stock up your store and greenhouses with the best quality stock the market produces. Every careful florist is turning over page after page of The Review and is anxious to find the ad—what their favored friend, Godfrey Aschmann, has to say. He is the fellow that has his heart in the right spot. They all can depend on him; he always has a smile and protects their interests. Look at that frog in our ad of Oct. 9—it means protection (not tariff protection). It means what all florist stores want—Protection to the Florist Trade; retail store keepers' protection.

TESTIMONIAL

Mr. Godfrey Aschmann, 1012 W. Ontario St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 15th inst. has been received. We beg to state that the plants arrived in very good shape. We wish to express our highest approval of your method of packing and the general quality of goods you sent us.—W. J. Robinson."

NEW CROP AZALEA INDICA

has just arrived per Steamer Marquette from Ghent, Belgium, and had on board for me 75 cases of Azalea Indica of only the best selected varieties, raised for us for the last twenty years by an Azalea Specialist in Belgium. I tell you frankly that by buying your Azaleas from us you never get disappointed, either in size or variety. Our eyes are our judgment, you will receive just what you pay for; if you send us 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00 or more, you will receive your full value with no measurement quotations. We have the reputation for that; we do the right thing for everybody; and, my friends, please don't get angry when I say, cash with order, please—the profit on Azaleas is so small that we can run no risk whatever; we are not in business for fun, we cannot afford to pay duty, freight, etc. (which is from 50% to 60%).

AZALEA INDICA FOR CHRISTMAS FORCING.

Deutsche Perle (double white), Simon Mardner (double pink), Vervaeana (large flowering double variegated rose), White Vervaeana (double white), Pharailde Mathilde (double variegated) and Mme. Petrick (double early pink), 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50.

AZALEA INDICA, EASTER VARIETIES.

We have only those varieties that are much in demand, namely, Mme. Van der Cruyssen (double pink), Simon Mardner (double pink), Vervaeana, Niobe (double white),

All goods must travel at purchaser's risk only. Cash with order, please. Please state if you want stock shipped in or out of pots. All plants 25 at 100 rate

CARNATIONS.FIELD CARNATION PLANTS.*SPLENDID STOCK.

I am receiving an extra large number of testimonials as to good results from my last year's stock. This year my stock is even better than last year. Irrigation took the plants through the drouth without injury and they are bright, thrifty, bushy plants now. A Syracuse grower who had some stock this fall says it is doing better than his own stock. A Raleigh, N. C., grower writes: "Send me 440 W. Enchantress; fine, bushy plants like what we got before (Sept. 10)."

PROTECTED FROM FROST.

Killing frosts do not ordinarily hit this locality until after Nov. 1. Stock left will be protected from frost, in good shape. Plant carnations to follow "mums." If necessary, orders can be held a limited time if a deposit is made.

Mr. A. A. Gannett,
Dear Sir:—

Will you please let me know if you are going to have any Boston and Whitman ferns this fall. I have been looking in the Review for your ad., but I have not seen any. I have had ferns from you 2 years and I can not get as good anywhere. If you will have some I will wait.

The name of this party may be had on request. I have a large stock, about one-half being the new Whitman compacta which is a prettier fern than the old Whitman, is bushy and does not revert to the Boston frond. I guarantee every shipment to please you absolutely.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed with reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. Cash.

L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

USING 4-INCH RETURNS.

I have under construction a greenhouse 16x40, with no side glass. The boiler room, at one end, has its floor three feet lower than the greenhouse floor. I plan to run a 4-inch flow under the ridge, and to use 4-inch returns under the side benches. How many returns will be needed to heat the house for carnations? The mercury in this part of New York state frequently drops to zero, and occasionally to 12 or 15 degrees below zero. I propose to use 4-inch boiler tubes for piping, on account of their low cost in proportion to the radiating surface. B. C. M.

A carnation house 16x40 feet can be heated by means of one 4-inch overhead flow and four 4-inch returns.

WILL NEED A SEPARATE FLOW.

I am erecting another greenhouse on my place and want some information in regard to the piping. A hot water system is used. The houses run east and west. The old house, A, is on the north side and is 20x60. The boiler is at the northwest corner of this house. The new house, B, is 9x60. Its north wall is the south wall of house A and is four feet high. The south wall of house B is three feet six inches high and contains no glass. House B has an uneven-span roof, with 4½-foot rafters on the north side and 8-foot rafters on the south side. The height to the ridge is six feet eight inches. I wish to run a 2½-inch flow at the east end to the center of house B and divide to return under the benches. This flow would be connected at the southeast corner of house A. Would the present 2½-inch flow on the south plate of house A supply the returns in house B, as well as those in house A? I am located in southeastern Michigan. J. M.

The south flow pipe in house A is not large enough to supply, also, the returns needed in house B. A 2½-inch flow pipe should be run under the ridge to the east end of the house, where it should connect with six 2-inch return pipes, which can be placed under the benches. The flow pipe should start at the boiler, if possible, but it would answer to carry a 3-inch flow from the boiler to the southwest corner of house A and there connect the present flow in house A, and also a flow pipe leading to house B. If 50 degrees will answer in house B, it will only be necessary to use four 2-inch returns in addition to the 2½-inch flow pipe.

HEAT FROM RESIDENCE.

Please advise me as to the best method of heating a greenhouse with hot water from a boiler under the residence. The boiler is a 1,000-foot, hot water American Ideal and it supplies 550 feet of radiation in the home. It is located about twenty feet from the greenhouse. The boiler, I think, is too high for direct radiation from it, because the pipes would have to be incased under the ground for a short distance, which would place them lower than the boiler, thus hindering the circulation. The boiler, however, is so constructed that a water coil could be inserted. This would be about three feet lower than the pipes underground. The greenhouse is 20x30 and is nine and one-half feet high to the ridge. The walls are four and one-half feet high; the lower eighteen inches are concrete, the remaining three feet are glass. The greenhouse stands five feet west of the dwelling house. The pipes from the boiler could run under the dwelling house for a distance of fifteen feet and then be incased under ground outside for a distance of five feet before entering the greenhouse. Which would be the wiser plan to pursue—to depend on the boiler only or to use a water coil? Would the water coil supply sufficient heat to keep the temperature at 60 degrees in zero weather? It could be placed under local waterworks pressure. The greenhouse contains four benches, two for lettuce and two for various plants. I am located in Indiana.

Could I head directly from the boiler in the home, if the pipes incased outside should lie a few inches lower than the boiler, by using some machine or contrivance of some kind, such as a heat regulator, which would make a forced circulation at all times? E. L. L.

From the data given it is not possible to determine how much of a drop, if any, must be given the flow pipe in order to connect it with the top of the boiler and have it enter the greenhouse under ground, but if the drop is only a few inches it will be better than to use the coil in the heater. It is possible that the pipe can run from the heater to the greenhouse without being dropped, if the flow pipe is carried above ground. It can be wrapped in asbestos packing and enclosed in a sewer pipe, if deemed desirable. However, I would recommend, even though the flow pipe must be given a drop in order to enter the greenhouse under ground, that this be done rather than to run a coil into the boiler.

To heat the house to 60 degrees, I would run a 3-inch flow to the greenhouse. Divide this into three 2-inch flows, one of which can be under the ridge and the other on the wall plates. Carry these to the farther end of the house and connect with twelve 2-inch returns. It will be helpful to have the system connected with the waterworks, as this will be much the same as using a mercury generator.

HEATING A MISSOURI RANGE.

I have a greenhouse, or a range of greenhouses, seventy-five feet square, built after the Dietsch plan, which gives me five apartments, running east and west, each 15 x 75. There are no partitions, only the iron posts that support the valleys every fifteen feet. The outside walls are four feet high and are made of two courses of matched boards, with paper between. The valleys are six feet high and the ridges ten feet. The boiler is a horizontal tubular, sixteen feet long and sixty inches in diameter, and contains fifty-four 4-inch flues. There is a 2-foot steam dome with a 4-inch opening and there is a 2½-inch inlet at the bottom of the boiler. The boiler shed is at the north-west corner of the range and along the west side. The bottom of the boiler is a little below the level of the floor of the greenhouses.

If I use steam heat, how many 1¼-inch pipes will be required for each apartment, to maintain a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees? What size of flow pipes will be needed? On account of the boiler not being lower, will it be necessary to use a steam trap? If I use hot water, how many 2-inch pipes and what size of flows will be needed? In that case, will it be necessary to install a generator? In order to use hot water, what changes must be made, especially with reference to the size of the outlet and inlet? J. W. M.

The openings in the boiler are all right for steam; in fact, a slightly smaller flow might be used, but I would suggest that you start with a 4-inch and reduce to 3-inch after taking off a feed pipe to the nearest house. Use a 2-inch feed for each house and run it under the ridge, or run a 1½-inch pipe on each plate. For 60 degrees use three 1¼-inch pipes on the outside walls of the outer houses and six pipes on the posts between the houses. For 50 degrees reduce the number on the posts to five pipes. A steam trap would be necessary, unless the returns are two feet above the boiler.

For heating the plant with hot water, the return opening should be of the same size as the flow. Even then the capacity of the mains will be too small, but if the flow and return pipes to the nearest house are connected within a few feet of the boiler, this difficulty will be largely corrected. In piping the houses for hot water, run a 2½-inch flow upon each plate and place three 2-inch returns on each outer wall and five upon each row of posts under the valleys, for 50 degrees. In houses where a temperature of 60 degrees is desired, use four returns on the outer walls and seven on the posts. One 2½-inch flow and return can be used to connect with the main flow and return. Carry up the main flow to a height several feet above the boiler and attach a generator.

are built to fill the requirements of the florist having 3000 sq. ft. or less of glass. Constructed of the best quality steel, strongly riveted and calked, with no cast-iron sections, they will give the most perfect service possible.

With a magazine holding enough coal for twelve hours or longer they keep an even and continuous fire for that length of time, requiring little or no attention.

For the man who does his own firing they are ideal, permitting him to enjoy a full night's rest without worry as to the condition of his fire.

THE BOILER WITH A PURPOSE—

TO HEAT A GREENHOUSE

"Superior to them all"
is the verdict of all who
use the SUPERIOR STANDARD.

MADE IN 9 SIZES

The SUPERIOR STANDARD is designed specially for greenhouse work after a close study of what was needed. It is easily cleaned, although it has more flues than any other boiler, but—more flues give more heat; more flues require less fuel; the water heats quicker and hotter, because the volume of water heated by each flue is smaller.

All we ask is a chance to show you.

FERTILIZER DEPARTMENT

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Prices last week were the highest that this city has experienced in many months, having ruled fully a third higher than is usual at this period. It is merely the application of the principle of supply and demand. There was an extreme shortage of carnations and an indifferent supply of chrysanthemums, with an almost extraordinary call for flowers because of numerous antenuptial showers, receptions and other functions, and many weddings. Roses are in good supply, but the weight of the market falling upon them has caused a material stiffening in prices all along the line.

Various Notes.

A. J. Olsen is erecting a one-story garage, 20x24 feet, at his place on Pawtucket avenue, East Providence.

H. C. Neubrand and wife have returned from a two weeks' vacation trip to Tarrytown, N. Y.

Lawrence Hay, of East Providence, and Charles H. Hunt, of this city, are cutting some fine blooms of Chrysolora chrysanthemums.

Johnston Bros., on Dorrance street, continue to put up some of the most attractive windows.

Daniel Le Roy Baxter is owner of the Flo-Ree-Da Floral Co., of Pawtucket, according to the statement filed with the city clerk of that city.

S. J. Reuter & Son, of Westerly, have sold to Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., a half interest in their new crimson rose that is to be pushed as a novelty in 1915.

The will of Sarah C. Hogg, widow of Walter Hogg, was proved in the Municipal Court in this city, October 14. The Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co. was appointed executor, with a bond of $400,000.

Albert Holscher is cutting a fine lot of chrysanthemums, in white and yellow.

Charles E. Allen is about to build a range of greenhouses at Woonsocket for growing vegetables and flowers. He has just resigned as keeper of the city asylum, where he has been for twenty-six years.

A greenhouse is to be erected for Darrell N. Harvey, at 114 Waterman street.

Olney H. Williams, of 950 Hartford avenue, has been named by the Republican party for reelection as a member of the Johnston town council.

Prof. E. K. Thomas, of the extension department of the Rhode Island State College, at Kingston, was married last week to Miss Alice E. Beale, at her home at Sandwich, Mass.

Willis S. Pino was married October 16 to Miss Edna B. Winslow, of this city. After an automobile trip through the Berkshires and New York, they will be at home November 1.

W. H. M.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Frank C. Boehrenbach is planning the erection of another greenhouse at 124 Cleveland avenue.

33 Union Stock Yards, ChicagoFALL SPRAYING

Fruit trees, ornamental trees, evergreens and all hardy stock susceptible to scale and other insects, should be thoroughly sprayed before freezing weather sets in.

SCALINE will cleanse your trees and shrubs of San Jose, Oyster Shell and other hard scale, red spider, larvae of the aphid, grub of the locust borer and other insect pests which secrete themselves in the crevices of the bark during the dormant season.

SCALINE is composed of a high grade of petroleum and the properties of the well known fungicide, FUNGINE; mixes readily without agitation; is used at a strength of one part to twenty parts water; containing no sediment, can be applied through the finest spray nozzle, and requires no drenching of the plants, but simply misting them, to get effective results.

The Market.

Business the last week has been exceptionally good; everybody seemed to have his share of the trade, both retail and wholesale. Funeral work was the prime factor; next to it was decoration work, which seemed to be heavy for an ordinary week. Roses are in good condition; the quality is fine and the demand seems to take care of all that comes to this market. Beauties are in heavy demand, but it is expected that they will be plentiful in a week's time. Mums are selling fast; the call for them is quite heavy, but the supply has more than doubled in the last week, so that it is expected that there will be an oversupply next week. Carnations are coming in with longer stems and better flowers, both in color and size. The demand is away ahead of the supply.

Various Notes.

A. Newell says business has been better with him since the fashion show week and last week showed a big increase.

T. Noll has a fine lot of florists' supplies that he has just received. His third week of business was far beyond his expectations, especially in the cut flower department. Business was far ahead of the stock that was consigned to him.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had a good run on funeral work last week, most of it on out-of-town orders.

W. J. Barnes has been busy decorating for the last two weeks. He is cutting a fine lot of mums at present and next week will have a fine lot of mum plants in bloom in 6-inch pots.

J. Austin has been down at Excelsior Springs for the last three weeks.

The Apollo Flower Shop has made a change in the window ice-box. They have made the space larger and put large, heavy plate glass mirrors on the sides and back.

Henry Kusik & Co. had to double their consignment on roses, as they seem to sell well with them. Mums have been scarce with them and they cannot get enough of them.

Patrick Larkin met with another automobile accident last week and was badly bruised. W. J. B.

Woodstock, Ill.—George Moneur has, in addition to his flower business, a good trade in vegetables. He has at present about 60,000 celery plants, which he sells to Chicago hotels.

THE CHICAGO SPRAYER

The many advantages of this sprayer over all others cannot be realized until tried by yourself. It is virtually an artificial rain that does not damage the most delicate flower or plant. At 40 pounds pressure it will cover an area of $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet 15 to 20 feet from nozzle. The brass perforated plates are interchangeable for fine or coarse spraying. The sprayer itself is all aluminum, weighs $\frac{3}{4}$ of a pound. Shipped anywhere on approval with a guarantee to be superior to any sprayer operated on this principle. Attaches to the end of any hose. Price, each \$2.50.

At last an inexpensive greenhouse

Made of Sunlight Double Glass Sash

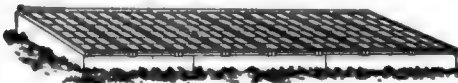

This greenhouse is 11 x 12 feet, glazed top and sides, with the famous Sunlight Double Glass Sash. 8 Standard Sash (3x6 ft.) form the roof and 8 "Pony" Sash (34½ x 38½ in.) form the sides.

The double glass principle

The Double Glass principle with the ½" air space between the two layers of glass make it seldom necessary to heat this greenhouse even in the coldest weather.

It is shipped ready-made in sections.

The sash are easily removable to use in season on hot-beds and cold-frames. Thus the sash do double duty—first on a greenhouse work room in which seed are sprouted and the tiny plants set out in flats, and then, when needed, on the hot-beds or cold-frames outside.

The Relation of Light to Greenhouse Culture.

(Being extracts from a series of experiments made by the Mass. Agricultural Experiment Station.)

In July The Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station published a Bulletin making for the first time public the results of a series of exhaustive experiments conducted by them for the past few years.

Many of the results are so intensely vital to greenhouse owners and prospective builders, that we have made selections here and there from the text and are giving them below:

1. Lack of light is responsible for many greenhouse diseases.
2. The old type of greenhouse was crude in construction, especially as regards light. The modern tendency is to build larger houses; to use stronger material, casting less shade; and to use larger and better quality glass.
3. Large houses can be constructed relatively more cheaply and managed more easily because there is a less rapid change of atmospheric conditions, etc. This helps to eliminate many greenhouse troubles.
4. Morning light is more intense than afternoon light, our experiments showing a difference of 10 per cent, and ranging as high as 30 per cent for some houses.

6. The location of a house as regards points of the compass has a bearing on the practice of syringing plants, the yield of the crop, and to a certain extent on fungous infection.

7. To obtain the best results in a house running East and West, the house should be from 15 to 30 degrees north of east. This enables the plant to take advantage of the more intense morning light and the crop can be syringed with less danger from infection.

8. There appear to be no important differences in the light in a greenhouse at different distances from the glass, practically the same light being obtained at 5 feet as at 30 feet.

The Experiment Station Bulletin contains over 40 pages devoted to the subject. You should read it from cover to cover. The Experiment Station has just written us that they will be very glad to mail copies of the Bulletin to all who may write for them.

Cypress a Strong Wood.

Do you know that when it comes to strength—carrying strength, bearing-a-weight strength—Cypress is not a weak wood?

CYPRESS IS STRONGER THAN ANY SUBSTITUTE LUMBER.

There's no wood now used in greenhouse construction, none that is claimed to be suitable for the work, that will carry the weight imposed on sashbars and ridge-pole; with half the stiffness and certainty that Cypress can. Look at the old Cypress greenhouses and note that sashbars are not sagging—they are not like an old "sway-backed" horse.

CYPRESS is not spongy—like other woods we might name.

CYPRESS is not filled with little pin holes, like other woods we might name (though the immortal "pecky" is, of course, strictly a "holey" wood).

CYPRESS is not "dozy" like other woods that are being urged as a substitute for it in greenhouse construction.

NOW FOR A FREE BOOK.

Vol. 3, CYPRESS Pocket Library, is the Greenhouse Book; Vol. 20 is the Farm Needs Book; Vol. 4 is the new Barn Book—Full of Free Plans for Farm Buildings. Then Vol. 36 is the Carpentry Book, one you want, especially if you are handy with tools. Vol. 37 is the big Silo Book. These are filled with working plans and specifications. Get any of them, or all, if you can use them.

EDITION COST US $7000.00

The Greatest Green- house Catalogue

EVER ISSUED BY ANYBODY

Cloth bound. 384 pages, 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 9. Weight, 36 ounces. Give express office, as book will come by express. If wanted by mail make this clear in your letter.

THIS is our 45th year as greenhouse manufacturers. Every year has brought forth new ideas and improvements. Moninger greenhouses today are the standard by which others are judged. It is a mark of distinction to own a Moninger house, and when a place is advertised for sale, a fair price is assured if the owner states "Moninger material in the greenhouses." Every greenhouse owner knows of "Moninger Quality," and ought to know about "Moninger Service." By service we not only mean quick delivery of material. That is desirable, but our service does not stop there. It extends into every detail of the business. We work together like a family. When you send us an order everyone of our employees gets acquainted with you and takes an interest in your business. It is this sort of personal service all along the line that counts. You get best quality here and we take care of our customers.

DON'T you get awfully tired of having a wholesaler tell you that this is scarce and that is scarce? Whatever you happen to want always seems to be scarce. Don't you get tired of having your orders filled in a slipshod, careless manner? Wouldn't you like to buy from an up-to-date house that will give you a little attention and service? Wouldn't you like to buy from a house that treats their customers as well as you have to treat yours? Wouldn't you like to buy from a wholesaler who understands something of your end of the business and realizes that you have to sell at a profit the flowers he ships you? You don't want anything for nothing, but you want your money's worth. We don't claim to give you anything for nothing, but we will give you your money's worth. We have plenty of Roses and Carnations of all grades, Beauties, Mums, Pompons, Orchids, Violets, Valley, Lilies and everything else in flowers, and the best greens at the most reasonable prices.

Buy where you get the best goods, the best prices, the best service.

Our Wonderful Beauty Crop

IS ATTRACTING MANY VISITORS TO OUR PLACE

—visiting florists that pronounce them the finest they have ever seen. Ever since August 1st our daily cut of them has been very heavy, and the cut seems to be increasing every day. One section of two houses, each 25 x 275, cut in one day recently 1000 fine, long-stem Beauties. The total number of Beauties in those two houses is 6000. We have a total of 40,000—magnificent, perfect foliage, extra large heads and fine color. And—BEST OF ALL—the dealer can get these in as perfect condition as when they are cut, as they go direct, without rehandling or delay or damage in any way, to the man that sells them. This means a great deal in the handling of Beauties.

Our PINK KILLARNEY are most all of the double variety—they keep better and have larger heads than the single.

Our RICHMONDS have good stem, dark green foliage, perfectly clean and extra large buds.

Our WARDS are in perfect health and cutting in large quantity, as we grow 12,000 of them.

Our BON SILENES are one of the best roses for corsage work. Our new novelties are attractive for any store.

Our CHRYSANTHEMUMS are of the finer and new kinds, and are all grown single stems. We have wonderfully fine, large flowers of the two new whites—Alice Salomon and Wm. Turner.

Our CARNATIONS are strong, fine flowers.

Shipping direct from the greenhouses, carefully packed, combined with moderate prices that do not change daily, is surely a strong bid for your business.

Dwarfed Japanese Kumquat

Reproduced from photo of one of our plants—try some of the $1.00 size.

A Christmas NOVELTY

that will be a great seller with every retail florist

THE Japanese Dwarfed Kumquat is the smallest of the orange family. The fruit of the variety shown here is large, round and looks very much like a small orange. It is the sweetest of all the Kumquats. The color of the fruit is a beautiful golden yellow. The rind is smooth and aromatic, and is eaten with the fruit. The latter is delicious as an appetizer or dessert.

Japanese Dwarfed Kumquats are very fine for pot culture and become fully developed even in the smallest pots. When grown as a pot plant during the winter months, they come into bloom early and are continually burdened with blossoms and with small, medium and large ripe fruit.

A Christmas Holiday Novelty

Every Florist will readily appreciate the possibilities of using this dwarfed, fruit-laden orange tree. There is a demand for Kumquat Trees in your community. Are you going to supply it, or let this profit go to someone else? Remember a demand is always supplied.

We offer you Kumquats at a price which will enable you to introduce them on a basis which will permit no competition.

The plants are shipped with roots balled in soil and burlap.

Shipments in any quantity can be made after November 15. It will probably be possible to ship large orders by freight during the latter part of November, but after that the weather will probably be too cold for freight shipments.

Many florists are placing orders for Kumquats for Thanksgiving. We feel sure they will reorder in much larger quantities for Christmas.

PUTTING LIFE INTO THE SHOW WINDOWS

The Retail Florist gets the most out of that valuable asset, the show window, by giving an individual touch to displays

WHEN a salesman has been talking in a general way about the excellence of a certain article, he suddenly stops short and says, "Now I'll give you a concrete illustration." Then he tells you of a particular case, or, if it is possible, he gives you a demonstration of the point he is trying to prove. If it is the beauty of the article that is in question, he shows the article and reproduces the peculiar circumstances under which it is used, so that you may judge. The salesman that is able to produce the concrete illustration is usually the one who gets first to your checkbook, for he is the kind that convinces.

Now a window that presents concretely a beautiful display of flowers for a certain purpose and in a certain style is the kind that gets to other people's checkbooks, because they are convinced that the florist who shows that kind of flowers and decorates a window in that fashion is the man to sell them flowers and do their decorating. Other people's checkbooks are in the same place yours is, and you have to go after theirs by the same route that others go after yours. It is matters of this kind that convince us that the Garden of Eden was in Missouri.

A Window Is a Salesman.

The difference between a window in which are placed a few vases of flowers, a pot plant or two, and a window in which a concrete idea in the flower line is presented, is the difference between two kinds of salesmanship, the salesmanship that lets the customer come after the flowers and the salesmanship that goes after the customer. The first window means to the passer-by no more than flowers; it means flowers in spring, summer, autumn and winter, but it never means any more. A garden, too, means flowers; a florist's window should be more than a garden. It should present the idea of flowers to sell and, more concretely, it should present a certain kind, or style of flowers to sell.

If a customer comes into your store and asks in an undecided sort of way what you have to sell, you find out for what purpose he wants flowers and immediately show him the best kinds of the season for his need. You would never, in reply to his inquiry, unconcernedly utter the single word "flowers." Why not? Because, you respond at once, it is too indefinite. That is the trouble with too much window decorating; it is too indefinite and presents to the passer-by no concrete reason for buying. The man in the street is, in a way, always an undecided, yet possible customer. Upon glancing at a window of the indefinite type, a person passes on without any definite thought in his head about the stock; when he reaches the end of the block he will not even remember having passed a florist's shop. You would fire a salesman who had not more effect than that on possible customers; well, that is what ought to be done to the old, indefinitely decorated window.

What Gets the Public.

As an illustration of the kind of window that gets the attention and the purchases of the public, no better can be given than the window reproduced on this page. The first glance tells you it is a bride's window. The main figure, the center of the scheme, is the beautiful young bride, on whose waxen cheek the manufacturer put the tint of roses. In her hand is a bouquet that shows what the florist's handicraft is capable of producing. Vases of orchids, baskets of mums, valley, etc., show the splendid stock from which the florist is prepared to supply the young man with ammunition to win his bride. To the right are a few plants, doubtless intended to hint to the married man that he should buy those for his wife in order to fulfill the second half of the quotation on the card that they "lived happily ever after."

Requisites of a Good Window.

This is, however, only one window scheme of its kind, and there are as many more in the florists' fertile brains as there are fish in the sea. With the many new features in decorations brought out each autumn by the supply houses, and with the increasing resources furnished by the numerous electrical appliances of one type or another constantly devised by inventive geniuses, the possibilities of window decoration are becoming greater and greater. The modern show window, with its ample space, many mirrors, excellent lighting, and other conveniences is a valuable asset.

Other lines of business are utilizing this asset and making it a prime factor in selling. It is no exaggeration to say that the florist has at hand the materials for the finest windows of any trade. It is a fact that special windows got up by florists, such as have been shown from time to time in the pages of The Review, have made strong impressions and exerted a powerful influence on the public from the sidewalk side of the windows, and this influence has reacted to the tremendous advantage of the florist who has taken the time and care necessary to decorate the window.

The main requisite is the use of a central idea, a figure that draws attention and makes a definite impression on the beholder. The simplicity of the decoration is a point in its favor, for it promotes its definiteness.

A Window that Held a Crowd in Front of the Reck Store in Kansas City.

New Store of the R. C. Kerr Floral Co., Houston, Tex.

The more simple the background the better. The foreground is the place to put the flowers and plants, but limit the number of varieties you show; here again, the fewer the better. The most effective way is to show the flower you want to feature, or the flower of the season. Just now it is well to build the whole display to show off your chrysanthemums. At other times, however, roses or carnations might as effectively be made the point of the decoration.

It must always be remembered, however, that some things are not to be attempted. For instance, one cannot well show a dinner table decoration in a window, no matter what a masterpiece he might devise, for such a decoration is necessarily flat, while the first page in the decorator's primer says that a window display must always stand up. This will not at all hinder many other displays fully as effective as a decoration and far more powerful as money-bringers.

KERR'S NEW STORE.

During the summer many florists from New York to Minneapolis were called on by Robert C. Kerr and wife, of Houston, who were posting themselves on the latest wrinkles in flower store equipment. The results of their trips are embodied in the new store, corner of Main and McKinney streets, in Houston, which was opened October 11. They had a formal opening from 4 to 10 p. m., giving carnations, roses and ferns as souvenirs. Twenty-five hundred people attended between those hours. "We consider it quite a success," said Mr. Kerr. "A formal opening in the flower business is a new departure in Houston. We felt a little shaky at first, as we did not know whether the people cared so much about the opening of a flower shop and we figured that we would have about 1,000 people visit our store. You can imagine our predicament when we had to take care of 2,500, but as we had quite a surplus of plants every lady who came in the store was given a souvenir.

"The interior of the store is finished in white, all fixtures being white enameled. The building is two stories high and by spring we hope to make this a mass of flowers and plants; in other words we are patterning somewhat after the famous Fifth avenue flower shop, and we believe by spring we will have the most beautiful corner of flowers in the United States."

THE POMPON SEASON.

From all parts of the country comes the report that the pompon and single chrysanthemums are being more heavily grown this year than ever before and that the supply in the wholesale markets does or will far exceed last year. There does not seem to be any decrease in their popularity. It is true that some of the high class stores say their exclusive trade has not taken to them with the same eagerness as when they were more of a novelty, but it seems to be quite otherwise in the stores where boxes and bunches of loose cut flowers are largely sold. The little mums are popular and they can be sold in great quantity now that the prices are where the average flower buyer can take hold. The retailer who neglects the pompons and singles is missing an opportunity.

The big, fancy mums that had to be retailed at $10 per dozen are not so much in favor as they were a few years ago. While the stores that have wealthy trade still have use for an occasional dozen of the flowers that sell at from $4 to $6 at wholesale, the bulk of the business even in the best stores is on blooms that sell at retail at from $2 to $5 per dozen. The retailers feel that the growers can make just as much money growing this grade of stock, two or three blooms to the plant, as they ever were able to make growing larger flowers on single-stemmed plants.

NEW GREEN FOR RETAILERS.

I am sending a sample of myrtle, of which I wish to know the botanical name. I have shipped some to Fleischman and Mangel, well known retailers at Chicago, and I am of the opinion that if it were used in place of boxwood the effect would be beautiful on account of its gracefulness. What do you think of it? S. A. S.

The plant is Leiophyllum buxifolium, sand myrtle, also called dendrium. This is a pretty little shrub, like box in appearance, which might prove a useful addition to the evergreens used in decorative work. While admitting that this will make a desirable evergreen for the purpose named, I cannot but regret that so beautiful a little ground-cover plant is threatened with mutilation, or maybe, in the near future, something akin to extermination. C. W.

The Little Mums Have Become Wonderfully Popular.

THE AUTUMN FLOWER SHOWS

SAN FRANCISCO.

Perfect weather for the four days of the annual flower show at San Francisco resulted in the attendance this year being excellent. Norman court at the Fairmont hotel is a beautiful place for such an exhibition, and growers and retailers alike put forth their best efforts to make a display surpassing any of the former exhibitions. The Norman court was well laid out. Grouped about a great center mass of tropical trees and ferns, skillfully placed and hanging from boughs and tree ferns were oncidiums, phalaenopsis and cattleyas. The exhibit of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. was the largest and was awarded the trophy for the best display of orchids in bloom arranged for effect with other plants. It also was awarded the Flood trophy for the best exhibit in the show, this being the second year that the Flood trophy has been carried off by the MacRorie-McLaren Co. The same exhibitor won the first prize for the best palm, best tree fern and best Adiantum Farleyense.

The Panama-Pacific Exposition Co. surprised growers and retailers alike by entering a striking group of bougainvilleas massed against the south wall. This exhibit was full of significance as to the color that flowers are to lend to the exposition. John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, sent a fine display of greenhouse plants.

For the most artistic table the California Florist won first prize. The table was a clever one and reflected much credit on Julius Eppstein, manager of this concern. A huge umbrella over the table was covered with adiantum and asparagus, and decorated with Oncidium varicosum. The base was a clever arrangement of yellow and red tuberous begonias. A silver cup was Mr. Eppstein's prize. Pelicano, Rossi & Co. were awarded second prize for a rose table. In the basket class Pelicano, Rossi & Co. were winners and to them was awarded the prize for fifty or more chrysanthemums arranged for effect.

Eugene de Sabla, a private grower, was the largest exhibitor and prize winner, taking first prize in twenty-six classes all the way down the line from group of foliage plants to best cabbages. Other non-commercial exhibitors who made many entries and took a number of premiums were George J. Young, William H. Crocker, George A. Pope, Mrs. F. M. Smith, Charles T. Crocker and S. E. Slade. Louis Stern received a certificate of merit for a special exhibit of orchids and ferns, as well as second prize for group of foliage plants. Miss Irene Vaughn was given special mention for an exhibit of dahlias.

It was gratifying to the members of the trade to be favored by such worthy visitors from Los Angeles as Wm. Hertrich, J. Dieterich, Fred Howard, Charles Turner, George Wolters and O. C. Saakes. They acted as judges in the exhibition and seemed well pleased with the San Francisco flower show.

W. A. H.

SANTA MONICA, CAL.

The chrysanthemum show managed by the Woman's Club of Santa Monica was held October 17. Columbia hall was again chosen as the venue and considerable interest was shown. The exhibits taken as a whole compared quite favorably with those at the spring show, while the staging and arrangements for the judging were greatly improved. The end of the hall nearest the stage and one side were entirely taken up with the exhibits made by Walter Armacost & Co. These were made up of, especially fine cut flowers and plant stock in great variety from the firm's greenhouses at Sawtelle. The Col. Appleton mums were a revelation, grand solid blooms of immense size borne on long, leafy stems, perfect in every way. Wm. Duckham was also perfect, the color of this fine pink variety being much better than usual. The carnations were equally good and the roses fine. My Maryland is evidently not dead yet at Santa Monica, for this fine rose was shown at its best. Killarney Queen showed its fine color and, interspersed with the cut flowers, were extra fine plants of nephrolepis, crotons, Cocos Weddelliana and other species. It was an extremely fine exhibit, well staged.

Miss Sadie Thomas was down from Pasadena with "fifty-seven varieties" (one on Sadie from C. Heinz Morton) of her new chrysanthemums; this energetic lady had extra fine Japanese, single and pompon flowers, well and tastefully arranged. Mrs. W. S. Laurie, also of Pasadena, put up a most creditable and beautiful display of dahlias in pompon, single, peony and cactus forms that was quite a feature of the show. It would be unwise to name any of the varieties, as the number of fine ones was too large. The Los Angeles Flower Market showed fine Bonaffon mums, good carnations and roses, Fred Sperry showing his versatility by putting up a pretty and attractive exhibit. C. Morton, W. W. Felgate, of Sierra Madre, and H. R. Richards judged the exhibits. A baby show was held in connection with the flower show, but there were other judges in this competition.

H. R. R.

MONTEBELLO, CAL.

The men in Montebello, it seems, have always been too busy to start a flower show, and so the ladies got busy and the initial attempt, held at the high school building October 17 and 18, was an unqualified success in every way. Not only were the exhibits such as would have held their place in many a larger and more important affair, but the townspeople turned out in fine shape and there were many visitors from Los Angeles, Pasadena and other cities near by.

Naturally the commercial growers of the district were called upon by the ladies and they responded finely. Dieterich & Turner put up some splendid roses that would have done credit to and taken a high place in any competition. Several dozen roses were staged in considerable variety, among them being American Beauty, Richmond, Prima Donna, Mrs. Geo. Shawyer, White Killarney, Mrs. Wakefield Christie-Miller, Lady Alice Stanley, Killarney Queen, My Maryland and Antoine Rivoire; this was a grand exhibit. Howard & Smith took up the whole of one room with their exhibit of fine kentias, back of a showy and choice lot of dahlias in great variety, some pretty foliage plants and ferns. Polder & Groen showed elegant cut carnations, roses, cosmos and other flowers in good shape. The Figueroa Street Nursery and the Star Nursery both put up interesting groups of Japanese conifers, chrysanthemums and other stock, and other local growers showed of their best. Henry Kunst showed potted plants of various peppers. The amateur growers had a lot of pretty flowers in considerable variety, well staged. The judging was in the hands of H. R. Richards, Henry Kunst and J. B. Menasco; Mr. Menasco, being present, kindly helped out in place of P. D. Barnhart, who was unfortunately prevented from coming.

PASADENA, CAL.

The Flower Show.

The annual chrysanthemum show of the Pasadena Horticultural Society opened October 23, at the Maryland hotel. At the time of writing it was too early to say anything about either the attendance or the awards, as my visit was cut short when the tent was being cleared for the judges and other business called me away from the city of beautiful homes. But the quality of the exhibits, especially of the cut flowers, was away beyond anything ever before seen at Pasadena. The remarkable point about it all is, too, that the flowers were all grown outdoors, or with only a canvas covering, and I am sure that no better flowers will be shown in any eastern exhibition this year than the best of those shown at Pasadena. The exhibitors are worthy of note, but, as already stated, time prevented my noting them.

The trade groups were well up to the average. Just inside the entrance, Ed. Rust had a fine group, arranged in an effective manner. If any criticism was possible, it was on the score of too much good material, the background being slightly crowded. Some particularly fine specimens of Impatiens Holstii brightened the group; there were also some neat little plants of Pteris Wilsoni. A rare—possibly unique—fern is Polypodium Lingua cristata, a deeply crested form I had never seen before. The brightly colored Æschynanthus cordifolius was also shown; quite a novelty here. Fine ferns, foliage and flowering plants and rare specimens of palms all helped to make up a splendid showing.

Howard & Smith were to the fore, as usual, with a showy exhibit of dahlias, herbaceous flowers and roses, a group that was worth more attention than I was able to give it. Right in front of it R. Mackenzie, gardener for J. Craven, exhibited some splendid specimen ferns, notably a fine Adiantum

EXPRESS COMPANIES LIE DOWN.

Accept Inevitable and Reduce Rates.

Express rates actually will come down December 1; the new rates prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission will be put into effect without further objection on the part of the carriers. This is the announcement made by Walker D. Hines, legal representative of the companies in the fight they have made against the order of the commission, which is equivalent to a general reduction of from fifteen to twenty-five per cent, and is expected to save shippers from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000 per year.

It had been expected that the express companies holding that the block rates and revised practices ordered by the commission would so seriously menace their revenue, the order would be taken into the federal courts as confiscatory of their legal property rights.

According to advices from Washington, Mr. Hines, in giving notice to the commission that the companies would abide by the rate order, stated that while his clients had great apprehension as to the outcome from putting into effect the block rates and revised practices recommended by the commission, they hoped thereby to win the confidence of that body, the state commissions and the public.

The notice that the companies will accept and put into effect the lower rates as ordered by the commission will therefore come as pleasant news to shippers generally, some of whom have been expecting long and protracted legal obstructions to the rate reductions.

Full details of the commission's order reducing rates, together with its special bearing on the florists' business, were given in The Review at the time the order was entered, issues for August 7 and August 13, 1913.

LEAF DISEASE AND MILDEW.

What is the matter with the inclosed chrysanthemum leaves? H. & C.

The leaves reached me in rather a dried-up condition. There were some traces of the leaf disease that is common on chrysanthemums, but there were much plainer traces of mildew, for with this the leaves were badly affected. Keep the atmosphere as dry as possible and syringe the plants with one of the sulphur solutions, which will clean out the spores of both leaf disease and mildew. Chas. H. Totty.

EARLY CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

How can I make my chrysanthemums flower quicker? I have them in 6-inch pots, with good soil. F. S.

You cannot force your chrysanthemums into flower. Let them come along naturally. Any attempt to forward them will result in more harm than good. In order to have earlier flowers another season, you would do well to stock up on early varieties, which you may not have, such as Golden Glow, Smith's Advance, Unaka, Robert Halliday, October Frost, Polly Rose, Glory of Pacific and Chrysolora. C. W.

BUDS WITH BROKEN STEMS.

Under separate cover I am sending you some chrysanthemum buds, of the varieties Miss Clay Frick and Leslie Morrison, in the hope that some of your experts can tell me the reason why the buds are breaking off. They do not snap off at once, but break gradually. As you can see, they are first buds. The plants are in fine condition. As far as I can see, none of the other varieties are affected in the same way. H. L. O.

It is easy to see what was the matter with the buds. Clay Frick and Leslie Morrison are both strong rooters and the fine rooting system had been pushing more sap up into the bud than it could take care of. When this happens, nature steps in and cuts off the flow of sap by severing a part of the stem. I have seen on more than one occasion, on the tables at flower shows, splendid exhibition flowers which, on investigation of the stem beneath, were found to be almost hanging by a thread.

The obvious remedy in the case of H. L. O. is to cut out feeding on both varieties, and do not give any more water than is absolutely necessary to keep the plants from wilting.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held at the Art Institute, Chicago, at 7:30 p. m., Wednesday, November 5.

The committee for examining new chrysanthemums will meet at the exhibition of the society in Chicago to pass on any seedlings submitted to them at that time.

The committee has examined new varieties as follows:

At New York, October 18, R. B. Burge, white, single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows: Color, 39; form, 19; substance, 18; stem and foliage, 16; total, 92.

At New York, October 18, J. 29, light yellow, Japanese, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows on commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 12; fullness, 9; stem, 13; foliage, 13; substance, 13; size, 8; total, 86. Exhibition scale: Color, 14; stem, 5; foliage, 5; fullness, 14; form, 13; depth, 12; size, 23; total, 86.

At Cincinnati, October 18, Oconto, cream white, Japanese incurved, exhibited by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on commercial scale: Color, 15; form, 12; fullness, 8; stem, 15; foliage, 12; substance, 15; size, 9; total, 86.

At Chicago, October 25, R. B. Burge, white, large flowered single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows: Color, 38; form, 18; substance, 15; stem and foliage, 18; total, 89.

At Chicago, October 25, Gladys Duckham, white large flowered single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows: Color, 32; form, 15; substance, 15; stem and foliage, 16; total, 78.

At Chicago, October 25, Stanley Ven, lavender pink, large flowered single, exhibited by Chas.

H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows: Color, 33; form, 18; substance, 17; stem and foliage, 18; total, 86.

STEBERL'S FIRST CUT.

When one cuts his initial crop it is an event that is usually attended by a certain amount of pride. Just so with Steve Steberl, who is cutting his first flowers from the houses he purchased last April from A. C. Rojahn and located on Yuba street, Forest Park, Ill. The plant comprises some 20,000 square feet of glass, devoted to chrysanthemums, carnations, freesia and stevia. The picture shown was taken with the first cut of mums and Charles Steberl is standing in the walk holding the blooms, while his brother, Steve Steberl, is standing on the benches to the right and on the left is Peter Samuelson, a grower. This venture is the first for Steve Steberl in the flower business, although his brother, who has charge of the growing for him, was for a number of years connected with H. N. Bruns, the Chicago valley grower. So far Mr. Steberl is well satisfied with his newly adopted business and says he has acquired a real love for flowers. His stock is sold in the Chicago market, the photograph from which the illustration was prepared having accompanied a shipment to Zech & Mann.

MARTIN WAX IN EUROPE.

Martin Wax, who, with Mrs. Wax, recently returned from Europe after a honeymoon trip, and whose photograph appeared on page 9 of The Review of October 16, left Boston for Liverpool August 5 on the S. S. Franconia. He spent a week in London seeing some of the leading sights, particularly of horticultural interest, calling at the large flower stores on Regent street and elsewhere. He noticed many handsome baskets, although flowers at that season were not shown any better than here. In Paris, where a week was spent, baskets five to six feet high, containing a foot or so of damp moss, were filled with long-stemmed pink roses similar to Mme. Gabriel Luizet. At the high-class stores these baskets were much in vogue, and roses were said to keep in them fresh for two or three days.

About ten days were spent at Paris Plage, a summer resort on the English channel, three hours distant from Paris, and here Mr. Wax entertained his sisters and a nephew, who are prominent in musical circles. One day was spent at Cologne on the Rhine, and ten days in Berlin and surrounding cities. The thousands of window boxes in all the suburban sections greatly impressed him, and the gardens seen were far superior to those seen about the same type of residences in America. There were some fine flower stores in Berlin. Schmidt's, on the Unter den Linden, was the largest and finest he had ever seen. He believes there is nothing even in New York to approach it.

While in Berlin he entertained a niece and nephew who train symphony and opera performers. From Berlin he went to Bremen for a few days. The grounds of the summer homes there were beautifully planted with flowers. Passage was taken home on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. After arriving in New York, a few days were spent visiting the prominent retailers there. The trip proved an enjoyable one, and many new ideas for store improvements were gained. C.

GARDENERS' CONVENTION.

All arrangements have been completed for the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners, which, as the guest of the Horticultural Society of New York, will hold its business session and election of officers for the ensuing year at the American Museum of Natural History, New York city, Monday afternoon, November 3, at 2 o'clock. The annual banquet at the Hotel Endicott will follow immediately after the business meeting. Entries of meritorious exhibits or novelties for the association's award, a certificate of merit, which are to be exhibited at the flower show of the Horticultural Society of New York, which occurs at the Museum during the convention, must be filed with the secretary of the National Association of Gardeners not later than November 1.

Many out-of-town members have already signified their intention of attending both the convention and the banquet. M. C. Ebel, Secretary.

PLANTING TREES AND SHRUBS.

Nearly all trees and shrubs of a deciduous nature can be just as well, or better, planted in fall than in spring. At this season the nurseries are not overcrowded with orders and the stock will be freshly dug and not taken from storage sheds where it has been packed in sand for several months. The ground is usually more moist at this season than in spring, and there is more time to do planting properly. The roots, also, are far less likely to get dried up now than in spring. There are some shrubs, such as weigelas, Viburnum plicatum and V. tomentosum, buddleias and ligustrums, which do better if spring planted. Practically all others, including loniceras, spiræas, philadelphus, syringas, most of the viburnums, etc., do much better if fall planted. Fruit trees, except peaches, raspberries and blackberries, do better when fall planted; so do most of the deciduous shade trees.

People are so much in the habit, however, of leaving all planting until spring that they rarely think of doing any now. Possible exceptions to the success of fall planting might be due to too dry a condition of the soil at planting time and the freezing up of the ground while the roots were inadequately supplied with moisture. Artificial watering would be necessary in such cases as these.

THE NEW DUTIES.

In a circular letter sent out last week, accompanying a card showing the new tariff rates, McHutchison & Co. point out some of the changes, as follows:

"The new tariff eliminates all except two of the jokers in the horticultural schedules of former tariffs; being concise and explicit, it may take some good business away from the lawyers, but this means some saving to importing nurserymen, florists and seedsmen. No items have been raised, but there are some substantial reductions.

"You will see that bay trees, araucarias and many other greenhouse plants have been reduced from twenty-five per cent to fifteen per cent ad valorem. Apple, pear and quince stocks are reduced from $2 to $1 per thousand. Miscellaneous nursery stock, such as boxwood, rhododendrons, shrubs, vines, etc., are reduced from twenty-five per cent to fifteen per cent ad valorem."

The writer overlooked the one increase: the duty on hyacinth bulbs is advanced 500 per cent, from 50 cents per thousand to $2.50 per thousand, and must affect the price of bulbs to the consumer next season, something none of the reductions in duty are likely to do.

ORCHIDS

Cattleya Trianae.

Cattleya Trianae, the standard winter cattleya, now has its bulbs pretty well made up. It is sometimes a disappointing orchid, inasmuch as the bulbs may be large and the leaves a beautiful, rich, dark green color, holding out expectations of sheaths carrying at least four or five flowers, but instead a solitary flower often appears, to the disgust of the grower. To remedy such difficulties, it is absolutely necessary to give the plants more light. After this date, no shade whatever is needed for C. Trianae, Mossiae, Mendellii, Percivaliana, Schraederæ, or any other winter or spring-blooming cattleyas. Keep the night temperature for the cattleyas 60 degrees on warm nights and 58 degrees on cold nights. Avoid a damp, stagnant atmosphere; this will surely start decay in some of the partly made up growths. Give air on every possible occasion; in fact, the ventilators should never be tightly closed at this season.

Dendrobium Phalaenopsis.

Dendrobium Phalaenopsis Schraederianum is at its best under warm house culture, and should have a night temperature of 65 degrees when developing its flower spikes. This orchid succeeds best in quite small pans or baskets which dry up readily, and, if time will permit, the best method of watering is dipping in a pail or tub; at this season twice a week will suffice. This is one of the most valuable varieties to use in fall groups. Its long spikes, which sometimes carry fifteen to twenty flowers, arch over gracefully. Another fall blooming dendrobe is D. formosum giganteum. The flowers of this variety are as large as some cattleyas and command as high a price in the market. Its color is pure white, with a yellow throat. This dendrobe needs rather larger receptacles than D. Phalaenopsis, and is more difficult to keep in good condition year after year. It does well in a hot, humid, old-fashioned stove house, and the finest I ever saw had a thick carpet of growing sphagnum on the tops of the baskets.

Dendrobium Wardianum.

All the plants of that large and showy flower, Dendrobium Wardianum, should now be in a light, dry, sunny house, where a much reduced water supply and full sun will help to ripen the bulbs. Do not let the temperature run too low; 45 to 50 degrees is all right, but 40 degrees may cause damage. Just as soon as the little flower nodes appear, place the plants in a warmer and somewhat moister house. Water sparingly, but spray the pseudo-bulbs over on fine days to assist the plumping up of the flower nodes.

Dendrobium Nobile.

Most of the plants of Dendrobium nobile, and many hybrids, such as D. Ainsworthii, Chrysodiscus, Cybele, Splendidissimum and Juno, should now have their growths completed and be ready for a ripening process in a cooler and dry house. Reduce the water supply considerably, but spray overhead on clear, hot days, such as we often get in October and November. Do not be in too great a hurry to start the plants after nodes appear. Let them become fairly prominent first. Also avoid much moisture after they are removed to a warmer house, as this will cause nodes to produce growths instead of flowers. D. anosmum is the earliest hybrid to flower; this will be in good condition before Thanksgiving.

WITH SOUTHERN GROWERS.

The Rose Hill Greenhouses.

While on a recent trip through the south we spent a day at the Rose Hill Greenhouses, at Columbia, S. C. These are the leading greenhouses of this rapidly growing city, and they are new and in spick-and-span shape. Roses and carnations are the principal crops grown; only one house is devoted to chrysanthemums and one to ferns.

We asked why there was not more space given to mums and were told that they were grown in every yard in the city as well as they could be grown inside and so there was little demand. Sure enough, we saw them in the gardens on our return to the city, grown to a single stem, and apparently they would equal the inside plants. We were told that they often bloomed twice in the year if cut down as soon as they bloomed.

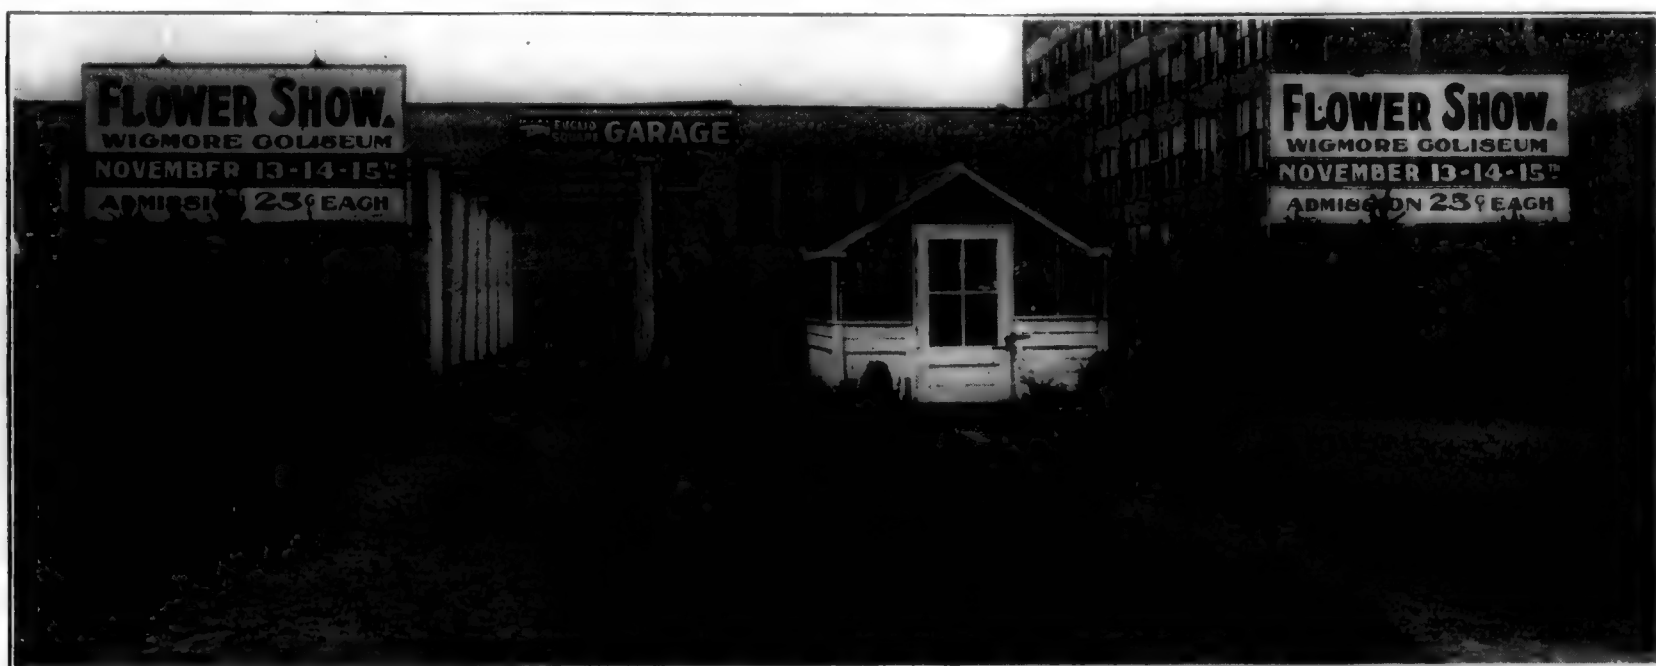

At Rose Hill we saw a new fern pest, or at least it was new to us. It is a worm about two inches long and colored much like those that feed on parsley. In spite of poisoning, they have all but put the ferns out of business. They do not seem to attack the wild ferns that grow near the houses.

Eight houses, each 200 feet long, are devoted to carnations, and here again we were surprised, for we saw them thriving in a stiff red clay soil that we supposed would never do at all. They are given plenty of liquid manure, however. Six houses of the same size as the carnation houses are devoted to roses. The Killarneys, Sunburst and Lady Hillingdon are the varieties mostly grown, though there was a batch of good Richmond.

In the open ground we saw a long row of weeping lantanas that were a mass of bloom. These are grown for use in designs and it is said that they are profitable for this purpose.

They do not sell anything at wholesale, but have to buy a great deal out of town. They do not attempt to grow their lilies or American Beauty roses, as they say that their soil is not adapted to them.

This firm has made such strides since we visited them two years ago that we could hardly believe it was the same place. It looks as if there might be a future for the florists' business in Columbia.

Jesse T. Ellis.

In Griffin, Ga., we visited Jesse T. Ellis, and were much pleased with his place. We do not hesitate to say that he had the best field of dahlias we have ever seen. There is no doubt about the south growing as good dahlias as any place on earth. If anyone doubts this, let him visit Mr. Ellis before frost. He had over 100 varieties and every one was doing well.

Mr. Ellis also makes a success of growing roses for cut flowers in the open ground, having plenty till almost Christmas. He was just getting ready to build a new house, his first real greenhouse.

While on our rambles we were especially impressed by a vine that is catalogued as 'the mountain rose'. The blooms are in panicles sometimes as much as three feet long, though generally only about twelve or fifteen inches long, and for freedom of bloom and brilliancy of color we have never seen its equal. The color is an intense cerise. We are told it will stand the winters as far north as Kentucky, and that where it kills it can be grown the same as moonflowers and blooms fully as early.

LEAN-TO HOUSE FOR CROPS.

Can a lean-to with ground beds be used successfully for early and late asters, gladioli and sweet peas? Is it necessary that the glass be in sash frames, so as to be entirely removed in summer? As the house would be adjacent to a rose house, plenty of heat for winter would be available. This is a climate with killing frosts about September 20.

H. G. C.

A lean-to house could be used for such crops as you mention, but would not be so desirable, of course, as a span-roofed one. It is not necessary to have the glass in sash frames, so as to be able to remove it. With good ventilation and a little shade on the glass during hot weather, it would be possible to keep the temperature congenial.

C. W.

WINTERING CANNAS.

Will you kindly tell me how I can winter canna bulbs? There will be no heat in my greenhouses this winter, so I cannot keep them there. How would it be to put the bulbs in a barrel and lower the barrel in the ground below the freezing point, or what would you advise?

R. G. T.

The canna roots will decay if buried in the ground as suggested. Have you no cellar or shed which is frost proof, where you could put them on shelves? They can be wintered in any dry cellar which will keep potatoes satisfactorily.

THE CLEVELAND SHOW.

The Men Behind It.

John Boddy, city forester, representative of the Ohio Horticultural Society and landscape architect de luxe, is the commander-in-chief of the committee that is putting Cleveland to the fore in the coming flower show, which is expected to be the biggest trade show in America this season. The committee of twelve from the Florists' Club is subdivided into committees on publicity, on decoration, on hall and premiums, and on entertainment, and all are working hard for the show's success.

The Hotel Euclid, which is across the street from the new Wignmore coliseum, where the show is to be held, has been selected as official headquarters, and it is here that the banquet to visiting florists will be held on Friday evening, November 14.

The members of the entertainment committee have something choice up their sleeves in connection with the banquet. Visiting florists are urged to register immediately after their arrival, when the entertainment committee will provide them with banquet tickets for themselves and their wives.

Work of Publicity Committee.

It will be interesting to see what the publicity committee will be able to do this year in the matter of attendance. Last year the show was held in Gray's Armory, was advertised lightly and drew only a few thousand people per day. This year, with a large new hall, in the center of town, and with liberal advertising that is reaching over the entire city, the attendance should be tripled. Large banners are being hung in conspicuous places and 5,000 window cards are being displayed throughout the business section. Pennants for delivery wagons and stickers for all cut flower packages are being used heavily. And, to top it all off, there is Flower Show park, for that is what the vacant lot directly in front of the coliseum, and facing Euclid avenue, has been christened.

Flower Show Park.

The Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O., has donated a carload of evergreens for the planting of this park, and, with the model greenhouse recently given to the Florists' Club by the John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago, a unique setting has been arranged, which is attracting thousands of people daily. The greenhouse is electric-heated and electric-lighted, and is full of pompon mums and ferns. Billboards have been erected in a prominent position on the rear of the lot, and a pergola has been erected to add to the general effect. The Cleveland Plaindealer had a long article in its real estate section last week, telling of land on Euclid avenue, worth $5,000 a front foot, being used to grow evergreens—and why they were growing there, namely, to advertise the flower show.

Free Space for Foliage Plants.

The decoration committee is making progress with its plans. Great quantities of smilax and laurel are to be used, mainly in draping the large pillars, of which there are 100. On account of the large space to be covered, it has been decided to offer free space for exhibits of decorative foliage plants. Any firms that have palms, crotons, begonias, etc., that they wish to display may secure all the space they may need for that purpose by applying to the hall committee.

Don't forget the date of this show, November 13 to 15. Thursday, the first day of the show, will be mum day; Friday will be carnation day, and Saturday will be rose day.

been placed in soil not later than the end of September if January flowers were wanted. Plant at once, keep in a cellar, pit or frame until sprouted two or three inches, then place in a warm house. Keep the bulbs in the dark for some days, in order to draw up the stems. La Reine forces well, coming pink in January. White Hawk will come white. Cottage Maid is later than La Reine. Rose Grisdelin is a useful early blooming pink tulip. C. W.

INDEXING ARTICLES.

I have been reading The Review a number of years and find it the best and most interesting trade magazine published. With us each number is carefully indexed under subjects every week, and whenever we want first-class information pertaining to various plants, greenhouses or boilers, we refer to our index, and in a few seconds the information is at hand. The only difficulty experienced in doing this is that the pages have to be renumbered, whereas, if the numbers would run from 1, say, to 1,000 or higher renumbering would be unnecessary. L. S.

In indexing the articles that you are likely to wish to refer to in your file of The Review, there is a simple way in which you can enter the numbers which will serve the purpose much better than as though the pages were numbered consecutively through the volume. When a publication reaches the large size of The Review, running nearly 6,000 pages per year, it is cumbersome and unwieldy to number through the volume, even if the volumes are half-yearly. That would make us start with Page 1 on the issue of November 6, and in May all the pages would be numbered between 2500 and 3000.

Index your articles in the same way we keep the record of our charges for advertising space. The issues are numbered consecutively, last week's edition being 830. In charging the advertising, in each customer's account a short line is drawn and the amount of space written above it, with the issue number below it, just as you would write fractions. Of course you keep your Reviews in order, the last copy received at the top of the pile. Consequently, if your index reads 17/825, you can quickly run down through the pile of papers to issue 825, which was dated September 18, and turn to the article you seek, on page 17.

TEMPERATURE FOR BULBS.

Will you please let me know what temperature to keep for rooting hyacinth bulbs in a dark cellar, and what length of time will be required to bring them into bloom after taking them up to force? I want to get the same information, also, about tulips and Narcissus Von Sion. C. F.

A temperature of 45 to 50 degrees in a dark cellar will suit hyacinths and tulips, but they will do well even if it is no higher than 35 to 40 degrees. After hyacinths are sprouted two or three inches, it will take twenty to thirty days to force them into bloom in an average night temperature of 55 degrees in January and February. Later in the season less time is needed. Tulips require about the same time as hyacinths in the same temperature, but can be had earlier if drawn up in a dark, warm case. Von Sion narcissi, when well started, need three weeks during January in a temperature of 60 degrees, and a little less time in March if kept as late as that. C. W.

STIGMONOSE AND LEAF-SPOT.

What is the disease on the inclosed carnation leaves and what is the cure, if any? I have tried Fungine and Bordeaux mixture as remedies, but neither seems to do any good. M. B. C.

Your carnations are affected with two distinct diseases. One is the common stigmonose, for which you can do little else but select your cuttings when propagating next year's stock. The other is what we call leaf-spot, which you should be able to control with Bordeaux mixture. Pick off all the affected leaves and burn them. Then spray with the Bordeaux two or three times at weekly intervals, keeping the water away from the foliage when watering. If you are running fire heat at night, drop a pinch of sulphur here and there on the pipes. Sulphur fumes are deadly to all forms of fungous growth. A. F. J. B.

TOBACCO STEMS FOR MULCH.

Will you inform me whether tobacco stems which have been out in a pile until rotten would do for mulching carnations which have just started well? M. E. H.

I am inclined to the opinion that the thoroughly rotted tobacco stems would not injure your carnation plants, if used as a light mulch, but I would suggest that you try them on a limited space before risking your whole crop. But why use them at all? If you can get stable manure, you will find it of much greater value for this purpose, as the manure will not only prevent drying out, but contains plant food as well, while the tobacco stems are good only to prevent evaporation. There would have to be a great difference between the cost of the two, to cause me to substitute the rotted tobacco stems for the manure. A. F. J. B.

LOSING THEIR FOLIAGE.

I inclose a few sample leaves from some of my carnations and should like to get your opinion as to what is the matter. Can you suggest a remedy? The stalks look green and healthy, but the leaves turn yellow and die clear up to the tops of the stems. J. S.

You do not give enough data on which to base a really definite opinion. There is considerable stigmonose present on the specimens forwarded and that may be at the bottom of your troubles. If the plants were benched recently, and if the treatment was not good, they might act in the manner described, if the stock is badly affected with stigmonose. If the plants started off nicely and then contracted this trouble, then your treatment must be altogether wrong. Perhaps you gave too much water before the roots had a good hold.

You can do nothing now except to take off the bad leaves and then spray the plants well with Bordeaux mixture. A. F. J. B.

LEAF-SPOT.

I am inclosing some carnation foliage and wish you would tell me how to treat the plants for the disease with which they are affected. I am just starting in the greenhouse business. Mrs. T. A. J.

The specimens forwarded disclose the fact that your carnations are affected by the common leaf-spot. I would suggest that you pick off these diseased leaves and then spray the plants with Bordeaux mixture once each week until you have the disease under control. Wash the plants with the hose before each application and be sure to do it on a bright day. Also drop a pinch of sulphur on one of the steam pipes about every six feet. If any more spots appear, pick them off every few days. A. F. J. B.

MIXTURES AMONG MAY DAY.

We are sending you under separate cover some carnation blooms taken from plants in a bench of May Day. They are like May Day in color, but have the habit of Enchantress. Flowers off the same plants have kept extra well for ten days. What can you tell me about these flowers? L. S. C.

The specimens forwarded were badly wilted, so that it was impossible to determine the exact color of the blooms. I think, however, from what I could see, that there is no question about these plants being simply mixtures among the May Day. One appeared to be Rose-pink Enchantress and the others Enchantress. The Enchantress may have a deeper color than usual, for some reason; hence the similarity to May Day in color. A. F. J. B.

PALMS, PLEASURE AND PROFIT.

One recent afternoon I climbed aboard a suburban train at the Reading terminal in Philadelphia and told the conductor to "put me off at Wyncote."

"The station is Jenkintown, Mister. Going to see Heacock's place?"

I allowed I was, and then Brass Buttons smiled and said, "You'll go back on the night train, I reckon."

I didn't quite understand what he meant, but when I saw the greenhouses, and tried to figure out how many square feet of ground they covered, and how many miles I would walk if I tried to see them all in one afternoon, I too "reckoned" it would be a night train.

The quaint office building is in keeping with the general appearance of the place, quiet and restful, yet the minute you step in the door you realize you are in a business office where things are done, not "tomorrow," but now, right now, when they should be done.

Twenty years ago Mr. Heacock began to grow palms—in a small way, of course, but all really big things are only the development of an idea born in an enthusiastic man's mind. Year after year the idea and the business grew. The first greenhouse was torn down to make room for a larger one. Then another was needed, and it wasn't long before the old houses were replaced by thoroughly modern structures.

I tried to find the reason why the business had increased so marvelously in the two decades, and why in the last two or three years it has almost doubled itself. Nine words tell the story: "Give the customer a little more than he expects." The business has been built on this.

After Mr. Heacock had told me some things about the business, he said, "Let's take a walk through the houses." Now, I thought I had seen greenhouses, and some few palms, but I soon concluded that greenhouses didn't grow in my country. And palms! I didn't know there were so many in the world. I asked how many plants were in the place and was told considerably over half a million. Hanging from the roof supports were baskets of ferns, and here and there were orchids in bloom, giving a touch of color to an otherwise solid, shimmering mass of green.

The palms are grown here from the start. In fact, they are born at Wyncote, for in one house you will find benches covered with three or four inches of Jersey peat, and on digging down with your fingers you find the seeds that look like small pecan nuts, some of them just opening and showing the tiny roots and the light green fronds. This seed comes from Australia and is imported direct by Mr. Heacock. As soon as the seed germinates it is lifted into flats; later the seedlings are transplanted to thumb pots, and finally repotted as the plants need room for the roots to develop.

I was told that the demand for palms has made the business of palm growing one of the established industries. The florist who is looking for decorations finds that palms are indispensable. They play an important part in artistic arrangements for weddings, parties, receptions and special church occasions. By tasteful grouping of palms in the store the florist is able to help his customers when they come to him for ideas about home decorations. In summer palms are eminently suitable for porch plants, requiring comparatively little care when outdoors, and under ordinary conditions the plants can remain outside until late in September. When cool weather comes the plants can be moved indoors and still remain on duty as a part of the indoor decorations. The florist who is alive to his opportunities sees hundreds of chances to advise the use of palms, and build up a reputation and trade.

Every florist in every town can handle palms at a profit. The business is not in the hands of one or two dealers, nor do large firms attempt to control the trade in their locality. It is a business in which even the smallest florist can engage and make good, clean money. But he must carry good plants, and have enough of them to supply a call on the shortest notice. Plants that are rented for decorations must be hardy, rugged and strong. They receive extremely hard usage and soon go to pieces unless they are started right and grown right from the seed to maturity.

Mr. Heacock told me that several years ago he began shipping palms in small cedar tubs, and the florists liked the plan so well that it was adopted for all the large plants. The palms seem to grow better than in pots, the tubs won't break, are easily handled, and the plant can be carried by the top without danger of the tub dropping off. The tubs are made of Virginia cedar, well put together with three wire hoops, and are painted a dark green. They are not at all conspicuous, nor will they mar the finest decoration, and for store display they are more desirable than pots.

But palms are not the only things grown at Wyncote. There are two large houses of the most beautiful orchids—hundreds and hundreds of plants, with dainty blooms of the purest white with throats of gold, to great clusters of royal purple and glowing scarlet. The orchids are grown principally for cutting and thousands are shipped to the Philadelphia and New York markets.

Some eighteen miles from Wyncote is another place owned by the Joseph Heacock Co. It is over in Bucks county, at a little town called Roelofs. Here is a greenhouse worth seeing. Imagine almost an acre of land covered with glass and you get a little idea of the size of the structure, which is 72x600 feet. Almost an acre, isn't it? Figure it out.

This house has a baby sister, too, which is only fifty-five feet wide, but it is just as long. Both of these big houses are used for growing roses exclusively, and all the leading commercial varieties are found there.

Both Wyncote and Roelofs are on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad, with a train service every half hour out of Philadelphia, and almost every day, I am told, finds visitors there, who like myself enjoy spending an afternoon in such surroundings, with a genial guide to tell of the many interesting things that happen to the plants that grow in the glass houses at Wyncote. E. F. Rowe.

YES, INDEED.

The function of a trade paper is to help. If it is successful in helping its readers it will then be helpful to its advertisers, not before. Like this:

Please discontinue our classified advertisement of geraniums, as we are sold out for the present. It certainly helps when we advertise in a good, up-to-date paper like The Review.—Felsch Bros., Maywood, Ill., October 20, 1913.

PAPER WHITE ROOTS ROTTING.

Can you tell me what to do for my Paper White grandiflora? They were planted in flats and pans. They were rooted finely when the roots began to rot. Now the roots are all rotted, though the bulbs are sound and solid. They were planted in old hotbed compost, which is a black, sandy soil. I think it was too rich, but my Roman hyacinths are doing nicely in the same soil, and I have them all in the greenhouses under the benches. What would you advise me to do? W. O.

The compost, I should say, would be too rich for your Paper Whites, containing, as it must have done, a large proportion of old manure, but if Roman hyacinths are doing well in it, something more than the soil must be at fault. Perhaps you left your flats in the open ground and they have been too wet at the roots. The hyacinths would be less likely to suffer from this than the Paper Whites. Another season use loam as compost, adding one-fourth old hotbed manure and sand. Do not expose the bulbs to heavy rains and you should have no further trouble. C. W.

COVERING PANSY PLANTS.

I have 7,000 pansy plants, but four beds of these plants are from four to six inches high and full of flowers. Should I cover them with straw when it is time, or should I make a frame around the beds and put some wooden strips on top of the frame so that I shall not break the stems when putting on the straw? Which is the better method of the two? F. S.

Provided your pansies are on well drained land where no water will stand, they should winter all right if given a covering of straw at the proper time, which is after the ground is firmly frozen. There should be no need of placing any strips over the plants if the straw is quite dry and is laid on carefully. C. W.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The last week ended as it began, in rain and gloom, thus completing one of the most disheartening periods in the fall's experience. Saturday was completely spoiled by the constant downpour. The market was overwhelmed by tremendous shipments of chrysanthemums; the wholesalers, with ice-boxes and cellars already bulging, found it impossible to clean up the accumulations at even half respectable prices. The present week opened clear and cooler, but remnants of Indian summer are still in evidence, and it will be Thanksgiving before our wonderful autumn changes into the crisp, cold temperature that means prosperity for the cut flower trade.

There seems to be no limit this season to the mum supply and its beginning only is with us. A good deal of the mum stock is unattractive, but there is an abundance, also, of choice blooms, as fine as ever came to the New York market, selling at less than half the average of other years. Even the exhibition blooms have shared in the general depression. Two dollars per dozen seemed to be the top Saturday for flowers such as I have seen sell at $5 a dozen less than a year ago. One good result, at any rate, is the opportunity afforded every retail florist in the city to have attractive windows at low cost.

Roses of all kinds are abundant, and there has been no change in quotations from last week's record. The same may be said of carnations; only the novelties and selects rise above $1.50 per hundred. The quality still has room for improvement. The level of orchid values continues low. The best command only $20 to $25 per hundred. At times the surplus is so great that the department stores advertise them at 10 cents each.

Valley and lilies remain fairly firm and have not fluctuated. Nothing new or good is yet to be said of violets. Great quantities do not sell at all.

Dahlias are gone. Jack Frost's visit there last week ended their career in Maryland. Bouvardias, tritomas, sweet peas and cosmos have all been plentiful, but nothing else seems to count while the overwhelming mum flood continues.

Various Notes.

The annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York begins at the Museum of Natural History, Friday, October 31, and continues for five days.

The National Association of Gardeners will meet at the Museum of Natural History Monday afternoon, November 3, and the annual banquet will be enjoyed at the Hotel Endicott the same evening.

The chrysanthemum show of the American Institute will be held November 5 to 7 at the Engineering building, 33 West Thirty-ninth street.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, November 10. This will be the annual ladies' night and the most important and enjoyable evening of the year. Nominations of officers for the coming year will be announced by the committee.

The John Scott place in Flatbush was inundated last week by the bursting of a 4-foot water main. The city probably can be held responsible for the loss, which was considerable.

This week's obituary column records the sudden death of Emil Anthon, of Bobbink & Atkins, formerly with Siebrecht & Son and the Rosery.

Jean Barndeer, of New Rochelle, a landscape gardener, had a narrow escape from asphyxiation last week. When he was found in a gas-filled room, his heart had stopped beating and he was not breathing. He continued in that condition for an hour before artificial breathing brought him back to life.

Henry B. Siebrecht and Florence Gardener were married October 21. They will spend three weeks in Panama.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association took their trip to Long Island Tuesday, October 28. Those present were Messrs. Siebrecht, Sr., Siebrecht, Jr., Dupuy, Miller, Elder, De Forest, Boehler, Lange, Zeller, Madsen, Christensen, Schoelzel, Winnefeld, Baumann, Dressel, Langan, Schultheis, Traendly, Dreyer, Shaw, Sperry and Dressel, Jr. The places visited were those of Messrs. Siebrecht, Langan, Schultheis, Dupuy, Keller, Dreyer, Marquardt, Miller, Scott, Wagner and Schmutz. The next outing, to visit the Jersey growers, will be held Friday, November 7. The society meets November 10, at Secretary Siebrecht's office in Long Island City. Plants everywhere were found in grand condition. Scott's loss by flood amounted to from $15,000 to $20,000.

Schloss Bros. will move January 1 to 31 and 33 East Twenty-eighth street, between Fourth and Madison avenues. This change of location was made necessary by the firm's increasing business and the new place will have double the space of the present headquarters.

Peter F. McKenney, of Forty-second street and Fifth avenue, decorated October 22 for the Brinkley wedding at Brewster, N. Y., and also for one at Delmonico's.

Siebrecht & Son have remodeled their store on Fifth avenue. The greenhouses at New Rochelle are now largely devoted to the growing of orchids, mums and carnations. Of the latter, Northport, Mrs. Ward and Rainbow are the favorites.

The attractive daily decoration of Wadley & Smythe's window is the work of Carl Oberheitman, who has been at the firm's Newport branch this summer and who has just returned from a two weeks' vacation in the Adirondacks.

Bowling is enjoyed every Wednesday by the Rutherford Club and every Thursday by the Astorias, but the New York Florists' Club lacks sufficient interest and energy to form a club of its own, notwithstanding its winning of the championship at Minneapolis. Frank Verona, C. C. Trepel's financial manager, has challenged any member of the New York club to a match for $50. His average for twenty games is 232. Donaldson and Riedel are thinking seriously of accepting the challenge.

Myer, of Fifty-eighth street and Madison avenue, is again at his desk, fully recovered from his recent operation. He has a force of twenty men employed and has a branch store on Fifty-ninth street, which he now uses for palm storage.

Walter Mott is in the city this week on his return from a two months' trip all over the sunny south, which has been continuous since the Minneapolis convention.

Thos. F. Galvin's windows on Fifth avenue are a dream. The genial Bostonian is much gratified with the reception accorded him in his metropolitan debut. Manager Bridgman has been three months superintending the details of this enterprise. The roof conservatory will soon be ready for inspection.

H. M. Robinson, of Boston, was one of last week's visitors.

H. H. Jahn, of Brooklyn, has had a splendid fall trade with weddings, several of them out of the city. He has been a large buyer at the plant auctions lately.

C. F. Meyer is visiting his southern trade. Bert Chadwick, of this house, is in the west. Business is reported excellent.

A. Kakuda, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., will be back from Japan this week.

Harry A. Barnard, of Stuart Low & Co., sails next Wednesday, November 5, for England.

C. H. Totty is maintaining his reputation for successful chrysanthemum culture, the stock he is sending to J. K. Allen being as good as any he ever grew.

Wertheimer Bros., who now are nicely settled in their new uptown location, comment on the number of out-of-town visitors in the last few weeks, saying it exceeds anything within their recollection.

Charles Albert Traendly, son of Frank H. Traendly, was operated on for appendicitis October 14. The operation was a success and he is rapidly convalescing. J. Austin Shaw.

Washington, N. J.—Several new greenhouses are being put up by Alonzo J. Bryan, the total cost of which will be about $20,000.

New Bedford, Mass.—Wm. P. Pierce, who has been in business on Union street for over thirty-seven years, has moved to 610 Pleasant street.

OBITUARY.

Edward Le Roy Pierce.

The many florists and gardeners who have had business dealings with A. H. Hews & Co., Cambridge, Mass., who have a nation-wide constituency of buyers of their flower pots, will regret to learn of the death, October 16, of Edward Le Roy Pierce, the youthful, courteous and ever genial president of that company.

Mr. Pierce was born in Barre, Mass., in 1877, and was 35 years and 9 months old at the time of his death. He entered the employ of A. H. Hews & Co. thirteen years ago, fresh from the Worcester Polytechnic School. After Mr. Hews' death and the formation of a corporation in 1904, he was made vice-president, succeeding to the presidency in 1910. Under his able administration the firm has made rapid headway, and was never more prosperous than now. He was a member of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, and found time occasionally to attend its meetings. A few years ago the club had a delightful field day at the North Cambridge potteries, being most kindly entertained.

Of late years Mr. Pierce's health has been far from good, but by occasional southern trips and by taking good care of himself he managed to pull himself along. Finally, as his health became more and more impaired, he entered the New England Sanitarium at Melrose, two weeks before the end came. Bright's disease was the cause of death.

The deceased was worshipful master of Charity Lodge, A. F. and A. M. He was held in high esteem by his business associates, by his Masonic and other friends and by all with whom he had any relations. His employees feel his loss keenly. Funeral services were held October 19 at the chapel of Mount Auburn cemetery. Rev. F. E. Marble, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Reed, of the Belmont Unitarian church, officiated. The pall bearers were heads of the different offices and departments in Boston and New York. There was a profuse display of floral souvenirs. Mr. Pierce leaves a widow, mother and brother, but no children.

W. N. Craig.

R. B. Stoddard.

R. B. Stoddard, for many years in the nursery business at Sterling, Ill., was found dead in his bed by his daughter when she went to his room to awaken him Saturday morning, October 18. He died sometime during the night and probably of old age, as he was 85 years old. He had retired the night before apparently in his usual health. Mr. Stoddard had been a resident of Sterling since 1863. The funeral was held at the home Monday afternoon, October 20.

Emil Anthon.

Emil Anthon, one of the force of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., and formerly with Siebrecht & Son and the Rosery, dropped dead from heart disease Monday, October 20, while engaged in planting boxwood for the firm. He was a man of good character and ability, and leaves a widow and a large family to mourn his untimely end. Among the floral designs sent in sympathy was a handsome wreath of mums and orchids from Siebrecht & Son.

...NEWS NOTES...

Houston, Tex.—Charles Ehlers has moved from 910 Texas avenue to 1014 Capitol avenue.

Clinton, Ia.—Frank Feldt has sold his interest in the new greenhouse plant to his partner, Arthur Still, who will continue the business.

Red Bank, N. J.—The Red Bank Flower Shop opened for business October 18 in Jacob Kriedel's building on Broad street, near Front street.

Las Vegas, N. M.—Perry Onion & Son have moved their uptown store and expect to be able to do an increased business in their new quarters.

Fort Collins, Colo.—Espelin & Warren are building a greenhouse addition to their downtown store, 16x50 feet, which will be used as a display house for plants.

Alton, Ill.—George Madsen, proprietor of the Alton Floral Co., was laid up for a few days when he wrenched his back in working on the boiler in his heating plant.

Arlington, Neb.—Ed. Woerner is building a greenhouse, 20 x 50 feet, on Sixth street, in which he will grow flowers for the trade. He expects, also, to make a specialty of early vegetables.

Wichita Falls, Tex.—C. F. Blair, who left here for Gonzales, Tex., some time ago, says the "raging floods and mosquitoes" drove him out of southern Texas, and he is back again at his old address.

Bay City, Mich.—The next monthly meeting of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will be held at Boehringer Bros., Bay City, Monday, November 3, at 7 p. m. The discussions will be given by E. A. Grohmann and Fred Goetz.

Washington, Pa.—The Swarthout flower store has moved from its quarters in the waiting room of the Pittsburgh Railways Co., at Main and Bean streets, as the space was needed for the accommodation of the company's patrons.

Dayton, O.—The Miami Floral Co. is planning for an autumn show early in November to display the products of its seven acres of glass. The general manager of the concern is J. W. Rodgers, and Albert A. Kramer is the office manager.

Newell, W. Va.—The Mick Floral Co. has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000. The incorporators are: B. A. Mick, Annie E. Mick, Letta B. Mick, Mary A. Mick and Sadie V. Mick. B. A. Mick was formerly in business at Wellsville, O.

Streator, Ill.—Grover Gilbert, proprietor of the Riverview Greenhouses, has moved his plants into his three new greenhouses, each 200 feet long, on the Coalville road. One house will be devoted to flowers and the other two to vegetables for the local market.

Topeka, Kan.—J. M. Kessler is conducting a suit against the city to prevent the paving of South Kansas avenue as it is platted instead of as it has been used for fifteen years. In the former case the road would cut off about twenty-three feet of Mr. Kessler's greenhouses and necessitate the removal of a fence and a hydrant.

The alarm clock went off at four o'clock in the morning.

"I fooled you that toime," said Mike with a grin, "for I wasn't aslape at all."

The florist fools himself who thinks there is any way of selling goods in the trade more effective than advertising in The Review. Also, it's the most inexpensive way in proportion to results.

"We are completely sold out and have had to send money back. The Review is, without doubt, the best advertising medium in the trade."—J. C. RENNISON CO., Sioux City, Ia.

Review readers are not asleep. Note this:

"Please tell us confidentially what you think of — —. Why doesn't he advertise in The Review if he is O. K.?"—MILLER FLORAL CO., Farmington, Utah.

The alarm clock rings in The Review office at 4 o'clock (p. m., not a. m.) every Tuesday. It is to let everybody know advertising forms close for that week's issue in just sixty minutes.

Valley City, N. D.—S. E. Fish has moved to Eugene, Ore.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—George W. Steele, who sold his interest in the firm of McDonald & Steele to his partner last April, plans to build a place of his own next spring.

Richmond, Va.—The administrative board is contemplating the construction of a greenhouse to grow the plants for the city parks. There is a city nursery at present which furnishes shrubs and trees for this purpose.

Elm Grove, W. Va.—John Dieckmann & Co., of Park View, are building a reservoir on the hill above the greenhouses. The stream there will be dammed and the basin will hold several hundred barrels of water, an abundant supply for the dry spells.

...NEWS NOTES...

Humboldt, Ia.—J. H. Rine, Jr., will build another greenhouse this fall.

Jefferson, Ia.—E. S. Foulks has completed his new greenhouse and has already a large supply of carnations and roses.

Salem, O.—J. J. Gunn & Son have a good display of early chrysanthemums at their greenhouses on Garfield avenue.

Neenah, Wis.—Louis Otto has been adjudged insane and committed to the Northern Hospital for the Insane, at Oshkosh.

Fremont, Neb.—Andreasen Bros., proprietors of the Fremont Greenhouses, are building another greenhouse at the plant in the south part of the city.

Raleigh, N. C.—J. L. O'Quinn and Henry Steinmetz both entered fine displays of potted plants, ferns and cut flowers in the florists' exhibit at the state fair.

Wapakoneta, O.—Several new features have been added lately to the McMurray greenhouses, including a hot water heating system and an automobile garage.

Brockton, Mass.—J. I. Gurney, of Lakeville, displayed an exhibit of over 1,000 dahlia blossoms at the store of the Jas. Edgar Co., in a three days' show, renewing the flowers each day.

Estherville, Ia.—Mrs. M. E. Jehu, proprietor of the Estherville Greenhouses, does a good business in goldfish and the like. Her potted plant trade is growing steadily and her present glass area is 10,000 feet.

St. Albans, Vt.—The business of George Cooke has been sold to Charles Kennedy and Dennis Ledoux. Mr. Cooke is now in San Diego, Cal., for the benefit of his health. Mr. Kennedy has been in the employ of Mr. Cooke for several years.

Churchville, Pa.—Fred Chesky, who recently started here as a grower for the wholesale market, has begun to cut his crop of about 90,000 chrysanthemum blooms. He will follow the mums with sweet peas. He is well pleased with his undertaking.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—N. Harold Cottam, of Wappingers Falls, is the manager of the flower show here October 30 and 31. The feature for October 30 is a dinner table decoration of orchids and for October 31 dinner table decorations of other flowers.

Marion, O.—F. E. Blake & Son have remodeled and enlarged their uptown store. A two-story brick building has been built at the rear of the store. The office and salesroom have been enlarged and refinished and the greenhouse attached is fitted up to make it as fine a showroom as possible.

Arkansas City, Kan.—The increase in trade has led Wm. E. Smith to make extensive improvements and additions to his greenhouse plant and to open an uptown store. Three houses, comprising over 10,000 feet of glass, an office building, a boiler room and heating plant, a sprinkling system, a refrigerator built to order and a delivery wagon are the new items in the equipment.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THE retail florist who does not advertise can not in future hold the pace set by the one who does.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE probabilities are that never, anywhere in the world, and certainly not for a private citizen, has there been a showing of funeral flowers to compare with the display at St. Louis, October 25, for the obsequies of Adolphus Busch.

DISTANT fields are always fairest. There are just as good opportunities at home as away from it, but the florist who grows more stock than his local trade calls for can cultivate the fair fields in the distance and still stay at home—by using Classified ads in The Review.

IT is in the autumn each year that there is pressure to sell Boston ferns. At the time when growers are hard put to it to protect their stock from frost a part of the summer's crop of Bostons is pretty sure to be selected for the sacrifice. By spring well grown ferns will be scarce again.

WILL ruscus go the way of the Christmas bell? Beginning as a holiday specialty in flower stores, it has got into all sorts of shops, including department stores, and, in various colors, sells all the year around. Florists are buying more heavily than ever before for Christmas delivery.

THERE was a time when a silver cup had an advertising value—to the donor, and to the winner if he happened to win on a novelty—but when cups and medals became so common that show managers had to borrow big glass display cases to exhibit them in they lost most of the publicity feature.

WHEN you send a paper to an editor mark the paragraph you want him to see. Contrary to the general belief, an editor has something else to do beside read the exchanges.

THE buyer who gets the most for his money is not the one who grinds the hardest on the seller—a point sometime will be reached where the buyer's business no longer is desirable, and there the buyer loses out.

IT is current report that one Chicago retail florist has contracted for $20,000 of newspaper space to be used this season. That ought to go some little way toward giving the flower business a standing with those who heretofore have not appreciated its magnitude.

NEW HAMPSHIRE TO FLORIDA.

It's All the Same.

It doesn't make any difference where the advertiser lives—The Review is as good a medium for those in the four corners of the country as for those who are located at the center of population, where The Review is published. Note, from New England, and from Florida:

Stop my ad; The Review has brought more orders than I can fill; all sold out.—G. P. Gridley, Wolfeboro, N. H., October 20, 1913.

The Pandanus Veitchii offered in The Review are all sold. Good stock combined with the wide circulation of The Review will sure bring good results.—F. Schultz, Hobe Sound, Fla., October 21, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

A brisk market for the last week has aided the local wholesalers in cleaning up a fairly large supply of roses and chrysanthemums and, with the additional demands of the southern sections for All Saints' day, prices have held rather firm. The only scarce article at present is carnations. Since the crops went off about ten days ago the wholesalers have found it somewhat hard to fill all orders and in some cases it has been necessary to substitute or disappoint out-of-town buyers. Prices have been seasonable. The fancy stock cleans up in short order and little effort is needed to dispose of the less desirable grades.

The present week opened with a strong market for roses and medium-sized mums, while there also appeared to be a good demand for pompons. Wholesalers reported that it was hard to get enough of the small flowers to fill the shipping orders. In the larger mums the demand was hardly as good as the dealers would have liked and for the fancy grades there were signs of a weakened market until the first rush of the All Saints' day business. Almost everything cleaned up quickly after Wednesday, when the first of the southern orders were sent out. The All Saints' day orders were fully up to the best previous records.

Mums have assumed their usual importance and, while roses are favored with a more than ordinary demand, the chrysanthemum is in the height of its season. All the popular varieties in season are to be had without trouble and there is no shortage in any grade. The growers complain that the weather conditions have caused an unusual amount of damping off and there is considerable stock that is not up to standard.

It Makes a lot of Difference How Mums are Grown

THERE'S as much difference in Mums as in any other flowers—and it's all in the grower. The man who grows Mums as a catch crop, to fill in between some other crops, is apt to give them catch crop culture, and the flowers show it when you get them in your store. Our Mums are grown by Mum specialists, and you see the difference at once. Ours are the firm, well finished flowers that ship well and give universal satisfaction. We ask no more than good Mums cost anywhere, and no more than you may have paid for stock not nearly so satisfactory to use. We have a lot of them.

VIOLETS

We handle more Violets than any other house in the West—business built on supplying the best in quantity.

CATTLEYAS

There are no finer Orchids than those we offer. Home grown. There's a difference in keeping quality.

FANCY ROSES

We can supply the shorter grades of Roses, as many as you want, but what we wish to emphasize is our ability to furnish a fancy grade you cannot get everywhere. Try Amling on Roses; you will conclude you could not ask for a more satisfactory source of supply.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

The retailers certainly have been ordering our Beauties liberally of late—we have done a big business—but we are able to take care of still more out-of-town customers. Please remember that while the largest orders do not tax our resources, we never are too busy to take good care of the small orders.

VALLEY

We handle the Chicago Market Brand exclusively—always have it. Order enough.

CARNATIONS

You can get your orders filled here—good stock and plenty of it.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies every day in the year.

Beauties are all that could be desired for quality. There are enough of the grades above 36-inch, but not enough to take care of all the buyers who would prefer something shorter. Killarneys are in good supply, both the pink and white, and yet there is a demand large enough to move them without giving the wholesalers any concern. The longer lengths are in greater supply than the shorter ones and consequently the latter clean up rather quickly. Richmond, Maryland, Shawyer, Hillingdon and Rhea Reid are likewise being cut in fair quantity and move along nicely. The yellows never fail to sell and they bring a good price, except that long Wards do not realize what they should. This rose is used largely for corsage work and the buyers will pay more for short Wards than they will for the same lengths of any other rose.

Violets have not made any great flurry as yet, but they have done better in the last week than at any previous time this season. Valley continues to enjoy a good sale. Cattleyas are not in large supply. Considerable stock is being shipped in from the east, where crops appear to be much better than they are locally. There are enough Easter lilies to go around.

The green goods situation is quiet.

Asparagus strings and smilax still are scarce.

The Chicago Show.

Interest in the flower show to be held next week is not what it should be. Doubtless the small size of the shows recently held in the Art Institute is responsible for the condition, but the autumn show is quite a different proposition and should bring out a fine showing of stock and a large attendance by the public. The show is of national importance, for it is the annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America combined with the autumn exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, the Chicago Florists' Club co-operating. There are excellent premiums for chrysanthemums, roses, carnations and many other flowers. There is every inducement for a large display of fine stock.

The annual business meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held at the Art Institute at 7:30 p. m. November 5. The following evening the Chicago Florists' Club will entertain the visitors at a ladies' night.

Various Notes.

M. Tredup has built a new store adjoining his greenhouses at 2611 East Seventy-fifth street, to take care of his Windsor Park trade. The South Chicago store, at 3013 East Ninety-second street, is continued to handle the business of that vicinity.

Frank F. Storek, the druggist, who is opening a flower store at 2901 Cottage Grove avenue, to take care of the trade going to the Michael Reese hospital, has given an order to Buchbinder Bros. for a display refrigerator and expects to have his shop in shape within a short time.

E. E. Pieser agrees with the general view that Chysolora is a fine mum, but points out one fault that has not before been commented on. He says it is inclined to break off at the neck, thirty flowers having been found broken in unpacking seven boxes October 20.

The A. L. Randall Co. reports having already booked orders for over 2,000 kumquat plants for delivery between November 15 and Christmas.

Frank Schramm, of Arlington Heights, has dropped carnations and planted roses. He has changed his heating system from hot water to steam.

George Baer, of Toledo, has begun his annual shipments of chrysanthemums to Kennicott Bros. Co.

Proof of the nearness of the busy holiday season was to be found at the establishment of the Raedlein Basket Co., early this week. ADAMS, MASS.

A. J. Boothman is preparing for the opening of a florists' store in North Adams, Mass., to be ready for business November 1. It will be one of the best stores in the county and 20x60 feet in size. This store will be used as an outlet for the stock of the range of greenhouses here, which has grown so large in the fifteen years of its existence that the present production of the 20,000 feet of glass is more than the local trade can use.

The store at North Adams will be known as the Flower Shop and will be in charge of Miss Ethel Boothman, the daughter of the proprietor. The greenhouses here will be under the direction of Mr. Boothman's son, Thomas Boothman, who is to be given an interest in the business, which hereafter will be run under the firm name of A. J. Boothman & Son. The senior member of the firm will superintend the work of the greenhouses and store.

Weather-Proof Flowers

Crepe Flowers last longer than any others; they are next to nature in form and color too, making them irresistible to lovers of the beautiful. They are particularly appropriate with Magnolia Wreaths, though this is only one of the many ways in which they may be used to advantage.

Crepe Flowers come in many forms—Dahlias, Chrysanthemums, Sweet Peas, Roses, St. Joseph Lilies, Carnations, Calla Lilies. The colors range from white in the lilies, through many colors in the other flowers: white, pink, lavender, red, pink tint and purple tint.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The changeable weather, with temperature varying from 36 to 62 degrees, has probably been responsible for the unevenness of trade during the last week. Greenhouse stock was considerably checked. There are practically no outdoor flowers on the market except cosmos. Dahlias are about over, but though there has been a great scarcity, there has been a much wider range of varieties and the colors are beautiful. Orchids, which have not been selling at all fast, are moving more freely now. Violets are fresher and of better color, and they sell well.

Pompons are arriving and are of good quality. Chrysanthemums are in great shape, and the flower stores all present such a picture as is only seen at this time of the year. Chrysolora is the finest yellow on the market, and other good varieties in white and pink keep the market fairly well supplied. Several growers are holding back some of their best stock for the flower show. Roses of fancy quality are arriving daily and are cleaned up fairly well. Some of last week's best sellers were Beauties, Milady, Richmond, Killarney, and White Killarney, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Lady Hillingdon, Mrs. Taft, Caprice, Bride and Maid. A few outdoor roses arrive, but sell poorly. Carnations are decidedly short in stem and in quantity. Few of the growers are cutting heavily and red ones are the scarcest of all. Valley, which had dropped away somewhat, is plentiful now. Easter and calla lilies are not plentiful as yet. A few good potted pompons sell

The Flower Show.

"Rochester is known throughout the country for its wonderful flower shows," said William C. Barry at the last meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association, held at the store of James Vick's Sons. "You have no idea," he said, "of the influence this kind of show exerts; it cannot be measured. Whether you derive a pecuniary benefit or not, you derive another sort of benefit which is far greater. While there certainly is some risk on the part of the association, the reward is great."

The reports of the various committees were heard. The chairmen of the committees are as follows: Felix Alberts, chairman of decoration; William Crockett, assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, chairman of advertising; Fred Vick, music; W. H. Dildine, finance; Chas. H. Vick, general committee.

William Pitkin, Jr., displayed the plans for the decoration of Convention hall. The opinion is that the hall will be fully as beautiful as in former years. The exhibits will be more numerous.

The lady florists have arranged for a tea garden as a concession.

Electric lights were represented as pumpkins.

The Eastern Market.

The market conditions have not materially changed from those of a week ago. Frost has put many of the dahlias out of the running, although there still are some thousands from favored localities that come into town daily on orders. The wholesalers are glad of this change, because the dahlia has had its day and there are too many other flowers that demand their attention.

Yellow chrysanthemums, chiefly Chrysolora, partly Robert Halliday, have been in full swing. Never before have so many fine flowers been offered so early in the season and never before have they sold so cheaply. There has at times been a scarcity of fine white and of fine pink in spots, but the medium grades have been sufficient and the poorer grades of all colors superabundant. Pompons fill the place of the ordinary grades of dahlias most acceptably; a great many have been sold at moderate prices.

Carnations have been rather more plentiful. Prices rule lower, particularly on red. Roses have not been quite so plentiful, except in the shorter

FACILITIES

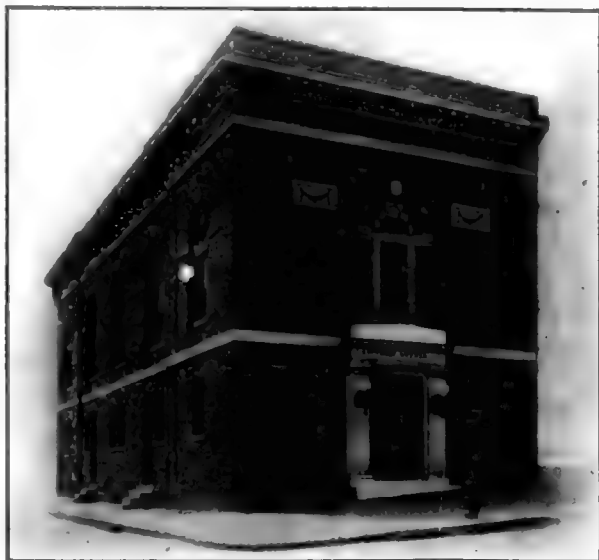

EVERY successful florist is quick to appreciate and grasp the opportunity to purchase from that market that affords the best stock as well as the most up-to-date facilities—a broad market in every sense of the word.

Representing four of the largest cities in the East in the flower business, as we do with New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, we feel we have facilities for taking care of our customers equaled by no other firm in the country.

We would particularly call the attention of our Southern customers to both Baltimore and Washington, where they will find us well equipped to take care of their wants in anything in flowers, plants, ribbons and supplies.

grades, which often fail to find buyers. Quite a little demand has sprung up for orchids. Gardenias are a trifle firmer, although still weak at times. Good valley is in fair demand. Violets are improving. The Hightstown doubles and the fancy singles find support. Easter lilies and callas are in moderate supply and fair demand.

It is probable that the chrysanthemum business represents at least forty per cent of the sales in this market. The volume of business is larger than last season, but the average prices are lower, particularly on the queen of autumn. The shipping demand is the life of the market today.

Ornamental Plant Changes.

Ever since the Centennial Exhibition held in Fairmount park in 1876, Horticultural hall has stood for all that is best in ornamental outdoor planting. I refer especially to the ground lying near the hall, and to the sunken garden and the east end in particular. The men whose knowledge and skill are shown in this work have developed the planting both at the east end and in the parterre, as it was called in the Centennial days, or the sunken garden, to a high degree of perfection. There you will find the plants best suited for carpet bedding and for long distance effects, some of these plants so rare that you will seldom see them elsewhere, all of them especially adapted to the positions to which they are assigned.

The east end glories in its cactus beds, edged with echeverias, sedums and alternantheras. The arrangement is carried out with marvelous exactitude. Every plant seems to be in position, varying not an inch. When you consider that many of the cacti are of human size, while the border plants are of extreme littleness, the difficulties of the planting become apparent.

Showy canna beds, each variety by itself, are used in place of geraniums as foils for the cactus beds at the east end. The visitor is supposed to stand on the great, broad steps in front of Horticultural hall, facing the Schuylkill river; the cactus beds are directly in front of him, with only a broad drive between; beyond are the canna beds with their glowing color, while in the far distance stretches a semicircle of showy, old-fashioned flowers, with a tall, dark green background. These old-fashioned flowers are arranged with much taste. When I saw them, just before frost, they presented a mass of color—contrast and harmony succeeding each other in bewildering fashion.

FLORIAN D. WALLACE

The beauty of this bed lies in the intelligent selection and spacing of the plants; the bed looked full without crowding, and the varieties chosen were suitable for the place.

The daring innovation in the sunken garden is the introduction of the canna. Nowhere else can you find canna beds beneath you. The effect is bizarre and rather taking. Fancy great beds of Mrs. Alfred F. Conard covered with superb trusses of La France pink blooms, and King Humbert covered likewise with great masses of scarlet, both slightly above the level of your shoe-tops. You learn to appreciate beauties of Mrs. Conard and King Humbert before unnoticed. But the real beauty of these canna beds lies in the

IMMORTELLS

We Should Worry

You need not worry if Immortelles cost $1.00 per bunch. Neidinger's Original Japanese Frieze Chenille is a substitute that can be used in place of Immortelles without the substitution being noticed.

This is one of the many Neidinger Useful Originalities. The enormous increase in the price of Immortelles put Neidinger on the lookout for a substitute and here it is.

bon-like borders of alternantheras hang in graceful festoons down the grassy banks. The borders of centaurea, with its silvery splendor, and of the darker achyranthes serve as a setting for the luster of these really magnificent cannas, that are interspersed here and there with rich beds of crotons, geraniums and just one striking bed of the variegated Abutilon Thompsoni. I really think that the canna is the greatest introduction that has been made at Horticultural hall, an introduction worthy of the company of the cactus and of the croton, destined, it may be, to surpass either in the scope of its usefulness.

Various Notes.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. report the receipt of 366 cases of immortelles by the steamer Menominie this week. Mr. Bayersdorfer says that every immortelle order will be filled.

The annual fall show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society will be held in Horticultural hall next week.

It opens on Tuesday, November 4, at 8 p. m. and closes on Friday, November 7, at 10 p. m. All exhibits should reach the hall in time to be staged before 2 p. m. on the opening day.

W. A. Saltford, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and William H. Vance, Wilmington, Del., were in town recently.

Frank P. Gaul assumed his duties as manager of the Washington branch of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., October 28.

Joseph G. Neidinger expects shipments of Japanese red frieze chenille on two steamers now. Mr. Neidinger considers this chenille a splendid substitute for immortelles.

William J. Baker is receiving a choice selection of well grown and rare chrysanthemums: Ramapo, clear yellow; Smith's Sensation, pink; Mrs. Hurley, bronze; Christy Mathewson, white; J. Franklyn Baker, a magnificent white.

Arthur Zirkman has returned from a successful western trip for the M. Rice Co. Mr. Zirkman spoke of the prosperous conditions in the west, and of the New York retailer of renown who came over just to see them, got things that he couldn't get elsewhere, and straightway returned to Gotham.

Charles Pappes is one of our most enterprising flower merchants. He now controls four neatly fitted up flower stands in the Pennsylvania Railroad station, three at Broad street and one in West Philadelphia.

James McClain's name was inadvertently omitted from the Panama party described last week. The menu cards, by the way, were reminders of the Panama railway.

The Robert Craig Co. is specializing on some choice semi-double and pompon chrysanthemums in pots, Garza, Quinola, Mrs. Frank Beu and Allentown.

Louis Berger is well again, I am glad to say.

Jack Neidinger has returned from a successful western trip.

Henry F. Michell said that the Hal-lowe'en window arranged by Philip grades, which often fail to find buyers. Quite a little demand has sprung up for orchids. Gardenias are a trifle firmer, although still weak at times. Good valley is in fair demand. Violets are improving. The Hightstown doubles and the fancy singles find support. Easter lilies and callas are in moderate supply and fair demand.

It is probable that the chrysanthemum business represents at least forty per cent of the sales in this market. The volume of business is larger than last season, but the average prices are lower, particularly on the queen of autumn. The shipping demand is the life of the market today.

Ornamental Plant Changes.

Ever since the Centennial Exhibition held in Fairmount park in 1876, Horticultural hall has stood for all that is best in ornamental outdoor planting. I refer especially to the ground lying near the hall, and to the sunken garden and the east end in particular. The men whose knowledge and skill are shown in this work have developed the planting both at the east end and in the parterre, as it was called in the Centennial days, or the sunken garden, to a high degree of perfection. There you will find the plants best suited for carpet bedding and for long distance effects, some of these plants so rare that you will seldom see them elsewhere, all of them especially adapted to the positions to which they are assigned.

The east end glories in its cactus beds, edged with echiverias, sedums and alternantheras. The arrangement is carried out with marvelous exactitude. Every plant seems to be in position, varying not an inch. When you consider that many of the cacti are of human size, while the border plants are of extreme littleness, the difficulties of the planting become apparent.

Showy canna beds, each variety by itself, are used in place of geraniums as foils for the cactus beds at the east end. The visitor is supposed to stand on the great, broad steps in front of Horticultural hall, facing the Schuylkill river; the cactus beds are directly in front of him, with only a broad drive between; beyond are the canna beds with their glowing color, while in the far distance stretches a semicircle of showy, old-fashioned flowers, with a tall, dark green background. These old-fashioned flowers are arranged with much taste. When I saw them, just before frost, they presented a mass of color contrast and harmony succeeding each other in bewildering fashion.

FLORIAN D. WALLACE

The beauty of this bed lies in the intelligent selection and spacing of the plants; the bed looked full without crowding, and the varieties chosen were suitable for the place.

The daring innovation in the sunken garden is the introduction of the canna. Nowhere else can you find canna beds beneath you. The effect is bizarre and rather taking. Fancy great beds of Mrs. Alfred E. Conard covered with superb fringes of La France pink blooms, and King Humbert covered likewise with great masses of scarlet, both slightly above the level of your shoe tops. You learn to appreciate beauties of Mrs. Conard and King Humbert before unnoticed. But the real beauty of these canna beds lies in the

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The market last week was as strong as the week previous as far as supply was concerned. There was a lack of activity among the retailers during the first few days of the week, so that the market became a heavy burden to the wholesalers, but the break came when the heavy orders for the Busch funeral arrived and the trade started to stock up with everything in season. This activity stiffened prices and the market was cleared of everything that was good. All grades and colors in chrysanthemums sold well and there were plenty of them. The horse show this week should again cause a clean-up of extra grades in mums. Roses have been and are quite plentiful, the bulk of them being in the first and second grades. Extra fancies sell well at any time. There should be a large demand for fancy Beauties this week. Violets are somewhat scarce and clean-up sales on them were reported. Carnations in the fancy and first grades are scarce, not half enough to supply the demand, but there is a large supply of short-stemmed ones. There is a brisk demand for lilies and valley and the local market was equal to the occasion. All outdoor stock has been killed by the recent frost. Large quantities of greens were sold.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. McNeill, of Jackson, Tenn., spent a few days here last week, calling on the local trade.

supplies. Mr. Fehr says business has opened up nicely and Mr. Emunds reports that he will soon cut a fine crop of chrysanthemums, of which the surplus stock is consigned to this market.

The Retail Florists' Association held a pleasant meeting October 20 and transacted a lot of business for the good of the local retail florists.

Henry Berning had a fine supply of fancy orchids and chrysanthemums last week, which came in handy for the big demand in the last three days.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. was well supplied daily with fancy roses from Werner Bros. and the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co. Their wire department worked overtime making special designs for the Busch funeral.

The Riessen Floral Co., Alex. Siegel,

Grimm & Gorly and the Mullanphy Flower Co. were swamped with funeral work, October 24 and 25, for local orders for the Busch funeral.

The Florists' Club's publicity committee met at the establishment of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., October 21. The committee consists of twenty-five members and only half responded to the call, but these held a good meeting, with splendid results. R. J. Windler was elected chairman, W. S. Wells, secretary, and Carl Beyer, treasurer. A full report of the plans laid out by this committee will be presented at the next meeting of the Florists' Club.

W. S. Wells, secretary of the Engelmann Botanical Club, reports that the club will hold its first meeting during the mum show at the Missouri Botanical Garden and that all meetings will hereafter be held in the afternoons, once a month, and that some kind of a show will be given at each meeting at the garden.

The funeral of the late Adolphus Busch, millionaire brewer, which took place October 25, caused a call for funeral work such as never before was known here. Designs of every description and size were seen, of which the cost could be placed at $30,000. Every florist in the city had from one to twenty-five designs to make, not counting those that were shipped in from outside. Fred C. Weber, Kalisch Bros. Floral Co., F. H. Weber, Ostertag Bros., C. The heavy frost of last week was welcomed by the trade, as it killed off the dahlia crop. This has put trade into a more normal condition, and business is better than it has been for some time. Wedding decorations are now beginning to keep the florists busy, and the future seems more hopeful.

Chrysanthemums are plentiful and good. Chrysolora at from $1.50 to $2.50 per dozen is in good demand. White Tousey is to be had in good condition. October Frost and Pacific Supreme are also among the leaders. There is quite a demand for carnations at from $1 to $3 per hundred. It is said that the growers have been paying so much attention to the production of chrysanthemums that they have almost sidetracked carnations, so that it is not so much a case of exceptional demand for this flower as of a shortage in supply.

Mrs. Charles Russell and Milady, in the rose line, are good sellers at the present time. There is plenty of valley to be had at $3 and $4. Gardenias are scarce and not obtainable in quantity; there are just enough cattleyas being received to fill a limited demand at $6 per dozen. Easter lilies are plentiful at $10 per hundred. A number of the stores report a heavy sale of Harisii ferns.

BOXWOOD SPRAYS for CHRISTMAS

THE average buyer of BOXWOOD SPRAYS must depend largely on the reliability of the house that sells and recommends it. This Company has been identified with the trade for over 15 years, and its members for nearly 50 years, and during that time have acquired the good will and reputation for RELIABILITY that we prize above all assets. We recommend to you our BOXWOOD SPRAYS for good value, full weight, fine color; clean, dense, glossy foliage; then, too, we ship successfully from coast to coast in our special lightweight shipping cases, which save you 20 pounds and over on express weight on every shipment of 50 pounds. Our price on this quality, packed 50 pounds net weight to a case, is $7.50. We are booking orders now. May we have the pleasure of supplying you this season?

Mr. Grower:

I have had 18 years' experience in gathering forest products. Aside from Cut Ferns, we get Ginseng from the woods, and have set out large amounts in years past and now have as fine a Ginseng garden as exists under cultivation. You are the very best class to grow this paying crop. I can supply you with stratified seeds and plants, from yearlings to 3-year-olds, right from the very best garden, which is now paying larger returns from ginseng roots than any flower crop that ever was sold. Write for full particulars. E. H. HITCHCOCK, Glenwood, Mich.

married to Mr. Jenkins, of the Department of Agriculture, and is busy receiving the congratulations of her many friends. Miss Carpenter was connected with the Washington Florists' Co. for something over four years.

A letter received from J. A. Philipps tells of the beauties of Los Angeles, Cal. Mr. Philipps has just reached that city from Dayton, O., where he has been for several months.

One of the most attractive window displays seen in Washington for some time has been devised by Mr. Lauscher for Z. D. Blackistone. This is a Halloween display. The color scheme is yellow and black. Two tripods in the foreground, one of tree branches, the other of brooms, support pumpkins containing yellow and bronze chrysanthemums and winter berries. The back of the window has been turned into a large house of cornstalks, and through the door may be seen Old Mother Goose riding aloft on her broom, her old black cat with the arched back and two grotesquely cut pumpkins. These revolve so that but one may be seen at a time through the doorway. Cabbages decorated with berries and small mums are at either side of the window, and small paper pumpkin jack-o'-lanterns, electrically lighted, and yellow chrysanthemums, large and small, complete the display, which is a most creditable one. C. COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has been good the last week, with an abundance of stock in most lines. The weather last week was bad; it was a rainy week up to Saturday, but even that did not keep the people from buying flowers. Saturday was a heavy day, and large quantities of flowers were disposed of. The big opening on Long street, from High street to Washington avenue, used many flowers. The stores were all decorated Saturday for the dedication of the new lights, and a great many of the stores gave away flowers.

Roses are good at the present time and the stock all looks promising for later crops. Carnations are coming in heavily, and, as a rule, are used up as they come in. Mums are leading in sales now and the supply is strong. Snow, Halliday, Touset and Pacific Supreme are in full supply now, with a few Chrysolora, which are just beginning to come in, but are hardly ready for cutting. The outlook is for heavy crops of mums from now on, and most of the growers are going to be a little shy on carnations during the mum season.

Valley has been scarce, with the demand rather light. Smilax is extremely scarce here and there will not be any to speak of for some time to come. Sweet peas are beginning to make their appearance and will be welcomed for corsage work. Silver Pink

DESERT HOLLY

Something Decidedly Novel and New

A native of Death Valley, having a white, waxen Holly leaf and stem, with small red cotton berry. This Holly will keep almost indefinitely if kept dry, and is a beautiful holiday decorator. In opening the second year's business, I am better prepared to handle the trade, with a better grade of Holly. Crates 2 x 2 x 2½ ft., $5.00 f. o. b. Amargosa, Nev. Advance orders will receive prompt attention. Samples, 50c and $1.00. Cash with order or C. O. D.

snapdragons are still much in favor and it is hard to get enough to go the rounds. From all reports, trade is quite heavy in bulbs and quantities are sold at this time. The call for plants in bloom continues, with little to sell as yet, but mums in pots are showing themselves and a few begonias are to be seen; it will not be long till there will be a good supply in that line. The call for house ferns and ferns for dishes is improving and quite a number are disposed of.

Various Notes.

The Columbus Floral Co. reports plenty of mums coming in at present. They have everything in order in their new location and are in good shape for handling stock to good advantage.

The Livingston Seed Co. made quite a display in its windows facing Long street for the big doings last Saturday.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is cutting heavily on mums, as well as on roses, carnations and snapdragons.

Sherman Stephens is cutting large quantities of mums, and they find ready sale at his end of town.

Fred Bauman has bought some of the old houses that were torn down at the Cottage Rose Gardens. He will cut the rafters to make smaller houses and will erect them west of the city on a tract of ground just purchased by him.

J. M.

Gettysburg, Pa.—A. F. Coulson has just completed a Moninger greenhouse.

Springfield, Ill.—R. T. Donnell is now growing vegetables under glass and is out of the florists' business.

New Orleans, La.—Charles Farley, formerly at 1716 Allen street, is now on Gentilly terrace.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

ROCHESTER, MINN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

A drizzling rain the major part of last week interfered materially with business. There was an increased supply of fine chrysanthemums, roses and carnations, but the demand decreased as the quantity increased. A few weddings, with preliminary receptions, etc., contributed not a little toward the redeeming of the general situation.

Various Notes.

William C. Pratt & Son are preparing to add to their range at Long Meadow a new greenhouse, 41x100 feet. Carnations are their principal crops.

More than 100 pieces were furnished by the florists of this city for the funeral of Mrs. Mulvaney, wife of Robert Jewett the actor. Many telegraph orders were filled.

John Anderson, employed by A. J. Olsen, East Providence, had a narrow escape from serious injury October 26. He attempted to leave an electric car before it had stopped and was thrown heavily to the roadway. He was badly cut and bruised about the face and head.

William Hay is cutting a fine crop of roses from his houses at Oaklawn. He is making heavy shipments to New York.

larly is this true of roses and carnations, but violets are not up to the mark and soon go to sleep. The most popular roses at present are Killarney Queen, Russell, Cardinal, Taft and Ward. Of Beauties the supply is rather small, but Russell in a great measure usurps the place of Beauty. Some good Christie-Miller are seen. This proves to be quite a popular rose. Of Killarney and White Killarney there is an adequate supply. Owing to the dark weather, color is poor in the pink varieties. Some nice Sunburst is seen, and this sells well. Richmond, which hitherto had been short-stemmed, is improving. In red roses the new Hadley is the most popular coming in today.

Carnations are a little lower in price. Pink Delight continues to be the most popular variety on the list. Fewer Enchantress are seen than a year ago. The leaders in white are White Wonder and White Enchantress. Violets are not overabundant. The weather has not suited them at all. Singles need a freezing before housing to check leafy growth. This season they had to be housed without it, and, as a consequence, flowers are fewer in number and paler in color.

Lilies have sold well, as have what callas are coming in. Valley is good, and there has been a good call for it for weddings. Marguerites sell well, but are rather small. Good cosmos has been in demand. Chrysanthemums are more abundant and lower in price. Ivory is now on hand and sells promptly. Chrysolora, Polly Rose, Pacific Supreme, Halliday and Pacific are other leaders. Few flowers pass $2 per dozen. Pink snapdragon is in demand and there is a good call for bachelor's buttons. There is an increasing supply of Cattleya labiata, with consequent lower prices. There are plenty of oncidiums, Dendrobium Phalaenopsis, and other orchids. Gardenias continue scarce.

In pot plants, chrysanthemums are now the leaders, closely followed by Lorraine begonias and cyclamens. For colored-leaved plants there has also been a good demand.

Flower Market Annual Meeting.

The annual banquet and business meeting of the Boston Flower Exchange was held at the American House October 25. The fact that there were rival tickets in the field for the board of directors brought out the largest attendance yet seen at any similar gathering, over 125 being present. After an excellent banquet, President W. C. Stickel called the meeting to order to hear the annual reports. That of the treasurer showed total receipts for the fiscal year to be $22,490.54, and the balance on hand $796.81. Dividends paid to stockholders during the last four years have approximated fifty per cent and the annual receipts are growing steadily. Some discussion arose over negotiations entered into a year ago between the two wholesale flower markets looking toward an amalgamation, of which, however, nothing came. W. H. Elliott, who was present, gave the views of himself and fellow directors of the Boston Coöperative Flower Market. The election of directors resulted in the return of the old board by a substantial majority, the members of which are: W. C. Stickel, Wm. Nicholson, Geo. Cartwright, Alex. Montgomery, L. M. Mann, A. Christensen, S. J. Goddard, A. S. Parker and Eber Holmes. While the ballots were being sorted and counted, addresses were made by Eber Holmes, W. J. Stewart, Peter Fisher, M. A. Patten, F. W. Fletcher and W. N. Craig. Songs were furnished by W. B. Goodenow and Nathan Leonard, which were enthusiastically encored. An excellent orchestra furnished selections while the banquet was being served.

Among other flowers on the table was a fine vase of Carnation Philadelphia from Mount Clemens, Mich., in charge of Geo. Hampton, who was present, representing the J. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia. This carnation attracted much favorable notice and looked fresh after its long journey. C. H. Totty had vases of four of his new mums, viz.: Gladys Duckham, R. B. Burge, Stanley Ven and Ivy Gay. The latter is a beautiful, commercial, incurved pink. S. J. Goddard and others had fine vases of carnations and chrysanthemums.

Various Notes.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. sent a magnificent wreath of orchids and lily of the valley to Indianapolis, October 26, for the funeral of the wife of former Vice-president Fairbanks. They also had several other large funeral orders the last week, as well as an elaborate decoration at the Second Congregational church, Boston, for the wedding of the daughter of H. B. Alden. They have a unique Hallowe'en window.

William Sim, in addition to his usual big pick of violets, is still handling fine gladioli from under glass at his Cliftondale establishment.

S. J. Goddard's carnations never looked better than at present. Pink Delight still leads all others in popularity and sales. White Perfection, White Wonder and Gloriosa are all first-class.

Frank J. Dolansky, the largest commercial orchid specialist in Massachusetts, is already cutting Cattleya Trianae in addition to C. labiata. He has a magnificent lot of 10,000 poinsettias coming on for the holidays.

Penn's original window of Canadian grains continues to attract attention. Its arrangement is attractive. The best selling roses here are Russell, Hadley, Cardinal, Killarney Queen and Beauty. October 26, out of 3,000 single stem mums, less than 200 were unsold at 6 p. m. The sales of violets here are immense, the flowers going all over New England. Wedding orders have been numerous of late.

Since the closing up of the sales-rooms of the Flower Growers' Sales Co., on Park street, all the shippers previously there are to be found at the Boston Flower Exchange.

The annual chrysanthemum show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which opens October 30, will hardly be up to the usual mark. Flowers are ten days late this season, owing to the long spell of dark, damp weather, and the management would have done well to have postponed it.

Thomas Roland is sending in a lot of nicely grown and flowered chrysanthemums. These are grown outdoors, potted up, and are dwarf and compact. Some of Mr. Roland's other specialties now are ericas, Otahite oranges, cyclamen and Dracena terminalis.

Patrick Welch says that October has been a good month with his firm, ahead of any previous October's business.

F. H. Houghton's window is always prettily arranged. Last week baskets of Ilex crenata and other berries, oak foliage, cyclamens and crotons made a pleasing picture.

E. F. Dwyer & Son, of Lynn, are still sending in splendid dahlias. These have lasted remarkably well this season.

John K. M. L. Farquhar left New York on the S. S. Kaiser Wilhelm October 28 for a business trip in Europe. He expects to be away about six weeks.

The members of the Boston Coöperative Flower Market are looking forward with pleasure to the annual dinner and reunion, November 1, at the Quincy, which will be made all the brighter with the ladies in attendance.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, had the first Paper White narcissi in the market October 25.

lot of Chrysolora, Halliday and Ivory mums.

The Halifax Garden Co., of Halifax, Mass., is specializing in pompon chrysanthemums this season, and has a fine daily cut. They are having excellent success with roses, which they are now growing for the first time.

Landscape classes, under the auspices of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, will resume in a few days, the necessary quota of students having been secured.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co., in order to handle their increasing store business, have leased a five-story building seventy-five feet square on Haymarket square for storage purposes. This will allow of the store on South Market street being used solely for sales purposes.

Peter Hylen, of Randolph, brought in the first Ivory mums to the local market. He also has nice Chrysolora and Halliday.

Littlefield & Wyman, of North Abington, report carnations as looking remarkably well. They are also doing a considerable business now in nursery stock.

W. N. Craig.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business was good last week, showing a little increase, though there was no difference in the price of cut stock. The horse show here had extremely little effect on the market. Many of the florists made big preparations for the event, but sold a great deal less than they expected. A few yellow mums and corsage bouquets were about all that were called for by attendants at the show. Chrysanthemums are in heavy supply, yet they are not always equal to the demand. There are some fine mums on the market and they bring a good price. The rose crops continue heavy. The Killarneys are the leaders, although there are some fine Richmonds and Beauties. The shorter grades of Beauties sell the best. The call for yellow roses is light. Carnations are making a better appearance than last week; they look better in every way. Orchids are selling better than in previous years, especially for corsage bouquets. There is an abundance of all kinds of greens.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray was exceedingly busy last week, decorating for lunch and dinner parties. His fancy mums have sold remarkably well this season.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley has moved to newer quarters, where she has more room and also better display windows. Her new address is 710 Minnesota avenue, next door to her former place. She reports business as extra good.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had three good wedding decorations, each of which required a great deal of stock. T. Brackenbery, formerly with C. P. Mueller, at Wichita, Kan., is now at Pleasant Hill, with the Kellogg Co.

The Alpha Floral Co. is sending out a fine catalogue of about sixty pages, containing sixty-nine cuts of different floral pieces. The catalogue will be distributed throughout Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

The Linwood Floral & Nursery Co. has received three carloads of nursery stock to be planted out this fall. The firm's business has increased until it is more than double what it was at this season last year.

A new firm has started business at 911 West Seventh street, Kansas City, Kan., under the name of Hardy & Bernard. Both members of the firm are ladies. The trade wishes them success.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, O. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

At the dinner in New York last week in honor of Captain Inch, Mr. Wheeler, of W. E. Marshall & Co., represented the seed trade.

C. KEUR & SONS, of Hillegom, Holland, lost several cases of bulbs on the steamer Voltorno, when it took fire and sank in mid-ocean two weeks ago.

THE Laughlin Seed Co., San Jose, Cal., has transferred its main office to its storage headquarters at Nappanee, Ind., but it is stated that the acreage for onion seed in California will be increased for 1914.

THE bulb business is on the boom at most of the seed stores these days, following the first good freeze to clear the flower beds of all summer stock. Wholesalers have had a good season and still are experiencing an excellent demand. It looks as though the retail trade will clear everything up.

THE prospect for bouquet green this season is not materially different from last year except in the attitude of certain handlers who did not come out even in 1912. When there is no money to be made not many care to stand between shipper and consumer of an article that fluctuates sharply in price. The risks are too great.

THERE is a prospect that the reduction of seventy-five per cent, from 40 cents to 10 cents, in the duty on peas will result in some little increase in the imports, although 30 cents per bushel has not been a prohibitive sum when reputable stocks could be had. The production of garden peas for seed is on the increase in New Zealand and the exporters there are reaching out for more American business.

THE duty of 50 cents per thousand on gladiolus bulbs irrespective of size or value is the most inconsistent feature of the present rates on the horticultural trades' commodities. Had the gladiolus interests spoken in time there is little doubt that more reasonable rates would have been arranged, but it is likely to be some years before there is another opportunity to secure legislation. At the Minneapolis meeting the American Gladiolus Society voted to ask for a rate of $5 per

THERKILDSON NOT ALARMED.

W. F. Therkildson, chairman of the committee on postal affairs of the American Seed Trade Association, feels that the weight of objection against the inclusion of catalogues in the parcel post zone system will be sufficient to head off the proposal of the postmaster general.

"I am in receipt of letters from the Interstate Commerce Commission, written to several of the Cleveland printers as well as to myself," says Mr.
Therkildson, "assuring us that our suggestions and objections would have full consideration in the hearing. I am also advised that the National Ty-pothetæ has protested and condemned, by wire, any damaging action.

"I feel that we have done all that we can under the conditions that surround the present method by which this will or will not be authorized, as I am reliably informed that the action of the I. C. C. is rather perfunctory, they acting largely upon the recommendations of the postmaster general, and for that reason I have directed my fire more at Messrs. Burleson and Dockery than at the I. C. C. Our case is now with Burleson and McGinty."

SEED TRADE AT NASHVILLE.

The seed houses at Nashville, Tenn., say that they are only limited in the business that they do in field seeds by the supply they can secure. There is a general shortage of seasonable field seeds, and there is no better outlook for those desired for spring sales. Gardeners are finding it hard to secure a supply of shallot and Multiplier onion sets. It was asserted one day this week that there were not ten bushels in the city.

The bulb business has been rather spotted this season and there is likely to be some surplus unless business picks up.

The Cumberland Seed Co. reports a good business for the last three weeks and is sold out of several varieties of field seeds. McKay, Reece & Co. say that they have never found it so hard to locate a supply of cow pea seed as this season. They say that in the entire district from which they are accustomed to draw their main supply, and they handle eight or ten cars wholesale besides their own retail trade every season, they do not believe there are 1,500 bushels of seed. They are refusing to quote prices, as they say they are unable to buy at any price at present. Soy beans also are scarce, having failed to set seed. Yellow Multiplier onion sets, of which there is usually a good supply grown here, are conspicuous by their entire absence. They tell me that they have been unable to buy a single bushel this fall.

BURPEE'S LOMPOC RANCH.

A Santa Barbara newspaper has a two-column write-up of Floradale, the Lompoc seed farm of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., in which the following appears:

"About five years ago W. Atlee Burpee, after an exhaustive search throughout California, decided that the Lompoc valley offered the best advantages and purchased between fifty and sixty acres of the finest land in that fabulously rich valley. The results that he has attained during the last five years have fully justified his investment and proved his good judgment in the selection of a location. After selecting the land, Mr. Burpee placed it under the charge of Edwin Lonsdale, who for many years was connected with the Girard College, Philadelphia.

"In addition to the fifty-some acres of land owned by Burpee, about 100 acres of adjoining land are leased, giving control of about 160 acres. Of this acreage about 120 acres is devoted to the growing of sweet pea seed. The yield this season reached a total of nearly fifteen tons. There were grown on the entire ranch about 500 varieties of sweet peas, there being several selections to some of the varieties, making in all about 700 selections. Of the varieties Mr. Burpee has featured four that he will use as leaders for his 1914 catalogue. These are the King White, which is his leading variety; the Illuminator, Empress Eugenie and Wedgewood. The King White variety is one of the most wonderful sweet peas in the world. About 700 pounds of these were grown at Floradale this season.

"One of the most attractive and interesting varieties of flower seeds that were grown at Floradale this season was the centaurea. There are four specially beautiful varieties of this flower, called the Bride, Bridegroom, Bridesmaid and Honeymoon.

"Floradale has not only proven a valuable investment for the seedsman, but has been one of the causes for the rapid advance in value of the land in Lompoc valley. This land could have been purchased eight or nine years ago for from $100 to $150 an acre, but today is bringing from $250 to $600 an acre and no doubt the prices will go much higher in the next few years.

"Last spring when it became apparent to Mr. Lonsdale that it would be necessary to irrigate the land, as the rainfall was light during the winter, the work of putting down a well was taken up and, like all the other work which has been done on the place, it was decided to do the thing right and see what could be done in the development of a permanent water supply. A 10-inch well was drilled to a depth of 312 feet, but the casing could only be put down to a depth of 262 feet. The supply secured at that depth has proven to be quite sufficient for all purposes and has also served to prove that an unlimited supply of water can be had by going down after it. The water arose in the well to within nine feet of the surface and a 12-inch pump operated by a twenty horse-power electric motor was run constantly during the times of irrigating, pumping over 1,250,000 gallons of water a day. Mr. Lonsdale estimates that they have sufficient water in that one well to irrigate 500 acres of land, and during the season several of the farmers in the vicinity were supplied with water to irrigate their crops."

Gentlemen:

We wish to compliment you on the business getting ability of your paper.

It is with much pleasure that we write that the RESULTS of our Easter specialty ads in the recent issues of the Florists' Review have been very LARGE and EXCEEDED OUR EXPECTATIONS, helping to make this Easter season the most successful in our history.

Orders coming from all parts of the country show that The Review is read EVERYWHERE.

They invariably mentioned having read the ad in The Review.

Thanking you for your cooperation and results obtained,

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums to right, left, before, behind and—as Mark Twain would have said—at all points approximating those general directions. This about describes the market in mums. Business is good, but does not keep pace with the immense supply of northern stock and of local-grown flowers, which latter are better this year than ever. Bonnaffon, Silver Wedding, Duckham, Col. Appleton and Mrs. Evans are among the most popular kinds. Roses, too, are extremely plentiful, the indoor stock being especially good and much more plentiful than is usual at this time of the year. Beauties, Richmonds and Marylands are the best from inside; La Detroit, Brunner and the Cochetts are the outdoor growers' long suit. Carnations are excellent. Centaureas are clear and fine in color. Valley is plentiful and good, while orchids are still scarce.

There has been a great improvement in the window displays in this city of late, as a result of friendly rivalry among our best retailers, a good sign.

For a Florists' Club.

There seems to be no help for it—the florists' club has to come. The present societies are doing excellent work along their own lines, but the florists, wholesale and retail, want a club, want a show—want, in fact, everything that will boost along their business, and they are going to get it. This much in advance, and the writer invites comment from everyone interested, either verbal or by letter. A general meeting will be called shortly and everyone interested in the business will be invited to attend, for this will be a get-together, something-doing sort of meeting, not a mere squabble.

Various Notes.

Just at the moment of writing, I heard of a dastardly attempt to ruin the chrysanthemums and other flowers grown by Mrs. Garrett at Eagle Rock. No particulars could be gleaned and I could not reach Mrs. Garrett by telephone. The wires supporting her plants, it is said, were cut, ruining some flowers but not causing any great amount of damage. Mrs. Garrett's business methods are such that she has always been an honor to the trade. It is to be hoped that the miscreant who attempted the work of ruin will be run to earth by the time these notes appear.

G. Newman, of Murata & Co., left October 21 for San Francisco, with the idea of opening a branch of the business there.

The H. N. Gage Co. is strong on finely colored Cecile Brunners from young stock and I recently noted some elegant pompon chrysanthemums from the Montebello ranch.

At the store of the Redondo Floral Co. a general cleaning up and repainting has taken place. The walls are done in red and green. Business is keeping up finely here.

J. W. Wolters reports business excellent at the Hill street store.

Ed. Rust, of the Palm Nurseries, South Pasadena, had the misfortune to break his arm recently when cranking his automobile.

The Germain Seed & Plant Co. received its first carload of Belgian nursery stock October 20. The azaleas arrived in good shape after their long journey, being well leaved, with good, prominent buds.

Jacob Dieterich has been busy clearing his cars of box, bay and other ornamental nursery stock from Europe.

The Los Angeles contingent returned to the city from San Francisco with glowing stories to tell of the beauties of the show and the royal time given them by the northern brethren.

The new roses are now making a great display at the Dieterich & Turner greenhouses at Montebello. Mr. Turner thinks highly of Mrs. Wakefield Christie-Miller, this beautiful silvery pink standing well for days after cutting. Milady is good here, and a new light pink, not yet named, is going to be an elegant forcing rose, of which more anon. Many thousands of young stock of all the novelties have already been rooted and potted.

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, stopped at Fresno on his way back from the San Francisco show, to attend the California nurserymen's meeting.

A. S. Rölker, of A. Rölker & Sons, horticultural importers, New York city, has been calling on the trade here in the interests of his firm. Mr. Rölker came from San Francisco via Fresno, where he attended the nurserymen's convention.

T. F. M. Williamson reports a decidedly better tone to business of late and he is keeping up the good work by fine, showy stock in the windows and store. Fred Nelson, lately of the Wright force, is now with Mr. Williamson; R. Schenck is no longer connected with this store. A new ice-box is to be installed at once.

At the Los Angeles Flower Market business keeps up finely. The stock now offered is good and in plentiful supply. A fine exhibit was put up by Mr. Morton at the Pasadena show, not for competition, but to help the display.

At the establishment of Walter Armacost & Co., at Sawtelle, the stock looks remarkably well. Some young croton stock is especially good; so are the cyclamens, Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and orchids, of which latter a good number have been put in. The mums are also excellent and in greater variety than at most places.

H. R. Richards.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Business continues to improve and there now is more stock to stimulate trade. The stores are full of fine chrysanthemums, coming principally from California in good shape. Carnations are still anything but plentiful and there is strong demand. Roses are good and there are more of them in evidence than for some time. Good orchids are seen in most of the stores. Valley is scarce, but greens are now fairly abundant. Some large funeral orders this week have kept the stores busy.

Various Notes.

Gus Bjorkman, of Hollywood Gardens, has been in the hospital with a severe attack of tonsillitis. He was able to get out October 20, but still is feeling the effects of the illness.

Mr. Van Slyke, of Van Slyke & Seamon, of Tacoma, has been visiting Seattle growers, giving an account of his recent travels in this state and British Columbia.

George Antenen, of the Seattle Floral Co., has been prostrated with a severe turn of pleurisy. He is out again and seems well on the way to recovery.

A. E. Buxton, who has been running the plant of the Thomas Floral Co. for the last nine months, has severed his connection with that concern. He has been visiting his old neighbors at Brighton and looks as if the climate of the White River valley had suited him.

J. Balmer has taken up his residence in Seattle again. For the last four years he has had charge of the parks in Vancouver, B. C.

John Bellon, the wire man, says business is none too good. Folks would need to be buried frequently to suit John.

The H. B. Burdett Co. is finding it pays to advertise. A full page in the Times last week produced results that have been astonishing.

Ralph Richardson certainly has a fine lot of carnations. He makes a specialty of this flower and, while handling a few others in a minor way, this young man can show lots of his elders how to produce the goods.

T. W.

TACOMA, WASH.

The Market.

Trade for the last few weeks has been all that one could desire and things look good for a brisk fall and winter business. Stock is scarce, with hardly a carnation in sight. Mums are becoming more plentiful, but the quality has been none too good, although it shows much improvement with the coming on of the midseason varieties.

There has been an unusual call for pot plants and anything with a bloom sells on sight. There would seem to be a good opening for a grower of this kind of stock, as there is no place growing pot plants to any great extent.

Various Notes.

The social night of the Florists' Club was poorly attended, due, perhaps, to many of the members being unaware of the twice-a-month meetings. During the fall and winter the club will meet on the first and third Thursday of the month, the first Thursday being the regular business meeting, while the third Thursday will be devoted to social affairs.

On a recent visit to H. W. Manike's place I found things in fine condition. The greater part of the bench space at this place is devoted to carnations, but violets, roses, mums, etc., are grown to some extent. Mr. Manike has been in business at this location for many years and sells his entire output, together with much outside stock, at retail. He reports business good along all lines.

The Northwestern Floral Co. is handling a large lot of nursery stock this year, being the Tacoma distributing point for J. B. Pilkington, of Portland, Ore.

H. Ernest Rees, the popular Olympia florist, visited this city recently. While here he entered into a life partnership with one of our fair young ladies.

The Market.

Business is keeping the pace that was set several weeks ago. With the continuous pleasant weather, stock has become more plentiful. Carnations are giving a good cut, except the white varieties, which are coming in slowly. Mums are plentiful, with a good variety. Yellow seems to predominate in colors. Roses are yielding a heavy cut of excellent quality. American Beauties are gradually improving in quality. Violets are rather scarce; there are a few double ones, but it will be some time before there will be any large amount.

Various Notes.

J. B. Pilkington has returned from San Francisco, where he went to attend the flower show. He reports that several of the growers there will exhibit here during the show next month.

Shipments of supplies and baskets have come in. They were forwarded from the east by boat. While this way takes considerably longer, the charges are much less.

Chas. Street, formerly of Portland, but now of Ladysmith, B. C., is spending a few days in the city. E. R. C.

SUNNYSIDE, WASH.

Business is good in the Yakima valley. The Sunnyside Florists, who commenced business in this town about two years ago, have recently added two more greenhouses to their plant. They have also erected a large boiler shed, office and store. They are growing a miscellaneous assortment of flowers to suit the local trade and had great success with carnations last year.

cuneatum, some six feet across, and an immense Harrisii fern, in elegant condition. Orchids are evidently not the only plants Mr. Mackenzie knows how to grow.

The Clemence Nurseries had a 50-foot exhibit containing the pretty little showy stock for which this firm is getting a name, backed up with fine palms, ferns and other foliage plants. Some seedling fuchsias showed up attractively here, also some extra good forms of coleus and petunias. Streptocarpus Wendlandii was also well shown, and something of a surprise was a couple of well flowered plants of Azalea Simon Mardner. Victor Clemence is showing himself to be not only a good plant grower, but also a good decorator.

A somewhat unusual exhibit, but a welcome one, was from the J. A. Bauer Pottery Co., of Los Angeles, consisting of many of the specialties of the firm's manufacture. The pots and vases with various colors burned in were attractive.

The Los Angeles Flower Market put up a nice group of outdoor carnations.

George Shields, gardener for Mrs. Allerton, put up a large group of flowering and foliage plants, standard plants of geraniums being effectively introduced at various points. Pretty small plants of fancy-leaved caladiums and dwarf chrysanthemums helped to round out an excellent exhibit.

Miss Sadie Thomas had not finished her group when I left, having had to stay at home late to tie up the goat, but she had some remarkably good stock going into it and it was already showing what this energetic and clever little lady can do in the way of artistic arrangement.

A good showing of bulbs was made by the Campbell Seed Store, Morris & Snow Seed Co., of Los Angeles, and others.

Perhaps the most unusual and costly exhibit put up was that of the Orchid Flower Shop. This consisted almost entirely of rich and varied shades of ribbons and chiffons, with a few choice corsage bunches in various flowers to match the ribbons.

Only time will tell what the judges did in the way of awards or how the public responded, but the committee in charge and all others concerned certainly deserved success. The judging was in the hands of William Hertrich, E. Branton, A. Urquhart and C. Morton.

Forest Grove, Ore.—Leon E. Sawicke, formerly in the employ of the Milot-Mills Co., at Wenatchee, Wash., is now with the Martin & Forbes Co., at this place.

Fresno, Cal.—Charles A. Chambers was married October 6 to Miss Alice Roland, of Oakland. On account of the pressure of business, the honeymoon will not carry him far from home.

Centralia, Wash.—J. W. Watson, of Tacoma, has leased eight acres of land here for growing flowers. He will open a branch store, to be operated in connection with his two stores in Tacoma.

Montebello, Cal.—The Chamber of Commerce is using the prestige given it by the growers and nurseries situated here to advertise the city in a folder recently issued. Montebello is denominated the place "where the flowers grow," and illustrations showing a part of Dieterich & Turner's range and the residence of Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, are included in the folder. One of the points in the town's behalf is that "there are more nurseries in Montebello than in any other one district of its size in California."

H. L. OLSSON, 11 Post St., Spokane, Wash.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE obituary column this week contains the notice of the death of R. B. Stoddard, a veteran nurseryman of Sterling, Ill.

FREDERICK AEBI, formerly in the nursery business at Rutherford, Cal., has moved to 1547 Russell street, Berkeley, California.

PLANS are being drawn up for a reinforced concrete office building for the Texas Nursery Co., at Sherman, Tex., work on which will be started at once.

P. H. SIMS, of the Sims & Co. Nursery, has moved from East St. Louis to Litchfield, Ill., where, with his two sons, Roy and James Sims, he will set out nursery stock.

A. L. ZIMMERMAN, who formerly conducted a nursery near Weatherby, Mo., expresses a decided preference for the Texas climate, after having spent four years in the southwestern part of that state.

THE T. M. Mellville Nurseries Co. has been established at Phoenix, Ark., and a store opened at the corner of Polk and First streets. T. M. Mellville and E. J. Helsey, both experienced in this line, are partners in the enterprise.

A DECISION of the attorney-general of the state of Washington, holding that counties cannot levy a tax to provide for horticultural inspection, has put this work entirely in the hands of the state inspectors. This will insure uniform inspection within that state, at least.

A NURSERY is being started at Orange Park, Fla., by Mr. Schultze, of the firm of Schultze & Obermaier, York, Pa., who is a landscape architect and came to this country from Dresden, Germany. He has put in a new irrigating system of his own invention and later will erect greenhouses.

WHILE the nurseries that deal exclusively in fruit trees do not, as a rule, consider the immediate future as holding out any especially bright promise, those that deal in ornamentals, hardy perennials, etc., are in position to look forward to the best season on record. The sale for ornamentals never was better than now.

THEODORE TICE, who is associated with his father-in-law, Prof. Chaffer, in growing nursery stock for orange and grape fruit groves, at Lemon Bluff, Volusia county, Fla., has resigned his position as head of the mechanical department of the Gazette-News, of Daytona, Fla., to give his whole time to the nursery business.

COMPETITION in the nursery line is being begun by the state of New Hampshire. The nursery established three years ago by the forestry department is now yielding trees for distribution. Over 200,000 have already been supplied to applicants and more than 4,000,000 have been grown, including white, red and Scotch pine, Norway and white spruce, European larch, basket willow, southern poplar and fir balsam. The state furnishes the trees to any applicant in the state at the rate of $2 per thousand seedlings, $4 for medium sized and $6 for large trees.

THE El Paso Nursery Co., of El Paso, Tex., has been incorporated with a capitalization of $20,000 by Charles Davis, W. D. Wise and R. A. Harris.

THE Perry Nursery Co., Rochester, N. Y., now has 1,200 acres in nurseries in the Genesee valley, which is asserted to be the best section in the country for growing nursery stock.

R. J. COE, of the Coe, Converse & Edwards Co., of Fort Atkinson, Wis., spoke to the members of the Oshkosh Horticultural Society at the October meeting on the interesting subject, "How I Became a Horticulturist."

THIS is the eighth year in business of the Hankinson Nursery Co., of Hankinson, N. D. Each year has brought larger returns than the year before, and this fall's shipments, with which the entire force is now busy, will raise the season's total above all previous ones.

THE Colorado Nursery Co., of Loveland, Colo., is again in the hands of O. D. Shields and J. J. Noble. The former began the business in 1880 and four years later formed, with the latter, the Colorado Nursery Co., which they carried on successfully for sixteen years until they sold it. The business has now reverted to the two original owners.

BOGUS CHECKS ON NURSERIES.

Warnings have been sent to banks advising them of the use of bogus nursery company checks by a swindler operating in Ohio, Michigan and Indiana. Different names are used on the checks. Banking authorities at Columbus say that among the names used are these: "Phoenix Nursery Co., per A. C. Cummins, treasurer;" "The Sherwood Nursery Co., per A. C. Sherwood, treasurer," and "Standard Nursery Co., per H. C. Simpson, treasurer."

COMPLY WITH QUARANTINE ACT.

Canada and Scotland have been added to the list of nations which have complied with the inspection and certification requirements of the Agricultural Department of the United States under the plant quarantine act. The division of entomology of the Canadian department of agriculture will inspect, certify and seal shipments of plants

PINK AND WHITE DOGWOODS.

Will you kindly inform me what is the correct name of the much admired dogwood which we find in the woods all through America? I mean the one which grows to the size of a small tree and flowers early in summer, bearing large, single flowers. In the west it blooms white only, but in the east there are many pink flowering ones. I want to get seed of the pink flowering variety, but do not know where to obtain it. Where could I get it? C. V. A.

Cornus florida is probably the white variety referred to. There is also a pink form, called C. florida rubra. I do not know what firm offers seeds of this dogwood, but the plants are obtainable from most of the large nurseries. To be sure of securing the pink variety, true to name, I would advise you to secure plants from some good nursery: C. W.

THE LEGAL SITUATION.

In his address before the Portland convention on "Horticultural Laws," that momentous issue confronting all nurserymen, George C. Roeding, of Fresno, Cal., pointed out the crux of the situation and the necessary steps for betterment.

"It is quite evident," he said, "that if the nurserymen desire to have their interests taken care of, it will be necessary to present their side of the case and coöperate with the authorities and the legislative part of the government to see that the laws which are enacted protect and do justice to all interests concerned along lines of equity. If we scrutinize even casually these numerous and diverse interests, we soon learn that the subject is fraught with perplexing problems of a legal as well as of a practical nature. This is illustrated in California, where a change in control will be more difficult to bring about than in any other state of the Union.

"There each county has the power to enact its own legislation to protect its individual interests, and the consequence of this is that we have as great a variety of horticultural laws as there are counties in the state. All of this keeps the nursery business in an atmosphere of doubt and apprehension in respect to all inter-county shipments; for to keep in touch with all these local ordinances is no small job and requires constant vigilance to prevent serious misunderstanding in the making of shipments. Efforts have been made repeatedly to have this complicated condition of affairs corrected by placing the entire operation of horticultural laws in the hands of the state authorities.

"The state law as it exists today affords all the necessary protection for the fruit growers and nurserymen, and there is no complaint against it, but the mere fact that our board of supervisors has legislative powers places the members in the position to enact laws of their own, to protect the fruit interests of their respective counties. In many instances these ordinances are extremely drastic in their application, as they go so far as to prohibit the shipment of stock from one county where a pest is known to exist into an adjoining county, even if the stock is not infested. This is a manifestly unjust law and actually jeopardizes the business of nurserymen and causes, in many cases, heavy financial losses. The only means to prevent the counties from passing ordinances to regulate the shipments of nursery stock is a state law removing the prerogative of the counties to exercise any authority in the operation of horticultural laws, but the objection of the counties to relinquish this authority and the fact that the county commissioners are paid out of the county funds, have made it ut-

"The same conditions prevail in state legislation. The laws of no two states are quite alike, so there is the same trouble, not only in their legal phases, but also from a utilitarian point of view. These conditions are not only a reflection on the law-making power of counties and states, an exasperation to the development of the business, but an indication that, with modern methods of distribution and interstate business, horticultural inspection, regulation, disinfection and quarantine are in the nature of the situation federal functions and should apply to the country at large and not be confined to municipal, county or state lines. Uniformity in horticultural legislation is to be desired not only by nurserymen but by fruit and vegetable growers, fruit packers and shippers. How it shall be obtained is the momentous question."

The Market.

Trade conditions have improved considerably since the coming of cool, crisp weather, which seemed to give business an impetus. Chrysanthemums lead the market once more, and all the early varieties are in now. Chrysolora is finding great favor as a good yellow mum and has all the qualities of the late yellows. Touset is good at this writing. It is a little early for pompon mums, but there are a few good colors to be had this early.

Carnations are quite plentiful. The blooms, however, are medium sized and the stems short. The frosts of the last week have killed all outdoor stock, which means that there will be a greater demand for greenhouse flowers. Valley is extra fine. There are few dahlias seen in this market. Roses are much improved by the cold weather; nevertheless, the prices are high.

Various Notes.

Recent visitors were Robert Shoch, of the M. Rice Co.; James J. Karins, of Henry A. Dreer, and S. D. Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co.

William Schlatter & Son held their third annual chrysanthemum exhibition last week, to which the public was invited by special cards. The greenhouses were filled with good plants and fine mums.

Osterman & Steele made the blanket for the casket of the late R. W. Gillette, of Westfield. It consisted of American Beauties, valley and maiden-hair ferns, and brought a fancy price.

George Carty was thrown from his wheel October 23 and slightly injured. His wheel, however, was considerably damaged. The automobile which struck him was owned by Fred T. Ley.

Meacham & Hassell are running their new Ford car. It is painted gray, with black running gear, and gold lettering, edged with black, advertises the Posey Shop and the butterfly trade-mark.

T. F. Sheehan reports that business is good. He did a decoration recently for the Knights of Columbus memorial service at the cathedral. He also had the Schadt-Adams wedding.

The Besse-Holmes wedding was a big affair. Great quantities of autumn foliage, southern smilax, red roses and Mark Aitken's display windows are most attractive, with fancy basket arrangements and stunning vases of mums.

CARNATION GLORIA

If you are looking for a good, lively, shell-pink, free-blooming variety, you will find GLORIA hard to beat.

Its growth is remarkably strong, making a quantity of flowering shoots rather than wonderful length of stems. It has made 24 blooms to the plant. The bloom is fair sized and the calyx good. It's bound to be in great demand.

The Market.

Business last week was good and all had their share. Had it not rained almost every day, business might have been still better. The florists had a number of large decorations to make, and these, with the funeral work, called for lots of flowers and greens. Chrysanthemums are here in all their glory, and, to a great extent, roses and carnations must take a back seat. These, however, are of good quality. Mums are selling for $1 to $3 per dozen. The frosts have not been heavy enough to kill the outdoor stock, so that there is a good deal of this stock on the market.

Various Notes.

Mrs. M. L. Doerr did a fine business last week and is much encouraged over the outlook for the future. She had a large blanket and several other large designs to make. She had to secure extra help and was fortunate in securing the services of Miss Lillian Hartmetz. In addition to her newspaper advertising, a large list of business announcements are being mailed out.

Wm. Blackman, of the Wm. Blackman Floral Co., was injured last week as the result of a collision with a mail wagon. He was bruised considerably and had one rib broken. Owing to his advanced age, his condition was serious for a few days, but he is now recovering. He is 77 years of age.

Julius Niednagel & Sons have had several good decorations lately. They are cutting a nice lot of mums of all grades and colors. The roses and carnations are in excellent condition.

J. C. Elspermann is doing a good business and looks forward to a big week, as next Sunday is All Souls' day.

Louis Fritsch says business is increasing, and he looks for a busy week. His carnations are looking fine.

The Evansville Floral Co. is enjoying an increase of business since the weather has become more seasonable.

C. L. Niednagel continues cutting fine American Beauty and other roses.

E. L. F.

Lakewood, N. J.—McElhinney Bros., formerly in business at Franklin, Pa., have removed to this town.

LAGER & HURRELL, - Summit, New Jersey

What every Carnation grower really needs is a true Rose-pink Carnation.

The Philadelphia Pink is the one--

When we say that

is the ideal rose-pink Carnation in every respect (color, productiveness, size of bloom, non-splitting calyx, length of stem, etc.), we state the plain, unvarnished truth.

But we do not want you to take our word for it. Investigate for yourself, before you place the order. We want you to see it growing. Come to Detroit at any time during the season, and see for yourself about thirty-five thousand plants—as clean, as vigorous, and as perfect as any you ever had the good fortune to have on your own place.

PHILADELPHIA is a producer superior to many and second to none. Its color is of that shade of rose-pink which sells at sight and which your average lady customer would designate as "perfectly lovely."

Place your order early to insure early delivery and remember that you reserve the right to cancel it if upon seeing the Philadelphia growing you conclude it is not up to your expectations.

NOTE:—Any Florist Club wishing sample blooms can have them by addressing a postal to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, 38 Broadway, Detroit, Mich.

PRICES:

$12.00 per 100. $100.00 per 1000; 2500 at $95.00 per 1000; 5000 at $90.00 per 1000.

S. S. SKIDELSKY & CO., 1218 Betz Bldg., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

AZALEAS

By mistake we are going to have double the amount of Azaleas we usually handle. We are going to offer 10 to 12-inch heads in white, pink and red, at $65.00 per 100 or $8.50 per dozen; 14 to 16-inch heads, at $85.00 per 100 or $10.00 per dozen; 16 to 18-inch heads, at $150.00 per 100 or $20.00 per dozen.

In Gloire de Lorraine Begonias we offer in 3-in., at $35.00; 4-in., at $45.00; 5-in., at $65.00; 6-in., at $75.00 per 100, all extra fine plants. Luminosa and five or six other blooming varieties of Begonias, 2½-in., $5.00; 3-in., $8.00; 4-in., $12.00. Rex varieties at same price.

Primroses, Chinese, Obconica and Forbesi, 2½-in., $5.00; 3-in., $7.50; 4-in., $12.50. Malacoides, 3-in., $7.50; 4-in., $12.50.

Celestial Peppers and Jerusalem Cherries, 3-in., $7.50; 4-in., $12.50 per 100.

Umbrella plants, 3-in., $10.00 per 100.

Ferns are extra fine, and all kinds; prices are low for quality.

Little Godfrey Callas, 3-in., $5.00; 4-in., $8.50. Special Birch Bark Canoes with Japanese Air Plants at $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00 per dozen.

Elm Bark Canoes, 2 feet long, fine for filling with plants for Thanksgiving and the holidays, at $4.00 per dozen. 3-ft. size at 75c each. Order a few of these. We also have an extra nice lot of Baskets at 35c, 50c, 75c and $1.00 each. Try a half dozen as samples.

The Market.

Last week was ushered in by a killing frost, October 19. There has been no frost since then, but everything was cut down except plants that were in well protected places. Cosmos and outdoor chrysanthemums were not injured, however. The week has been rainy and not at all such a week as would bring business; yet the sales have kept up pretty well. The cloudy, cool weather has held crops back somewhat and that has helped.

Chrysanthemums are here in full crop at last and are commanding good prices, few selling over the counter for less than $3 and $4 per dozen. The quality is perhaps even better than last year and we thought we had as good mums as any other market last fall. The pot plants are still rather scarce. Roses continue in full supply and violets are coming more freely than a week ago, though the quality is still inferior. Of carnations there is a slight oversupply, though they are commanding fair prices. Orchids are in better supply than a week ago.

Various Notes.

The Hillcrest School Farm reports that several thousand watsonia bulbs that were planted last spring are now coming up nicely; it had been too dry for them to germinate all summer. They say that a great many dahlias behaved in the same way.

Geny Bros. are cutting a heavy supply of mums. They are also selling extra large pot plants that were grown in the open ground till they were setting buds.

The Joy Floral Co. is doing a great deal of wholesaling this season. Their Beauty and Richmond roses were the feature of their store last week. Of course they have plenty of good mums.

The Mount Olivet Greenhouses are filled to their greatest capacity this fall. They grow for the cemetery trade and say that they never had more of it than at present. F. B.

Hit the Bull's Eye and Buy from the Firm that Protects your Interests

Now the time has arrived to stock up your store and greenhouses with the best quality stock the market produces. Every careful florist is turning over page after page of The Review and is anxious to find the ad—what their favored friend, Godfrey Aschmann, has to say. He is the fellow that has his heart in the right spot. They all can depend on him; he always has a smile and protects their interests. Look at that frog in our ad of Oct. 9—it means protection (not tariff protection). It means what all florist stores want—Protection to the Florist Trade; retail store keepers' protection.

TESTIMONIAL

Mr. Godfrey Aschmann, 1012 W. Ontario St., Philadelphia, Pa.

NEW CROP AZALEA INDICA

has just arrived per Steamer Marquette from Ghent, Belgium, and had on board for me 75 cases of Azalea Indica of only the best selected varieties, raised for us for the last twenty years by an Azalea Specialist in Belgium. I tell you frankly that by buying your Azaleas from us you never get disappointed, either in size or variety. Our eyes are our judgment, you will receive just what you pay for; if you send us 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00 or more, you will receive your full value with no measurement quotations. We have the reputation for that; we do the right thing for everybody; and, my friends, please don't get angry when I say, cash with order, please—the profit on Azaleas is so small that we can run no risk whatever; we are not in business for fun, we cannot afford to pay duty, freight, etc. (which is from 50% to 60%).

AZALEA INDICA FOR CHRISTMAS FORCING.

We have a house full.

Deutsche Perle (double white), Simon Mardner (double pink), Vervaeana (large flowering double variegated rose), White Vervaeana (double white), Pharailde Mathilde (double variegated) and Mme. Petrick (double early pink), 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50.

AZALEA INDICA, EASTER VARIETIES.

We have only those varieties that are much in demand, namely, Mme. Van der Cruyssen (double pink), Simon Mardner (double pink), Vervaeana, Niobe (double white), De Schryveriana, Apollo (double red), Princess of India, and a few more standard varieties, 40c, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00. All well budded, as round as an apple.

All Our Ferns Are Pot-grown and will start in all kinds of temperatures and atmospheres.

Remember, that if you buy the cheap advertised bench-grown ferns, taken from benches and potted up, they will get bad in your store and you will be stung.

BOSTON FERNS, 5½-inch, 35c; 6-inch, 40c to 50c; 7-inch, 75c.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

Although the full social season does not begin until the middle of next month, business is getting better gradually, and a larger demand for choice cut flowers and foliage plants is noticeable. The greatest interest at present is centered around All Saints' day, November 1. We have experienced all kinds of weather lately, from summer heat down to 48 degrees, with occasional heavy rains and storms, but the chrysanthemums are with many of the growers finer than in years gone by. The orders for All Saints' day are coming in slowly; almost everyone waits for the last few days and then the rush starts. Chrysanthemums, principally white ones, are the predominant flowers for All Saints' day, but a good many colored ones are used, especially fancy varieties, besides roses and carnations by the thousands. Made-up designs of various descriptions are going rapidly out of style for this day and are being replaced by the more graceful loose bunches. All depends now on the weather, and the florists, as well as the public at large, wish for a warm and bright All Saints' day.

Various Notes.

Herman Doescher has an immense stock of seasonable plants all in the best of condition; his chrysanthemums are fine, especially the colored varieties.

Wm. Nelson's Robinsons are the talk of the town; he has disposed already of the entire crop of 8,000 flowers at a good price.

Verlinde & Vander Eecken find New Orleans the right place to grow Ficus elastica, araucaria and Citrus Sinensis for the wholesale market. They are working now to get a big stock ready for spring; the fine, healthy plants to be offered will be a surprise to the trade. R. E.

New Haven, Conn.—Joseph J. Sokol has a permit for the addition of a greenhouse and shed to his plant.

Hamlet, N. C.—Joseph R. Bartos, formerly of La Grange, Ga., has purchased ten acres of land here, on which he has started growing flowers and vegetables.

Pittsfield, Mass.—Joseph W. Pybus, gardener for Warren M. Salisbury, exhibited some fine lupines from his gardens, at the Flower Shop in Pittsfield.

Chester, N. Y.—Bernard H. Cullen is having two additional houses, both larger than his present ones, erected by S. Jacobs & Sons, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh had a freeze last week that finished everything outside and is ready to settle down to the regular line of stock. The result has been an increased demand for roses and carnations. Chrysanthemums are quite plentiful, with more variety. Pompons are beginning and from now until Thanksgiving the wholesale men will have plenty of work packing and, as it is not customary in this city to charge for packing, the large boxes will not leave great profit. Lilies are plentiful, with the demand lighter every day. Beauties are not quite so abundant as they have been, but there are enough for the demand. Violets are better in quality and there are plenty of them.

Various Notes.

Most of the retail stores have their Hallowe'en decorations up and they are fairly busy, with better prospects ahead.

All of the violets and Beauties from the Hudson river missed connections October 26 and did not get in until evening, causing considerable loss and inconvenience.

The Schenley park conservatories had about half the show open October 27. The balance of the houses are not ready and were kept closed. There was a good crowd all day.

H. J. Heinz, the man celebrated for his fifty-seven varieties, has thrown his conservatories open to the public. He has a splendid display of chrysanthemums and a general collection of plants. The people show their appreciation by crowding his houses all the time.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. found it necessary to put a one ton Buick truck into use to deliver goods. The scarcity of errand boys and the inconvenience on street cars had something to do with the change.

John Murchie, of Sharon, was in the city October 27, visiting some of the golf links. He is the only real devotee of this gentleman's game among the profession in this end of the state. He possesses a number of trophies of his winnings.

F. M. Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., was a visitor last week on his way east. Clarke.

Osage, Ia.—Walter S. Hall is building an addition to his greenhouses.

FLOWER POTS

It costs money to call on you personally. Let's get together on the mail order proposition and you save the difference. There are other reasons why you will want our pots. We are very fortunate in the quality of our clay, and you will be delighted with the ware. Our large output and advantages of cheap fuel, with our clay at our back door and the railroads at our front door, with little cost for selling, enables us to quote you very low prices. A sample order will convince you. Samples and prices on application. Whether you use car lots or smaller quantities, it is to your advantage to write us.

No Charge for Crates.

"Mr. A. A. Gannett,

"Dear Sir: The ferns you sent me were the best I ever saw for the price. I have written to two of my friends up the island to tell them about the stock you are sending out."

The name of this party may be had on request. I have a large stock, about one-half being the new Whitman compacta which is a prettier fern than the old Whitman, is bushy and does not revert to the Boston frond. I guarantee every shipment to please you absolutely.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed with reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. Cash.

L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

PEONIES."PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

is a perplexing question to all florists except those using——

Morehead Steam Traps

HAVE you ever talked with a brother florist who uses Morehead Return Steam Traps? If not, do so at first opportunity and be convinced that you must install one at once.

There are more MOREHEAD TRAPS installed in greenhouses than of all other makes of steam traps combined. The Morehead is distinctly a florist's trap. Every feature of its construction has been treated with a view of meeting the special needs of the florist.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

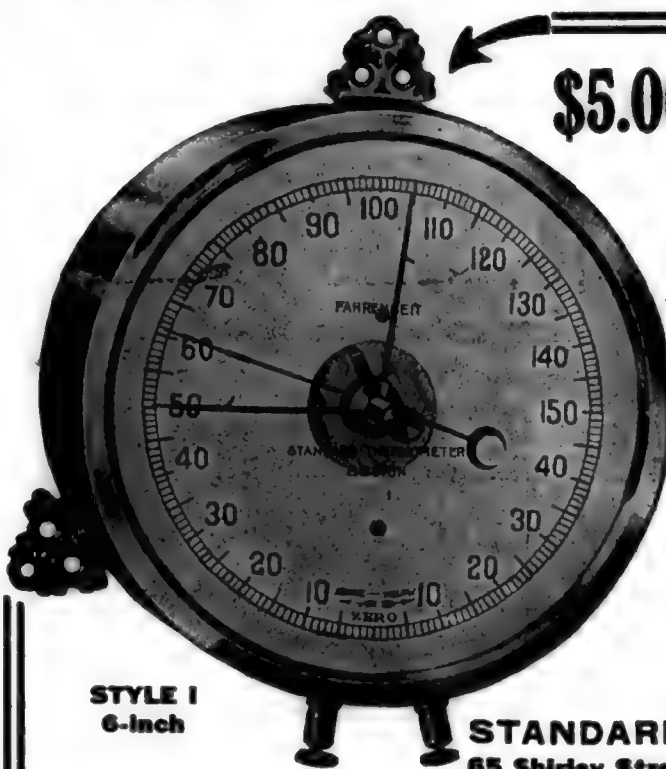

SMOKELESS COAL AT CHICAGO.

The smokeless coal market, which has been wavering a little for the last couple of weeks, has strengthened up again in both lump and egg and mine-run prices. Of course the colder weather had a good deal to do with it, because that started the householder to buying larger sizes, while the need to fill up their bins has caused the apartment houses also to increase their orders with the retail dealers. To a certain extent, however, the tighter market is due to a decrease in the car supply through the smokeless field and hence freedom from any tendency on the part of any producing company to speculate by sending in a great deal of unsold coal. It was this tendency that weakened the market some time ago. It is the opposite of this tendency now that is strengthening the market. To be sure, Chicago and surrounding territory is buying quite a good deal of smokeless, but it is not in position to absorb an unlimited amount.

COAL OR NATURAL GAS?

I have a No. 9 Kroeschell boiler, with which I expect to heat four greenhouses, each 25x125. My three-quarter coal costs me, delivered in the boiler room, 9 cents per bushel. In this part of Ohio I can get natural gas for 20 cents per thousand feet. Which, in your opinion, would be the cheaper fuel, and about how much cheaper? The pipes are all laid for gas, but I have never used it.
J. W. N.

Unless the coal is of unusually good quality, the gas at the price mentioned is likely to be about as cheap in first cost as the coal and would have the saving of labor in its favor. So much depends upon the skill of the fireman that no really definite statement regarding the relative economy of the two fuels can be made.

HIGHEST POINT IN SYSTEM.

I enclose two sketches, showing two proposed methods of piping my greenhouse. Will you please inform me which is the better way to arrange the flow pipe, according to sketch No. 1 or sketch No. 2? Should the pipe run straight up to a high point above the boiler, with an expansion tank attached, and then drop gradually to the side coils, returning to the boiler as in sketch No. 1? Or would it be better to run the flow pipe gradually up one side of the coils to a high point, connect there

What is the Most Vital Point in Grate Construction?

Grate makers and users agree that the most important point is to keep the air spaces open as long as possible under all conditions.

We guarantee to keep the air spaces of the MARTIN ANTI-FRICTION ROCKING GRATE open longer under any conditions than can be done by any other grate in existence.

The hottest fire you can build will not warp a "Martin" and it can be installed without disturbing the brick work.

ference is not so great as it otherwise would be. After connecting with the expansion tank, run one or more 2 1/2-inch flow pipes to the farther end of the house. As a rule, in houses twenty feet wide and over, three pipes of this size can be used to good advantage, and it is not advisable to attempt to supply more than 300 square feet of radiation with one 2 1/2-inch flow pipe. One of the flows may be under the ridge and the others on the wall plates. Place a part of the returns on the walls and the others under the benches.

EGGPLANT HOUSE IN ILLINOIS.

I am building a greenhouse 19x36 on a hillside. The west side of the house will be two feet high and the east side five feet high. The bars on the west side will be eight feet long and those on the east side fourteen feet. The boiler will be at the north end. Will two one and one-half horse-power upright steam boilers heat this house warm enough to grow eggplant, with hot water in place of steam? If so, what would be the proper arrangement of piping, and what size of pipe should be used? As this is only a temporary house and I can get these two boilers cheap, I should like to use them if possible. C. H.

If each of the boilers has a grate fifteen inches in diameter, they would probably answer, but to keep up a steady fire in so small a boiler will require extremely careful attention, and as the eggplant is a crop which will be ruined if the temperature is not fairly uniform, I advise the use of one boiler with a grate twenty inches in diameter. For flow pipes, carry one 2-inch pipe under the ridge and one on each plate. Connect each flow pipe with four 1½-inch returns. In case the wall on the west side is too low for this method of piping, run one 2½-inch flow under the ridge and connect it with fourteen 1½-inch returns distributed as evenly as possible.

OHIO VEGETABLE HOUSES.

I am erecting two vegetable houses, each 20x100, with a wall between them, so as to be able to maintain different temperatures. I want to know how many 2-inch pipes will be needed in each house, to heat one to 70 degrees and the other to 60 degrees. The side walls are four feet high and consist of two feet of cement and two feet of glass. Solid beds will be used. I shall run 2½-inch flows overhead, dropping to the returns at the farther end of the houses, and I am not much in doubt about any of the details except the amount of piping to be used in the returns. My estimate includes eight 2-inch returns for each house; is that enough? Will a fall of six inches from the farther end to the boiler be sufficient? The houses are in central Ohio. They run east and west and are well protected at the west end. I am using a Boynton 12-section boiler, rated for 5,500 square feet of radiation; is that enough? J. L. S.

For a vegetable house 20x100 feet, with two feet of glass in one wall, to be heated to 60 degrees with hot water, use three 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns. While eight returns would answer in this house, it would require heavy firing in severe weather to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees, and it will be more economical of fuel if nine or ten returns are used. For 70 degrees, in the other house, three additional returns will be needed.

If the fall is carefully graded, six inches will be sufficient. A boiler rated for 2,000 to 2,400 square feet of radiation would be large enough to heat the two houses.

A SMALL PENNSYLVANIA HOUSE.

Please inform me of the most certain method of heating my small new greenhouse. I wish to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees, with hot water heat. The house is 16½x22. The walls are constructed of concrete to a height of three feet, with twenty-six inches of glass from the concrete wall to the plate. There are two glass gables, eight feet six inches high from the concrete wall to the ridge. State what size and number of radiating pipes will be needed. My steam fitter tried to persuade me to use a wall radiator under each of the outside benches. Would that be practical? P. K.

wall and with both gables exposed, 200 square feet of radiating surface will be required to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees. This can be secured by running one 2½-inch flow pipe about two feet below the ridge, to the farther end of the house, and dropping down a pipe of the same size to feed the coils, which should start near the center of the end of the house and run to the corners, and then along the sides and across the other end to the door. the coils, and use the same size of pipes for the returns. For each of the coils use four 2-inch, or five 1½-inch pipes. The coils may be either on the walls, just below the glass, or under the side benches. In case it is impossible to place the boiler so that its highest part will be below the lowest part of the coils, it will be advisable to attach a mercury generator to the expansion pipe. If that is done, one less pipe in each coil may be used.

Carry the flow pipe to the highest point as near the boiler as possible, and connect it with a 6-gallon expansion tank by means of a $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch pipe. Locate the tank ten or more feet above the flow pipe, if possible, where it will not freeze.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Delightful summer weather now prevails, after several weeks of exceptionally cold weather. A touch of winter in the shape of a snow storm, an overcast sky and several days of rain caused a shortening of the supply of stock, but the demand was great and apparently the October brides gave no thought to the darkening clouds. The bright days have been a relief to the florists, whose stock is now increasing abundantly.

Chrysanthemums are in the lead, and Golden Glow, Polly Rose, Robinson, October Frost and Chrysolora hold full sway. Pompons are arriving and meet with much favor. Roses are in excellent condition, although some soft stock was apparent during the dark weather. Killarneys, Sunbursts, Wards, Richmonds and Tafts are the favorite varieties. Single violets are in and sell readily. Sweet peas are making their appearance. Cosmos is still in season, although becoming scarce. Good snapdragons are in. Carnations are all that could be desired, both in quality and quantity. Greens are becoming scarce.

Various Notes.

The Auger Flower Shop has been exceedingly busy with funeral work lately. They are receiving some fine mums from local greenhouses.

The Frank Knecht Co. is cutting chrysanthemums heavily.

The Bradley Flower Shop has a number of decorations booked for next month. They also had the decoration for the opening of the Jefferson theater, October 28.

Extensive work in landscape gardening is being carried on by Miss Marjory Bradley. Among her contracts she has recently secured that of the Millard home, on Washington boulevard, work on which will be begun at once.

Fall-flowering orchids and innumerable chrysanthemums of several varieties, in bloom, have been attracting the public to the greenhouses of W. J. & M. S. Vesey. The public received a cordial invitation from the firm to inspect the fall and winter stock.

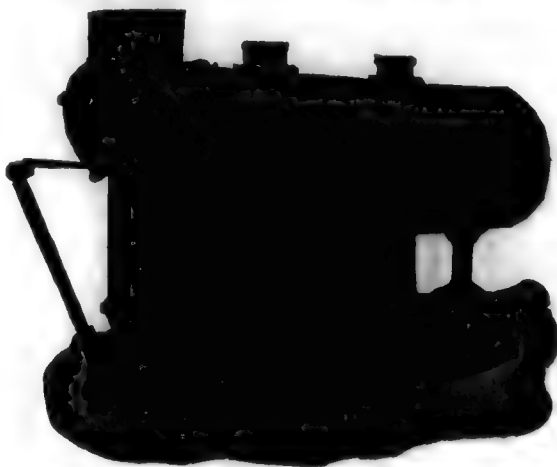

Miss Doswell is receiving some splendid stock from the Doswell greenhouses, including some fine snapdragons, early varieties of sweet peas and some mammoth chrysanthemums.

The autumn number of the Wildwood Magazine, published in this city, contains a prettily illustrated and well written article on "Flowers," by Miss Althea Doswell.

Some elegant roses are being cut at the greenhouses of the Flick Floral Co. Chrysanthemums are also being cut heavily and the demand is strong. This firm has had a tremendous sale of smilax plants this fall, and has disposed of an extensive lot of bulbs for fall planting.

FERTILIZER DEPARTMENT

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Last week's market proved to be rather poor. The opening was none too good, while during the middle of the week a large influx of all seasonable flowers brought on a weakened condition. On Friday and Saturday the demand was much better than during the preceding days.

Chrysanthemums are in a heavy supply. The price of even the best is not up to what it ought to be. The smaller stock has sold readily, but at extremely low prices. Rose offerings continue large and include fine Killarney and White Killarney and a heavy crop of good Richmond. The longer grades of American Beauties are plentiful, while the shorter grades are rather scarce. Carnations are more plentiful and are about the only flower offered in quantity that enjoyed a good market last week. Their price naturally was weakened by the glut of other stock. The limited numbers of lilies that are coming in are fully adequate for requirements. Both valley and orchids sell well. A limited call is springing up for violets. Some snapdragon is offered. The supply of all kinds of greens, including smilax, is sufficient for requirements.

Various Notes.

Four local florists are candidates for office this fall. They include Wm. Sunderbruch, for mayor of Lockland, O.; Ernst Manthey, Jr., for mayor of St. Bernard, O.; Chas. McCrea, for commissioner of Newport, Ky., and Chas. Murphy, for treasurer of Delhi township. All are reasonably sure of being the first past the wire on election day.

C. E. Critchell was recently in receipt of a large shipment of oak sprays.

E. G. Gillett has been receiving some fine Chrysolora mums from Geo. Bayer, of Toledo, O. Miss Laura Murphy has left for the south, to spend the winter.

Jos. Volz & Son have been sending some fine early mums to the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

FALL SPRAYING

Fruit trees, ornamental trees, evergreens and all hardy stock susceptible to scale and other insects, should be thoroughly sprayed before freezing weather sets in.

SCALINE will cleanse your trees and shrubs of San Jose, Oyster Shell and other hard scale, red spider, larvae of the aphid, grub of the locust borer and other insect pests which secrete themselves in the crevices of the bark during the dormant season.

SCALINE is composed of a high grade of petroleum and the properties of the well known fungicide, FUNGINE; mixes readily without agitation; is used at a strength of one part to twenty parts water; containing no sediment, can be applied through the finest spray nozzle, and requires no drenching of the plants, but simply misting them, to get effective results.

The Market.

With the exception of funeral work, trade has been quiet the last week. The funeral of Mrs. Fairbanks, the wife of former Vice-president Fairbanks, called for a great quantity of flowers. Chrysanthemums are arriving in good supply and are finding ready sale. Dahlias held out until the middle of last week. Beauties of the longer grades are more than sufficient for the sales. Carnations of good quality are to be seen, but the supply is short. The rose crop continues good. Killarney and White Killarney are the leaders; some first-class Richmond, Ward and Sunburst are coming in. Valley, lilies and orchids move slowly. Some home-grown single violets are to be had. Green goods are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The November meeting of the State Florists' Association will be held at Richmond, Monday, November 3. The Indianapolis florists will leave at 7:30 a. m. on the Pennsylvania railroad, getting off at East Haven, which is opposite the Hill establishment. After an inspection of this establishment, the other florists will be visited. Richmond is always an interesting place to visit during the mum season.

Jas. J. Karins, of H. A. Dreer, Philadelphia, was a caller last week.

Baur & Steinkamp are cutting some first-class mums. Their carnations are looking unusually fine for this time of the year. This firm does a large business in young geraniums; their first crop of cuttings, now in the sand, amounts to about 25,000.

A. Rasmussen and his brother, George, of New Albany; Jacob Schulz, F. Walker and H. Kleinstarink, of Louisville, Ky., motored to Cincinnati, Richmond, New Castle and Indianapolis last week. After driving in the rain and cold for four days, they left their automobile at Indianapolis and went home on the train. Mr. Schulz was so disgusted with automobiles that he refused a ride to the depot in one, preferring to take a street car.

A. W. Herre, of the A. L. Randall Co., called on the trade last week with a full line of florists' supplies.

The E. G. Hill Co. had the opening at its store last week. The store was handsomely decorated for the occasion, and many new varieties of roses and chrysanthemums were shown. This firm has installed a new automobile in its delivery service.

L. F. Benson advertised a sale on Boston ferns last week.

Sidney Smith, formerly of the Columbia Conservatories, is now with E. A. Nelson.

A Vital Point Ignored

IN figuring the cost of a greenhouse, too many growers put too much emphasis on what the materials cost and too little on what the erection costs.

In fact, some simply don't know what it actually costs to erect their houses. They put them up during the slack season, when their men can work at it at odd times. No careful record is kept of the time the men really are working on it.

Whether it's slack time or busy times, your men have to be paid just the same and you can't dodge erection costs that way.

It has been proven over and over again that the best iron frame house we build can be put up, by either your men or our men, in less time than it takes to erect either an all-cypress or half iron frame house.

Your glass costs you the same, no matter what construction you buy. So does your masonry; your painting; your benching; your heating; your ventilating apparatus.

Then why not put the cost of all those things into a Hitchings house of everlasting lastingness?

This comparative cost of construction is a thing we would like to sit right down and talk over with you from a to z. We have some facts and figures that will prove mighty interesting. Let's get together—we two.

RE-GLAZING A HEAVY EXPENSE.

Do you know, Mr. Greenhouse Man, that Cypress holds glazing "points" better than does any or all of the kinds of lumber sometimes substituted for "the Wood Eternal"? It is a fact, and to you an important fact.

These "points" may be pushed into some of substitute woods with your fingers; in Cypress you have to use a hammer. Frost pulls these "points" out of the softer woods, and then the "deuce is to pay."

So it is with putty. Cypress is the wood that takes putty kindly, and keeps the glass well puttied in. Frost, like wet and dry, heat and cold, has small effect on Cypress.

These suggestions are worth good money to you, Mr. Greenhouse Man. Re-glazing is a source of heavy expense, especially when it has to be done every Spring.

CYPRESS TRULY AVERTS REPAIR BILLS

A BOOK, PLEASE

Vol. 3, CYPRESS Pocket Library, tells a lot about greenhouse construction; Vols. 4 and 20 are for the farmer. They contain plans for all out-buildings, and they are absolutely free. There are 37 of these books, and you would better help yourself to them. Get the Carpentry Book, Vol. 36, telling you how to make easy a dozen hard jobs of carpentry; Vol. 37 is the big Silo Book. Both are full of plans for buildings and are handsomely illustrated.

The Greatest Green- house Catalogue

EVER ISSUED BY ANYBODY

Cloth bound. 384 pages, 6½ x 9. Weight, 36 ounces. Give express office, as book will come by express. If wanted by mail make this clear in your letter.

THIS is our 45th year as greenhouse manufacturers. Every year has brought forth new ideas and improvements. Moninger greenhouses today are the standard by which others are judged. It is a mark of distinction to own a Moninger house, and when a place is advertised for sale, a fair price is assured if the owner states "Moninger material in the greenhouses." Every greenhouse owner knows of "Moninger Quality," and ought to know about "Moninger Service." By service we not only mean quick delivery of material. That is desirable, but our service does not stop there. It extends into every detail of the business. We work together like a family. When you send us an order everyone of our employees gets acquainted with you and takes an interest in your business. It is this sort of personal service all along the line that counts. You get best quality here and we take care of our customers.

YOU HEAR a lot about efficiency nowadays. Do you hear much about it in the wholesale flower business? And just where it is the most needed, too. To a retail florist, efficiency in his wholesaler means several things. His wholesale house must have plenty of good flowers of the kinds he wants. They must be prepared to furnish what he wants, when he wants it. They must use ordinary judgment and common sense. They must have their customer's welfare at heart. They must not ship him stale flowers. They must not charge him such high prices that he cannot make a legitimate profit.

We operate an efficient wholesale house.

THE AUTUMN

FLOWER SHOWS

CHICAGO.

The flower show that opened in the Art Institute, November 5, is a national affair. Not only does it represent the cooperative effort of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, the Horticultural Society of Chicago and the Chicago Florists' Club, but there are exhibits from Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey and Iowa.

It is exclusively a chrysanthemum show; the premium list carries no classes except those for chrysanthemum plants and cut blooms. But the exhibits fill Blackstone hall to its utmost capacity, and those who are familiar with the history of Chicago flower shows will remember that the autumn that Blackstone hall was added to the Art Institute it accommodated the annual exhibition, including large groups of decorative plants, roses, carnations and much miscellaneous stock, as well as the chrysanthemums. There are those who say that this is the largest showing of chrysanthemums ever made in the west, and probably the largest showing of chrysanthemums ever made in this country. If this be too enthusiastic, at least it may be said in truth that no finer cut blooms have ever been seen at any chrysanthemum show in America. The pot plants, while excellent in groups and masses for effect, do not include anything of such excellence as is seen at the best eastern shows. The cut blooms, however, are of splendid quality, representing the best that the east can produce as well as the finest stock grown in the middle west.

Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, the destinies of which are guided by W. N. Rudd, and where the greenhouses are in charge of C. W. Johnson, who is secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society, is the largest exhibitor, but the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., is a close second in the number of entries, and C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., is not far behind. The list of exhibitors and the number of entries made by each is as follows:

Exhibitor.	Entries.
C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis.	7
Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co., Libertyville, Ill.	11
C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.	18
Bassett & Washburn, Chicago.	5
Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago.	17
E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.	25
E. D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.	11
LaCrosse Floral Co., LaCrosse, Wis.	7
Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Ill.	27
Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs, Ill.	10
C. H. Rice, Rochelle Park, N. J.	4
Louis F. Swift, Lake Forest, Ill.	3
Robert Preston, Tinley Park, Ill.	1
F. D. Countiss, Lake Geneva, Wis.	8
Howard Gould, Port Washington, N. Y.	10
Paul Dieball, Hubbard Woods, Ill.	1
Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa.	3

How keen the competition is in some of the classes may be judged from the statement that there are six entries in the class calling for twenty-four flowers in twenty-four varieties. Few shows have been held in this country with a greater number of entries or a better display in this class. Also, in the classes for twenty-five blooms of one variety, of yellows there are nine entries. It is significant of the present situation that the nine entries are representative of eight varieties. Bonnaffon is the only variety shown by two exhibitors, the others being Appleton, F. S. Vallis, Mary Donnellan, Crocus, Chrysolara, General Hutton, and Ramapo. From the viewpoint of the public every one of the nine vases is good, but in the eye of the commercial man the two vases of Bonnaffon look like the most ready money. And it is interesting to note that Bonnaffon made its debut in Chicago just twenty years ago this week, having been first shown by Fred Dorner in the year of the world's fair. In the meantime many yellow mums have come, and nearly as many have gone, but the good old Bonnaffon still holds its place as the leading money making yellow. Is there any variety in any other color that can show an equal record of twenty years?

Among the whites William Turner is head and shoulders above everything else in the section. C. H. Totty has two magnificent vases of it. The best flowers possibly are in his exhibit in the class calling for ten blooms, but the effect of the twenty-five great globes of glistening white in the other vase makes it without doubt the finest single exhibit in the show. No one ever saw larger or finer finished flowers than Totty's Turner.

The show is specially strong in pompons and singles, and here also Mr. Totty's exhibits attract the greatest measure of attention. Many of his varieties have been grown by disbudding and the size and finish of the flowers make them a revelation to western growers. This statement is especially true of his vases of the newer singles, although many of them are not true singles, having several rows of petals. Some of the commercial possibilities are shown by the fact that the flowers have made their long journey in splendid condition.

Miscellaneous Exhibits.

This being strictly a chrysanthemum show, the miscellaneous exhibits are few in number. Among those attracting the most attention are the following:

A vase of Carnation Philadelphia, which is being distributed this year jointly by S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia; the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, Detroit, and Fred Breitmeyer, of Mt. Clemens, Mich., was staged by Robert Rahaley. The flowers had traveled excellently and showed up in good shape. The color, pink, is a shade not now common in the markets and Mr. Rahaley says that the orders for cuttings already booked insure a record sale.

S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I., show a vase of the new red rose, not yet named, which is to be distributed next season. It is a large flower, on good stem, with splendid foliage, and is shown in splendid shape considering that it is over 1,000 miles from home.

John Mangel was the only retail florist to make a display on the opening day. He staged a large basket of single and pompon chrysanthemums, arranged in his best style.

Vaughan's Greenhouses made attractive displays of some of the newer varieties of rambler roses, with cut blooms of several other novelties, and a vase of Canna Firebird.

The Awards.

The awards for cut blooms were as follows:

Ten blooms, one variety—Chas H. Totty, first, with Wm. Turner, winning the A. C. S. silver cup.

Twelve blooms Pink Gem—C. C. Pollworth Co., second, the E. D. Smith & Co. prize; no first.

Six varieties, three blooms each, open to private gardeners only—F. D. Countiss, Lake Geneva, Wis., first, winning the Lord & Burnham prize.

Best finished vase of cut blooms judged from a cultural standpoint, not less than 24-inch stem, any type—Poehlmann Bros. Co., first, with Bonnaffon, winning the silver gilt medal of the Horticultural Society of Chicago.

Ten blooms of any variety not disseminated—Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, first, with a seedling, winning silver cup of Hitchings & Co.

Display of named varieties introduced by the grower during the last five years—Elmer D. Smith & Co., first, with ten varieties, winning the Vaughan's Seed Store prize.

Twenty-five white—Chas. H. Totty, first, with Wm. Turner; E. G. Hill Co., second, with Naomah; Bassett & Washburn, third, with Alice Salomon.

Twenty-five pink—Mount Greenwood Cemetery, first, with Seedling No. 4; E. G. Hill Co., second, with Chieftain; Poehlmann Bros. Co., third, with Enguehard.

Twenty-five yellow—Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co., first, with Bonnaffon; Poehlmann Bros. Co., second, with Bonnaffon; Elmer D. Smith & Co., third, with Chrysolara.

BOSTON.

The dates selected for the annual chrysanthemum show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were much too early. The flowers are ten days later than usual in this section, and a postponement would have resulted in a far more creditable show. The flowers on most of the pot plants were only half expanded and a good many of the large blooms were in the same condition. More material was forthcoming than for several years, especially in the way of groups, but specimen blooms and plants were a mere ghost of what they used to be in Boston. The omission of decorated dinner tables, mantels, etc., which brought in the retailers and at the same time attracted the public, was an error.

The show was well arranged, but the attendance was comparatively meager as shows go here. Another year the schedule should include fruits, which this time were entirely excluded, and more classes should be allotted to vegetables, while competition from retailers should be strongly encouraged.

In the group of foliage and flowering plants covering 300 square feet, W. W. Edgar Co. won with an excellent arrangement. In the 150 feet group for private gardeners Mrs. J. L. Gardner,

W. Thatcher gardener, won with a fine circular group. Bambusas were used in the center to good advantage, and only the single or pompon chrysanthemums were used. Mrs. Gardner also led several other competitors for the best group of orchids, cattleyas, phalaenopsis, vandas and Oncidium Rogersii predominating. F. J. Dolansky, who was second, was strong on cattleyas. Mrs. C. G. Weld, W. C. Rust gardener, was third. Some good calanthes and brasso-cattleyas were included here. J. T. Butterworth also contributed a group which contained some choice hybrid cattleyas.

F. J. Dolansky had the best specimen cypripedium, with a well flowered C. insigne Sanders; second, Thomas Watt, with C. insigne Harefield Hall. J. T. Butterworth had the best plant of Oncidium varicosum Rogersii.

For group of chrysanthemums covering 300 square feet, T. E. Procter, James Marlborough gardener, won with a finely arranged group in which single stem flowers were dotted judiciously among singles, anemones and pompons; second, Walter Hunnewell, T. D. Hatfield gardener; third, W. H. Elliott, who staged an excellent lot of commercially grown plants.

Specimen plants were not numerous and the flowers needed ten days more for development for fair plants. J. S. Bailey won with well trained specimens of L. Boehmer, Mrs. Beckett, Dr. Enguehard and Theo. The same exhibitor had the best two specimens in Theo and Enguehard. The former received the silver medal for the best specimen plant in the show. Mr. Watson also captured most of the other firsts for plants. N. F. Comley was second for specimen yellow, with Terrace Hall.

For twenty-five commercially grown plants, W. H. Elliott took both first and second. For six plants grown six flowers to a stem, T. E. Procter, James Marlborough gardener, had capital plants of Wm. Turner, Nellie Pockett, Mrs. G. C. Kelley, F. T. Quittenton, Merza and Mrs. Duckham, which secured first prize.

For twenty-five specimen kentias, Wm. Whitman, M. Sullivan gardener, was first and third; second, Mrs. F. Ayer, Geo. Page gardener. For pair of arecas, Wm. Whitman was first and Mrs. F. Ayer second.

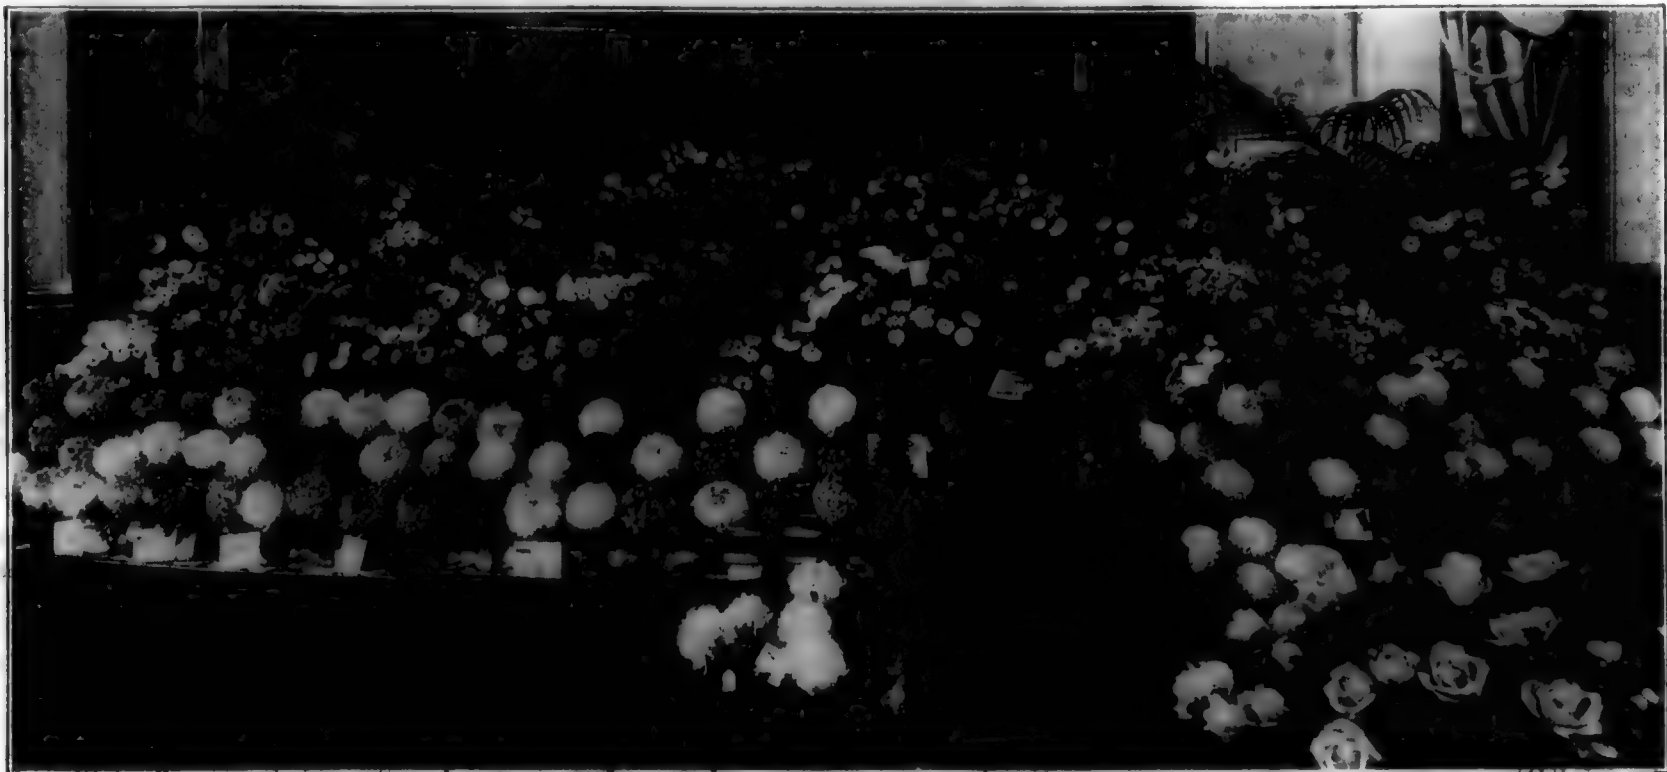

For six Begonia Gloire de Lorraine, E. A. Clark was first and W. W. Edgar Co. second. For six Glory of Cincinnati A. F. Estabrook, George Barker gardener, was first and E. A. Clark second.

For twenty-five specimen blooms, H. E. Converse, D. F. Roy gardener, led with splendid flowers of President Taft, R. F. Felton, Miss Clay Frick, Yellow Miller, Pockett's Surprise, Tarrytown, Ongawa, M. F. Plant, Cheltoni, Col. Appleton, W. R. Brock, G. J. Bruzard, Mary Farnsworth, Wm. Turner, Reginald Vallis, Alice Finch, Mrs. W. Duckham, F. E. Nash, Rose Pockett, Onunda, Elberon, Gertrude Peers, H. E. Converse, Chrysolora and W. E. Etherington. Ernest Townsend was second.

For the best vases of Jerome Jones or its sports, the veteran James Nicol once more led, with fine but only partially developed flowers of Yellow Jones; second, White Jones from the same exhibitor. For twelve blooms Japanese, E. D. Jordan, H. A. Abraham gardener, was first, with G. C. Kelley, Ramapo, Glen Cove, H. E. Converse, Mrs. H. Stevens, Pockett's Crimson, W. Turner, O. H. Kahn, F. T. Mew and Quittenton; second, E. A. Clark; third, H. R. Johnson. For twelve incurved, H. E. Converse was first, with Poughkeepsie, H. E. Converse, Mrs. H. Barnes, Alice Finch, Pockett's Surprise, G. W. Pook, President Taft, Mrs. Geo. Hunt, W. Turner and Chrysolora.

For twelve reflexed H. E. Converse also won with R. F. Felton, Mrs. R. D. Foote, Mrs. Duckham, Leila Filkins, Lady Carmichael, W. Woodmason, Cheltoni, Rose Pockett, Advance, Pockett's Crimson, Valerie Greenham and Reginald Vallis.

E. A. Butler had the best twelve varieties of pompons. There were no entries for introductions of 1912 and 1913. For ten long-stemmed white, James Nicol was first with Merza. E. A. Clark was second and Geo. Von L. Meyer third. For ten blooms of pink James Nicol was first, with Miriam Hankey; second, E. A. Clark, with Dr. Enguehard; third, W. W. Edgar Co., with Enguehard. For ten blooms of red or crimson, E. A. Clark was first, with Leslie Morrison. E. Townsend, with O. H. Kahn, was second.

Among the miscellaneous exhibits N. F. Comley had a fine bank of the yellow chrysanthemum, Terrace Hall, all grown outdoors, potted and exhibited without stakes, accorded a silver medal. This should prove a splendid commercial variety, being dwarf, bushy and densely flowered. A. Leuthy & Co. had a display of fine foliage plants. The city of Boston, from its greenhouses, contributed a splendid bank of palms and other foliage plants. Edward MacMulkin had a large group of chrysanthemums and foliage plants.

H. A. Stevens showed Carnation Eleanor, a good light pink seedling. Peter Fisher had his new light pink seedling, Alice, awarded a first-class certificate. He also had a fine vase of Gorgeous and a white seedling under number. A. N. Pierson, Inc., had roses, Milady and Mrs. Shawyer, also Chrysanthemum Pink Gem and a variety of pompons and singles. C. H. Totty had a fine selection of singles and pompons, also Mrs. Shawyer rose.

The Breck-Robinson Nursery Co. had a good group of hardy evergreens. F. J. Dolansky showed high grade gardenias. Thomas Watt had a specimen of Zygopetalum Mackaii. Mrs. E. M. Gill made a nice display of cut chrysanthemums. Penn received a bronze medal for an artistic display of chrysanthemums and Fire Flame and Mme. Cecile Brunner roses. A. F. Estabrook and E. A. Clark had displays of winter-flowering begonias. J. S. Bailey had specimen dracaenas and selaginellas. Knight & Struck Co. had a table of nice ericas. F. P. Putnam had a fine table of pompon and single chrysanthemums. Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears had a fine table of single chrysanthemums, also Camellia Japonica. E. G. Hill Co., received a first-class certificate for the new pink chrysanthemum, Chieftain, which has all the earmarks of a good commercial variety.

MADISON, N. J.

The eighteenth annual flower show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society was held in James hall, Madison, N. J., October 28 and 29. The weather was splendid and the show was well attended on both days. This show is always noted for the high quality of stock shown and this year was no exception to the general rule. The chrysanthemums, in common with those in every other section of the country, suffered somewhat from the warm, moist weather, and the growers were all complaining of the losses they had sustained this year. The roses were, as usual, well represented, Shawyer being the particular star of the exhibition. Special interest was taken in the Madison show this year on account of the fact that a vegetable prize of $75, which is supposed to be the largest premium ever offered for twelve vegetables, was to be awarded, and this was expected to draw exhibits from all sections of the country.

The stage in the hall was most beautifully decorated by Chas. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., with a large collection of singles in pots. These embraced all the newest varieties and were arranged in the form of a beautiful garden. The popularity of single mums and the way they were staged was attested by the fact that a crowd was always lined up waiting to take a walk around the garden. A gold medal was awarded for this exhibit.

In the class calling for thirty-six blooms, six each of six varieties, Mrs. D. Willis James, Wm. Duckham, superintendent, of Madison, N. J., was first and Chas. H. Totty, second. Mr. Duckham staged Harry E. Converse, Lady Hopetoun, Beatrice May, Pockett's Crimson and W. Mease. C. H. Totty staged F. S. Vallis, Ivy Gay, George Lock and Reginald Vallis.

For eighteen flowers, three each of six varieties, O. H. Kahn, Esq., James Fraser, superintendent, Morristown, N. J., received first. He had some beautiful blooms of Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, Mrs. H. Stevens and F. S. Vallis in his exhibit. Mrs. G. E. Kissel, Percy Whitney, superintendent, of Morristown, N. J., was second in this class, and Dudley Olcott, Esq., Chas. Barbans, superintendent, also of Morristown, was third.

For twelve flowers, twelve varieties in one vase, Dr. D. H. McAlpin, John Downing, superintendent, of Morris Plains, N. J., was first, with some splendid F. S. Vallis, Mary Farnsworth and Mrs. David Syme. Mr. Fraser was second with fine Alice Lemon, Converse and Woodmason. Percy Whitney scored third. This class was excellently competed for.

For ten blooms any yellow variety, John Downing scored first with Mrs. Wm. Duckham, which seems to be undergoing a process of rejuvenation this year. Mrs. Paul Moore, Edw. Davies, superintendent, Convent, N. J., was second and Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, Robt. Tyson, superintendent, also of Convent, N. J., was third. For ten blooms, any white variety, John Downing, with Beatrice May, won first prize, and Glimpsewood Manor, H. P. Vyse, superintendent, of Morristown, N. J., was second with the same variety. For ten pink, Mr. Downing was awarded first with Lady Hopetoun, and H. P. Vyse second with Morton F. Plant. For ten blooms, any other color, Robt. Tyson, who staged Rose Pockett, was awarded first, and John Downing second, with Mary Mason. The third prize in this class was awarded to H. P. Vyse.

For twenty-four flowers, twenty-four distinct varieties, Wm. Duckham scored first and Chas. H. Totty second. Mr. Duckham's notable flowers were Mary Farnsworth, Mrs. David Syme, Mrs. Gilbert Drabble, Gorgeous, Woodmason and Converse. C. H. Totty's group included Kleinheinz, Gertrude Peers, Mrs. Gilbert Drabble and several seedlings.

In the class calling for three vases of six blooms each, C. W. Harkness, Esq., Ernest Wild, superintendent, Madison, N. J., was first, with a magnificent exhibit of Lady Hopetoun, Mrs. Gilbert Drabble and Hon. Mrs. Lopes.

For the special prize of a silver cup, offered by Thos. D. Leonard, Esq., of Morris Plains, N. J., for twelve blooms, twelve distinct varieties, stem not to exceed twelve inches, the competition was strong. The judges decided James Fraser's exhibit was the best. Mr. Fraser showed F. S. Vallis, Wm. Turner, Pockett's Crimson, Wm. Kleinheinz, Loiseau Rousseau, Lady Carmichael, Alice Lemon, Yellow Miller, Rose Pockett, W. Woodmason, Mrs. Syme and Leslie Morrison. Mr. Wild was second in this class and Mr. Whitney third.

The special prize offered by the Stumpp & Walter Co., of New York, for six flowers, six varieties, stem not to exceed twelve inches, was won by Robt. Tyson, who had Geo. Lock, Mary Mason and Lady Hopetoun as the best flowers in this class. Second prize in this class was won by Fred. Cromwell, Esq., Jas. Rimmon, superintendent, Mendham, N. J., who had in his exhibit the largest flower in the show, a magnificent bloom of F. S. Vallis, and this certainly was a fine specimen.

In the class calling for six pink, Edw. Davies was first with Loiseau Rousseau; and J. H. Johnson, Esq., Andrew Fullerton, superintendent, New Brunswick, N. J., second. For six white Mr. Whitney was first with Wm. Turner, and John Downing second with the same variety. For six yellow Mrs. John Crosby Brown, Peter Duff, superintendent, Orange, N. J., was first with some fine Col. Appleton, and Jas. Fraser, second. Ten competitors lined up in this class. For six crimson John Downing was awarded first with Pockett's Crimson, and Jas. Fraser second with the same variety. For six, any other color, Jas. Fraser was first with Rose Pockett, and he also won first for a vase of flowers with foliage, arranged for effect, with chrysanthemums and autumn leaves splendidly arranged.

In the class for ten pompons C. W. McAlpin, Esq., Hamilton Scott, superintendent, of Morristown, N. J., was the winner. The single classes were won by Wm. Duckham, Jas. Fraser and J. W. Pratt, Esq., J. H. Everitt, superintendent, Glen Cove, N. Y. Some beautiful varieties were staged in this class and included Gladys Duckham, Caterham Bronze, Katie Covell, Joan Edwards and many other handsome singles. C. H. Totty scored first for six vases of single mums in six varieties and first in all the commercial classes; he won the prize for ten white with Wm. Turner, ten yellow with Chrysolora, ten pink with O. H. Broomhead and ten any other color with his namesake C. H. Totty. C. H. Totty also carried off the Smith prize for six flowers of Madison.

In the rose classes the prize for eighteen Beauties was won, as usual, by L. A. Noe, of Madison, N. J., and the prize for twelve Beauties by the same person, with Lyman B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J., second. Mr. Coddington secured firsts for twenty-five Maryland, twenty-five White Killarney, twenty-five Richmond and twenty-five Killarney. C. H. Totty was awarded firsts for any other pink with Mrs. Shawyer on 6-foot stems. Twenty-five any other red was won by L. A. Noe, with Milady, and twenty-five any yellow rose by L. B. Coddington with Sunburst; Harry May, of Summit, N. J., was awarded second in this class with the same variety. For twelve Maryland, C. A. Work, Esq., Mr. Mulmichael, superintendent, of Madison, N. J., was awarded first, with John J. Riker, Esq., W. R. Faulks, superintendent, second. For twelve any undissected variety, C. H. Totty was awarded first with his beautiful shell-pink sport of Mrs. Geo. Shawyer. The special prize offered by Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, of New York, was won by Chas. H. Totty. This prize was offered for the best vase of roses except American Beauties, twenty-five blooms in a vase, and was won by the variety Mrs. Shawyer. In the class for twelve blooms of Mrs. Shawyer, C. H. Totty prize, first prize was awarded to L. M. Noe, with L. B. Coddington second and Jas. Fraser third.

In the class for one specimen plant in flower, white variety, Peter Duff was awarded first for a 10-foot plant of Lady Lydia. The specimen plant of yellow mum was won by Edw. Davies with Ramapo. In the class for twelve chrysanthemum plants in flower, twelve varieties, single stems, pots not to exceed six inches in diameter, the first prize was won by Peter Duff, with John Downing second.

The class for six mum flowers in pots, six varieties, single stems, was won by Robt. Tyson, as was also the prize for one specimen Begonia Lorraine. Wm. Duckham won the prize for six large-flowering mums, six varieties, six flowers to a plant, pot not over eight inches in diameter, and he also won the special society prize of $25 for a table four feet in diameter of orchid plants arranged with fern plants.

Robert D. Foote, Esq., J. H. Landabury, superintendent, Morristown, N. J., won all the prizes offered for grapes, and showed some beautiful specimens in his exhibit.

The special vegetable prize for a collection of vegetables in twelve varieties, the first prize $75, second prize $50 and third prize $25, was the most talked-of class in the exhibition. The prize was more than has ever been given before for a vegetable class, but apparently was too much, for plenty of stock from different sections of the country that had been entered failed to materialize, due possibly to the fact that the gardeners were afraid that the prize, being so big, would bring out too strong a competition. Mr. Duckham scored first and Edw. Jenkins second. Both of these exhibits were beautiful and there was only one or two points of difference between them. Mr. Duckham's arrangement was slightly better.

The special Peter Henderson prize for collection of vegetables, six varieties, was won by Jas. Fraser, and David Francis took second prize. For six stalks of celery, L. Barkman, Bernardsville, N. J., was awarded first, and Edw. Jenkins received the prize for twelve tomatoes and also for six carrots. Jas. Fraser won first prizes for six corn and in the lima bean class. Robert Tyson won firsts for six onions, dish of Brussels sprouts, six leeks and six lettuce. David Francis won first prize for twelve potatoes and twelve beets. In the apple classes, Sydney and Austen Colgate, Esqs., Wm. Reid, superintendent, of Orange, N. J., won most of the prizes.

The show was the most successful the society has ever held, both in point of exhibition and attendance. The auction sale in the evening of the closing day netted $130 for the society and the members of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society have every reason to congratulate themselves on this season's event. The judges were Wm. Turner, Mendham, N. J.; Peter Duff, Orange, N. J.; John Heeremans, Princeton, N. J.; Eugene Dailedouze, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Wallace Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.

NEW YORK.

The exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York, which opened at the American Museum of Natural History, in New York city, October 31, continuing to November 4, early gave evidence that it would prove a record-breaker in the matter of attendance. No admission fee is charged at the museum. Sunday afternoon of course saw the greatest crush. From 1 p. m. to 3:45 over 60,000 had entered and the line of people, four abreast, reached to Eighth avenue. The attendance for the five days was approximately 200,000.

The weather was perfect and the exhibits worthy of the wide appreciation they received. The great features of the show were the magnificent chrysanthemum plants displayed by John Canning, gardener for Adolph Lewisohn, and W. H. Waite, gardener for Samuel Untermyer. No such plants have ever been seen in this country. Some of them were eighteen feet in diameter and carried over 2,000 perfect blooms. The fern display of the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, was large and included every variety of nephrolepis the Pierson establishment has introduced. W. A. Manda had a fine exhibit of his new ferns and other plant novelties. Steinhart & Kelley staged a great assortment of fruits. George Giatras had a fine exhibit of his new fern, New York, which appears to be a decided acquisition to the fern family. Joseph A. Manda was the efficient manager of the show and also had a fine prize assortment of orchids in competition. The entire orchid exhibit was the best ever gathered by this society. The Julius Roehrs Co., Lager & Hurrell, Clement Moore, Joseph A. Manda, W. H. Waite and Mrs. Henry Graves were the principal orchid exhibitors.

The only retail florist who had the enterprise to exhibit samples of his handiwork was Max Schling, whose baskets and unique groupings elicited much favorable comment.

The new rose, Killarney Brilliant, appears to be a winner and well named. Noe's American Beauties were superb. In fact, all the roses were most creditable and all the new ones especially admired.

George Bate.

(Member Publicity Committee for the Cleveland Trade Show.)

Special prize to Chas. H. Totty for vase of Lillian Doty chrysanthemum.

Diploma to Max Schling for chrysanthemum basket with autumn leaves.

Special prize to J. A. Manda for group of Cattleya labiata.

Silver medal to J. H. Troy for collection of orange trees.

Silver medal to W. A. Manda for Polypodium Mandalanum and also a bronze medal for Anthericum Mandalanum.

Special mention to John Lewis Childs for Glaucolus Mrs. Francis King.

Silver medal to A. N. Pierson, Inc., for collection of pompon, single and large-flowered chrysanthemums, varieties of exceptional merit.

Certificate of merit to S. J. Reuter & Son, for new red seedling rose.

Certificate of merit to Alonzo J. Bryan for new yellow canna.

The judges were Robt. Williamson, Wm. Kleinheinz, John T. Allan, S. W. Carlquist, S. Redstone and John F. Johnston. F. R. Pierson was chairman of the exhibition committee.

HOLLYWOOD, CAL.

The Hollywood chrysanthemum show was such a success the first day that it was decided to run it a second day and the attendance was good right through. The quantity and quality of the stock shown were remarkable.

Charles Winsel put up a pretty group of plants and vines, arranged as a rustic bower, which was attractive in the extreme. Anton Soethout, of the Hollywood Nurseries, and James Taylor, superintendent at the Homer Laughlin ranch, both put up good groups. The Germain Seed & Plant Co. had an attractive group of plants, cut flowers and bulbs, the Silver Wedding chrysanthemums shown by this firm being easily the finest in the show. The Bonnaffons were also good. Howard & Smith had an exhibit of herbaceous and other flowers, bulbs and plants. The Los Angeles Flower Market staged fine cut flowers, as did Miss Sadie Thomas, of Pasadena. Laurie's, also of Pasadena, were there with a nice exhibit of chrysanthemums. J. Feldman put up good cut flowers and Miss Brydges, of Hollywood, showed some nice roses.

Altogether it was a most successful little show and reflected great credit on James Taylor, who managed it, and on the ladies who stood back of him in the affair. Jos. McGilvray, J. Taylor and E. D. Sturtevant were the judges.

PHILADELPHIA.

The annual chrysanthemum show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society opened to the public November 4, in Horticultural hall, Broad and Locust streets, and was as fine as any of its predecessors. The number and quality of the chrysanthemum plants, the quality of the cut flowers of chrysanthemums, the novelties, the orchids and the staging for effect were all of extremely high order. The gardeners made the show what it was, the florists adding to the variety and interest. The main stairway contained some superb specimen blooms of chrysanthemums in tall vases that set it off beautifully. The specimen plants were the feature of the main hall, furnishing it admirably. Henry A. Dreer, Inc., filled the stage with a collection of foliage plants illuminated by Japanese-lantern-covered electric lights. Opposite Louis Burk had his orchid case, filled even more tastefully than of yore, with many rare gems in air plant life.

Chas. H. Totty exhibited many novelties, including pompons, singles and a fine big sport from My Maryland rose. The Cottage Gardens Co. exhibited Matchless in fine form. W. W. Scholtz, of Charlotte, N. C., had a splendid white carnation. John Nesbit's pink and white snapdragons were extra fine.

Downstairs, Harry S. Betz was on one side, with an excellent arrangement of choice plants, variegated pineapples, dracenas, ferns, etc. Adolph Muller, on the opposite side, had a nice arrangement of evergreens, etc. Henry F. Michell Co. made two exhibits. One, by Philip Freud, was a reproduction of their Hallows' scene, with Japanese lanterns, popcorn, bulbs, etc. This was described as the most original scene of this kind ever staged. The other, by Charles A. Goudy, was of hardy chrysanthemums in choice varieties, supplemented by a fine lot from Andalusia for immediate effect.

Anthony Waterer had charge of his father's display of bulbs, which made a brave showing.

The store's exhibit of Henry A. Dreer was well staged by Richard Rothe.

Thomas Meehan & Sons put up a fine pergola with ornamental evergreens and vines. Edward J. Mathews was in charge.

Chrysanthemum Mrs. G. W. Childs Drexel, pink, was much admired.

A well staged display of rare goldfish from Franklin Barrett had a conspicuous position in the center of the hall. Overbrook Gardens had an exquisite exhibit of choice single and pompon chrysanthemums, in garden form, surrounded by a rustic fence. M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass., sent a fine vase of Princess Dagmar carnations. William Kleinheinz arranged a beautiful exhibit of oncidiums growing on chestnut tree stumps surrounded by choice ferns.

LENOX, MASS.

The annual fall exhibition of the Lenox Horticultural Society, October 23 and 24, was one of the most successful the society has had. The exhibits were all of high order and were well staged. Frederick Heeremans, superintendent of the estate of William D. Sloane, was the largest prize-winner and captured the silver vase for the most meritorious exhibit. Thomas Page, superintendent of William Hall Walker's estate, was awarded four firsts, eight seconds and two thirds. S. Carlquist, superintendent of Mrs. Robert Winthrop's estate, took thirteen firsts, three seconds and five thirds. Joseph W. Pybus, superintendent of the estate of Warren M. Salisbury, also won many prizes.

Certificates of merit were issued to S. Carlquist, superintendent of Mrs. Robert Winthrop's estate, for an exhibit of Begonia elatior; to Charles H. Totty, for his fine rose, Mrs. Shawyer; to Henry A. Dreer, for a collection of single chrysanthemums; to A. N. Pierson, Inc., for a good collection of roses and mums, and to A. J. Loveless, superintendent of the estate of Mrs. W. E. S. Griswold, for some well grown antirrhinums. A. N. Cooley, of Pittsfield, won the prize for six Cattleya labiata. Superintendent Edward Jenkins, of the Giraud Foster estate, Superintendent Geo. H. Thompson, of the Carlos de Heredia estate, and Superintendent John Donahue, of the estate of Mrs. M. K. Jessup, were other prize-winners.

The judges were Superintendent James D. Ballantyne, of F. E. Lewis' estate, at Richfield, Conn; Superintendent R. E. Tyson, of Mrs. H. McKay Twombly's estate, at Madison, N. J.; Superintendent J. E. Everitt, of John P. Pratt's estate, at Glen Cove, N. Y., and Superintendent H. B. Byse, of A. R. Whitney's estate, at Forestown, N. J.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The ninth annual fall show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Pembroke hall, October 28 and 29, and proved a great success. There were fifty-five classes and most of them were keenly contested. Chrysanthemums and foliage plants occupied the main floor; the second floor was well filled with vegetables, roses, carnations, etc. The dinner table decoration brought out a larger number of entries than any other class in the show—ten in all. J. Adler, of Glen Cove, was the winner for the second year in succession. The exhibit of vegetables staged by H. Gaut is worthy of special mention, winning the Stumpp & Walter silver cup, as well as the Gardeners' Chronicle's prize for the most meritorious exhibit in the show.

The judges were W. H. Waite, Yonkers, N. Y.; James Stuart, Mamaronck, N. Y.; James Bell, New York, and J. MacNicol, Cedarhurst, L. I. The awards were as follows:

C. A. Coffin special for group of chrysanthemums covering fifty square feet—First, Percy Chubb, A. Mackenzie, gardener; second, Mrs. H. L. Pratt, H. Gaut, gardener.

Lord & Burnham special for standard chrysanthemum with not less than 2-foot stem—First, Mrs. J. H. Ottley, J. Macdonald, gardener; second, Mrs. H. L. Pratt.

Lord & Burnham special for standard chrysanthemum, single or anemone—First, C. W. Kimball, J. MacCarthy, gardener; second, Mrs. H. L. Pratt.

Stapleton special for bush chrysanthemum, double—First, W. K. Harkness, A. Fournier, gardener.

E. M. Underhill special for bush chrysanthemum, single—First, E. W. Kimball.

Weeber & Donn special, silver cup for six chrysanthemums grown in 6-inch pots—First, Percy Chubb; second, Mrs. D. Guthrie, J. Ross, gardener.

Nassau County Horticultural Society silver cup for eighteen chrysanthemums in six varieties—First, Percy Chubb, with Wm. Turner, Lady Hopetoun, Kleinheinz, Woodmason, Mrs. Gilbert Drabble and F. S. Vallis; second, Mrs. W. D. Guthrie; third, Harvey Ladew, J. Adler, gardener.

H. E. Smith special for eight chrysanthemums, one variety—First, Mrs. J. H. Ottley; second, Mrs. W. D. Guthrie.

Mrs. H. W. Bucknell special for six chrysanthemums, six varieties—First, John T. Pratt, G. Ferguson, gardener; second, Mrs. W. D. Guthrie.

Mrs. D. Burns special for eleven chrysanthemums, ten varieties—First, Percy Chubb; second, J. T. Pratt.

Titus & Brown special for twelve chrysanthemums, twelve varieties—First, Percy Chubb; second, W. D. Guthrie.

C. H. Totty special for two blooms of Clara Banghart chrysanthemum—First, J. T. Pratt; second, H. Ladew.

Mrs. J. H. Ottley special for twelve chrysanthemums arranged for effect—First, J. Macdonald; second, J. T. Pratt.

F. B. Edmonds special for largest bloom—First, Mrs. W. D. Guthrie.

Peter Henderson & Co. special for six chrysanthemums with 12-inch stems—First, J. T. Pratt; second, W. E. Kimball.

Mrs. F. S. Smithers special, silver cup for hardy chrysanthemum, fifty varieties—First, J. T. Pratt; second, Mrs. H. L. Pratt.

C. H. Totty special for six sprays of single chrysanthemum Dorothy Dann—First, J. T. Pratt; second, Mrs. H. L. Pratt.

Vaughan's Seed Store special for twelve varieties of single chrysanthemums—First, Percy Chubb; second, J. T. Pratt.

R. Meserole special for twelve American Beauty roses—First, W. D. Guthrie; second, F. S. Smithers, V. Cleres, gardener.

A. T. Boddington special for roses, twelve white and twelve yellow—First, Mrs. W. D. Guthrie; second, J. T. Pratt.

Cottage Gardens Co. special for carnations, twelve white—First, M. F. Schiff; second, Mrs.

W. D. Guthrie. For twelve pink—First, E. W. Kimball. For twenty-five one color—First, M. F. Schiff.

H. F. Matz special for violets—First, J. T. Pratt; second, Mrs. J. C. Ayer, H. Jones, gardener.

Mrs. H. L. Pratt special, silver cup for table decoration—First, H. Ladew; second, J. T. Pratt. Stumpp & Walter special, silver cup for twelve varieties of vegetables—First, Mrs. H. T. Pratt; second, A. G. Hadenpyle, F. Petroccia, gardener.

Burnett Bros. special for six varieties of vegetables—First, Percy Chubb; second, Mrs. J. H. Ottley.

Hitchings & Co. special for group of ornamental and flowering plants, seventy-five square feet—First, Percy Chubb.

Julius Roehrs Co. special for three plants of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine—First, J. R. Delamar, R. Marshall, gardener; second, Mrs. W. D. Guthrie.

J. W. Gamcock special for four orchid plants—First, J. R. Delamar; second, F. S. Smithers.

J. G. Cocks special for specimen palm—First, F. S. Smithers.

Kohler Bros. special for three ferns—First, T. Leeming, A. Reddenback, gardener; second, Mrs. H. L. Pratt.

Glen Cove Echo special for specimen fern—First, J. R. Delamar.

L. E. Ortiz special for six blooms of yellow chrysanthemums—First, J. T. Pratt.

CLEVELAND'S SHOW NEXT.

Final arrangements are being made to care for all exhibitors at the Ohio Horticultural Society's and the Cleveland Florists' Club's fall show, which opens Thursday, November 13, to continue to November 15. The decoration committee is at work converting the big, new, empty building, containing 64,000 square feet of floor space, into a thing of beauty. The decorative scheme promises to awaken the public to the fact that Cleveland really is, and that Cleveland's florists really are, right up to the minute in floral decorations and floral art.

The publicity committee is on its final spurt, started just after election day. The public is to be notified that a flower show second to none held in this country is soon to take place in their midst.

For the florists out of town who come to see the show the entertainment committee is planning a warm welcome. The banquet, with cabaret attachments, to be held at Hotel Euclid November 14, is for ladies as well as men. The committee invites every florist to bring his wife. Register immediately on entering the show.

Second editions of the premium list were mailed November 1. They were unavoidably held up at the printer's. Copies may be had by addressing John Boddy, City Hall, Cleveland, O.

Special prizes, notices of which were received too late to get into the list, are as follows:

Silver cup offered by S. S. Skidelsky & Co., for sweepstakes on vases of fifty roses, class 117.

Silver cup offered by Stumpp & Walter Co., as first prize in class 121 for best 100 lily of the valley.

Silver cup offered by the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., for supremacy in bridal work.

Silver cup offered by A. Henderson & Co., as sweepstakes on vases of twenty-five roses, class 102.

Cup offered by Harry Balsley as sweepstakes for vases of 100 carnations, class 78.

Gold medal offered by H. F. Michell Co., for best basket of not more than 150 lily of the valley.

Cup offered by Bowler & Burdick as sweepstakes for best vase of twenty-five chrysanthemums, class 32.

Cup offered by Geo. H. Bowman as sweepstakes prize for best vase of twelve chrysanthemums, class 39.

Cup offered by Cornell & Hubbard as sweepstakes for best vase of six chrysanthemums, seedlings, class 52.

Cup offered by Webb C. Ball as sweepstakes for best vase of fifty carnations, class 61.

Cup offered by Scribner & Loehr as sweepstakes for best vase of twenty-five carnations, class 71.

The judges on table decorations, bridal work, etc., are to be Samuel McClements, Albert Pochelon and Chas. Henry Fox. The judges on plants and cut flowers are W. N. Rudd, Prof. J. F. Cowell and M. Bloy.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The committee has examined new varieties as follows:

At Philadelphia, October 25, Ivy Gay, soft pink, Japanese incurved, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows on commercial scale: Color, 17; form, 14; fullness, 9; stem, 12; foliage, 13; substance, 14; size, 9; total, 88.

At Philadelphia, October 25, Gladys Duckham, white, single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows: Color, 34; form, 18; substance, 17; stem and foliage, 17; total, 86.

At Philadelphia, October 25, Stanley Ven, pink, single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows: Color, 38; form, 18; substance, 18; stem and foliage, 18; total, 92.

At Philadelphia, October 25, R. B. Burge, white, single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored as follows: Color, 39; form, 18; substance, 18; stem and foliage, 17; total, 92.

At Boston, October 25, Gladys Duckham, white, single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored 88.

At Boston, October 25, R. B. Burge, white, single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored 95.

At Boston, October 25, Stanley Ven, rose pink, single, exhibited by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., scored 94.

At Boston, October 25, Ivy Gay, rose pink, Japanese incurved, scored on commercial scale 90; on exhibition scale 82.

NATIONAL GARDENERS MEET.Officers Elected.

President—William H. Waite, gardener for Samuel Untermyer, Yonkers, N. Y., reelected.

Vice-president—John W. Everitt, gardener to J. T. Pratt, Glen Cove, N. Y.
Treasurer—James Stuart, gardener to Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Secretary—M. C. Ebel, Madison, N. J.

The annual business meeting was held in the afternoon of November 3 at the Leonard Utzinger.

(Member Hall Committee for the Cleveland Trade Show.)

American Museum of Natural History, New York, during the progress of the exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York, and was opened by an address of welcome by F. R. Pierson. The attendance was about 100. The report of the secretary showed a membership of 720. Resolutions on the death of Julius Roehrs were adopted as drafted by a committee consisting of F. R. Pierson, M. C. Ebel and Mr. McMackin. The new trustees are Messrs. Kleinheinz, Mackenzie, Duff, Dodds and Duckham.

An address was given by Prof. Headley, state entomologist for New Jersey, on the relation of the entomologist and the gardener.

Annual Banquet.

The annual banquet was held at the Hotel Endicott following the business meeting. The members and guests numbered 100. Arthur Herrington was toastmaster. The principal speakers were R. Vincent, Jr., F. R. Pierson, W. J. Stewart, C. H. Totty, H. A. Bunyard and Wm. Duckham, but Messrs. Miller, Ebel, Williamson, Johnson, Brown, Donald, Dick, Jenkins, Greib, Maynard, Shaw and others each spoke a few words. The affair was a great success, there being a fine orchestra and cabaret divertissement.

C. S. A. ANNUAL MEETING.Officers Elected.

President — William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.

Vice-President—A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.

Treasurer—John N. May, Summit, N. J., reelected.

Secretary—C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, Ill., reelected.

The Business Session.

The business meeting was held November 5. As recommended by the secretary's report of a mail vote of the members the scale of points for scoring exhibition varieties in competition with commercial varieties was adopted, as follows: Color, 30; form and fullness, 20; size, 25; stem and foliage, 25; total, 100.

W. N. Rudd called attention to the fact that twenty years ago, in the same building, Bonnaffon made its debut and that it still holds the place it shortly won. It was thought appropriate that the records should note the event.

E. G. Hill, on behalf of the Indiana State Florists' Association, invited the association to meet in Indianapolis in 1914. The invitation was accepted.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

[The following is the address of President Charles H. Totty, read before the Chrysanthemum Society of America at its annual meeting in Chicago, November 5, 1913.]

We are once more assembled to do homage to our favorite flower, the chrysanthemum, and in the name of the society I bid you welcome! Just how far we have progressed since a year ago, I must leave it to the exhibition to tell. The weather all along the eastern seaboard has been so wretched that many of our finest flowers never reached maturity. Our brethren in the central states are not bothered, I understand, by the night fogs, for which they have cause to thank a discriminating providence for sparing them this particular misfortune, though perhaps they have other troubles which counterbalance it.

I think I may safely say that in my eighteen years of chrysanthemum growing in New Jersey we have never had such a season as this, with temperatures running as high as 75 at night and a heavy fog that rolls up and causes the foliage and flowers to simply reek with moisture. As a rule, damping is confined to flowers that have been fed more or less heavily, but this year, for the first time in my experience, I saw flowers that had never been fed at all damp off almost as badly as flowers that were overfed.

It is indeed depressing to the grower of fancy stock to see his labors for the last six or seven months wiped out in a night, but this apparently is one of those conditions that the mum grower is unable to prevent or advise on. I thought perhaps if the society could get up a list of what would be non-damping kinds, it would be useful to the grower living in a foggy zone. Chrysolora, for instance, was the bright particular star of our collection, as comparatively few of the flowers failed to mature in good shape. The question of loss in a season like this is an extremely serious one and none of our members, I am afraid, has made any money so far this fall out of his product.

Poor Market for Mums.

I feel that the demand for the chrysanthemum is just as large as it ever was, or even larger, but this year in the large eastern wholesale markets the thousands, nay millions, of dahlia blooms brought into the markets formed a staggering load for the chrysanthemum to overcome, since the dahlia can be and is sold so cheaply. We can, of course, have no argument with the dahlia grower, for he, like ourselves, is entitled to make what he can from his business and enjoy the fruits of the earth, but it does seem as though the problem of distribution to the masses could be better accomplished than by crowding the wholesale markets to such an extent that nothing can be sold at a remunerative figure. We have the varieties, we have the culture and skill, but in a season such as this last one we certainly have not had the market to dispose of the stock. If there is anyone who knows of a way to overcome this condition, I should be glad to have him mention it or have the matter threshed out in a meeting by the members present. Had providence intervened with a good, sharp frost or two during the last days of September, as it frequently does, there would have been a different story to tell. One good result, however, of the beautiful fall we have had has been the marvelous display of outdoor early flowering mums. In our own case several acres that we planted have been a wonderful sight since the last week in September and even today are extraordinarily fine in spite of the drenching rains and heavy fogs.

Can the market for chrysanthemum blooms be increased? I think it can by growers broadening out their list and not confining themselves to the eternal Ivory, Bonnaffon, and one or two other kinds. When one is shipping to a wholesale market, the varieties that will ship well must be the first consideration and, of course, take precedence, but it will be noted in an exhibition that the ladies gave over the large-flowered Japanese varieties, the singles and any other odd type that comes up. This is the point for the observer to make his deduction from. The buyers would willingly take something different if given a chance, and while the shipper to the large wholesale centers is always handicapped by the apathy of the retailers who only want a few staple varieties and large quantities of them, still the growers who retail their own products, of whom there are thousands in America, should certainly enlarge their list of varieties. They are enabled to do this because the problem of packing and shipping is not of such consequence to them as it is to growers for the wholesale market. The public mind is extremely fickle, and the cry is always for something a little different, something new, and the grower who always has something different for his customers every year can always succeed in holding them and make good money.

The Problem of Membership.

How can we increase our membership? This is a yearly question at this time and the answer is still somewhat problematic. The kindred societies, such as the Rose and Carnation societies, have something of interest for their members at almost any season of the year. The Chrysanthemum Society may be said to live and move and have its being only for the month of November, and just about the time a prospective member is getting enthused, the season is over and his interest has again waned for another year. The society is doing excellent work weeding out inferior kinds and acting as a buffer between such inferior kinds and the grower. It is entitled to the support of every mum grower in the country on that ground alone. Again, the large number of enthusiasts who grow chrysanthemums outdoors without any glass protection whatever should form a goodly host for any society, but apparently we have not yet found the means to reach them. I have mentioned this particular subject before because I feel quite strongly in favor of having them as members, realizing as I do that they can never be accused of having a direct financial interest in the development of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, and are working solely and simply for the love of their favorite flower. I cannot believe that the charge of $2 a year for dues is the reason for their not joining us. Any suggestions that could be proposed for reaching these people would, I am sure, be welcomed by the officers of this society.

William Kleinheinz.

(President-elect Chrysanthemum Society of America.)

Whatever progress has been made by the Chrysanthemum Society of America is due entirely to the efforts of our conscientious secretary, C. W. Johnson, who has worked early and late in the interest of the society and who deserves praise for the work he has accomplished for this society.

Holyoke, Mass.—Miss Lucy Hickey is established in her new store on Maple street. The formal opening was held October 30.

THE MUM SECRETARY REPORTS.

[C. W. Johnson, secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, presented the following report at the meeting at Chicago, November 5.]

Your secretary begs to report his work for the last year as follows: The reports of the examining committees as they were received were given to the trade papers each week and at the end of the season a tabulated report for the whole season was made out and published in the trade papers, it being also included in the report of the eleventh annual meeting. The number of seedlings submitted to the examining committees during the season of 1912 fell below that of preceding years, which ought not to be, because there is plenty of room for improvement over many of our standard commercial and exhibition varieties. Take as an instance the variety Chrysolora: every grower must concede that this variety is a great improvement over any other that we had in its season a few years ago and the effort of the raiser was worth while and a great benefit to all who grow and sell chrysanthemums.

The latter part of November, 1912, a second statement was mailed to all those who had not paid their dues, and resulted in a fair response, but if the members could realize the amount of work that comes to the secretary during the year they would be more ready to attend promptly to the payment of their dues. Early in the year letters were sent to a number of firms who have yearly helped us by donating special prizes, with the result that we were able to get up a fairly generous schedule of specials, and to all these firms and individuals who have helped us from year to year, and the new ones who have been added this year, we extend our thanks.

Referring again to the membership of the society, your secretary earnestly requests that each member undertake to do some personal work to get new members. We greatly appreciate the loyalty of those who are standing by us and helping the society to keep up its work, but there are many things that we could do to help along the interest of the chrysanthemum if we had a larger membership.

We should extend a vote of appreciation to every member of the examining committees, who willingly give their time to examine every variety submitted to them.

The trade papers have been generous in printing the notices sent to them from time to time and publishing details of our meeting and the work of our society, for which we owe to them our vote of thanks.

As ordered by vote at our last annual meeting, a return post-card explaining the compromise scale of points as suggested by Ex-president Elmer D. Smith in scoring exhibition varieties when they were being judged in competition with a commercial variety, was mailed to all members, requesting them to give their opinion on the matter. The expression of the members by the return cards indicates that the majority favor a scale as follows: Color, 30; form and fullness, 20; size, 25; stem and foliage, 25; total, 100.

The badges for members winning first premiums at any chrysanthemum show have been sent to the secretaries of the different societies, requesting them to attach one to every first premium exhibit of a member of the C. S. A.

these narcissi and tulips for the Christmas trade, but they are novelties and bring good prices at that season, hence most of the specialists strive to have some in flower.

WEAK-STEMMED EASTER LILIES.

How long does it take Easter lilies to bloom after they are brought in from their rooting? How should they be treated to bring them to bloom with the largest number of flowers on short stalks, or to have the stems sufficiently strong to hold up the blooms without drooping? My plants have been tall and spindling, not strong enough to hold up the blooms properly. What kind of soil or fertilizer will overcome the trouble?
M. I. H. G.

As to the time required for blooming, everything depends on the variety of lily you are growing and the season of the year. It takes an average of six weeks from the time buds show until the plants are in flower in an average minimum temperature of 60 degrees. Plants, for instance, which will be two or three inches high at Christmas would be easily flowered for the end of March in a temperature of 60 degrees at night. In a higher temperature, still less time would be required. The length of stalk depends largely on the variety. The Formosas are tall, as a rule; Harrisii, moderately tall; multiflorums, shorter; giganteums, the shortest, stockiest, and, in proportion to their height, the finest and freest flowering of all the Easter lilies.

To keep your plants from becoming spindling, keep them on a light, sunny bench, well up to the light. You can feed the plants quite liberally with liquid manure when once the pots are full of roots, and particularly after buds show. Do not use any chemicals and do not pot the bulbs in a rich soil. It will do them more harm than good.
C. W.

NAME OF AMARYLLIS.

What is the name of the amaryllis that has no foliage? It has a spike of bright scarlet flowers. It grows in Florida.
M. F. C.

All the amaryllis flower with little or no foliage, and, as there are many scarlet varieties, it is not easy to say just what variety you have in mind. At this season, also, the nerines are in flower. There are several varieties that have bright scarlet flowers which come before the foliage appears. Is it possible you have seen these and mistaken them for amaryllis? The flowers are much smaller than those of amaryllis, and quite different in appearance. Amaryllis Belladonna flowers at this season before making any leaf growth, but the color is bright pink, not scarlet.
C. W.

Manchester, Mass.—Wm. Lawson, formerly at Dow's greenhouses, at Beverly, has taken a position with Axel Magnuson here.

Mansfield, O.—Stuhldreher Bros. are having a most successful chrysanthemum crop this fall. The number of plants under cultivation is half again as large as last year's, and it will be larger next year, as an addition, 150 x 900 feet, is being erected, raising the glass area to 25,000 feet.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lilies of the Valley.

Cold storage valley pips come along quite fast at this season, twenty-four to thirty days sufficing from starting to flowering. With fire heat now at command everywhere, a more even bottom heat can be given, and the pips start into growth with surprising rapidity. In order to ensure a nice lot of foliage, gradually expose the plants to light after the flower spikes are well advanced. The same sand can be used over and over again for valley, as the pips make no roots while being forced. For both Thanksgiving and Christmas, 5-inch and 6-inch pots of nicely foliated valley are salable, especially when offered in an attractive form at the stores. It is better to keep these in the dark for a short time, to allow fuller development of the foliage.

Herbaceous Calceolarias.

The growth of herbaceous calceolarias is now much more rapid, and care must be taken to repot them before their roots become matted. Use for compost fibrous loam, old cow manure, leaf-mold and sand. For the last potting leaf-mold can be omitted. Grow the plants in a cold house; in fact, they are just as well in a coldframe for another month, if protected from frost. Aphis will soon curl up the foliage if fumigations are not given weekly. Do not throw away the seemingly weak plants, as they usually provide the finest flowers. Give them a little encouragement and they will repay you for it.

Poinsettias.

The poinsettias should now be kept in a minimum temperature of 55 degrees, and if any are wanted as early as Thanksgiving, 60 to 65 degrees must be given. Water carefully, for on this depends the future welfare of the plants; soil, temperature, etc., may be ideal, but careless watering will soon undo these, and the foliage, instead of being green, will soon commence to turn yellow. Poinsettias with good foliage will always sell, but no one wants them with naked stems. The more flowers the plants carry at the holidays, the better they will sell, and in order to have them in a good, salable condition, they should be stood on a shelf or light bench in a house kept at 50 to 52 degrees at night. They need no shade whatever now and are made all the harder and sturdier if getting full sunlight from this time on.

Stevias.

Move a batch of stevias into a moderately warm house every eight or ten days; nothing warmer than a carnation temperature is desirable. At Thanksgiving some stevias will come in extremely useful and will prove even more so at Christmas. Keep the main batch of plants in a cold house; anything clear of actual frost will answer for them.

French Bulbous Plants.

The earliest Paper White narcissi are already in flower. It is not advisable to have too many come into bloom while mums are at their flood tide, but on any retail place a few flats of them come in useful at any time, particularly when funeral work is to be made up. Start a fresh batch once a week to keep up a proper succession. This bulb will stand a considerable amount of heat, but give it a cool house when opening. Roman hyacinths of the first planting are now sufficiently started to house. Give them a warm house and it will be possible to have them for Thanksgiving. French Trumpet Majors and Golden Spurs are starting nicely and should be fit to house by the middle of November. They must be started at that time if any are wanted for Christmas. We doubt if it really pays to force

THE TELEGRAPH DELIVERY.

A bad feature for retailers to practice, which will surely have a bad effect in the end with the public, is to take orders for towns too far away from your own town, and then ship them. The other day a large floral offering for the opening of a store in Louisville, Ky., was shipped all the way from New York by a New York retailer. You can imagine what an eyecore it must have been for the public to see such a withered up floral offering. It certainly was no credit to the florists' trade. How much nicer and more pleasing to the public as well as to the recipient it would have been had the Louisville florist made this delivery! It is not alone a misjudgment but in bad taste for the florist to ship floral offerings so far, for he loses by it in the end; it is detrimental to the entire florists' trade.

Through the offices of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery I am sure that a lot of these things can be prevented and a great deal of good can be done all around by retailers coöperating and comparing notes.

If the trade papers are willing to help us in this direction, and no doubt they will, I shall be pleased to write up little happenings I hear about from our members every now and then, so all retailers, whether members of the F. T. D. or not, may benefit by it.

ESTIMATING DECORATIONS.

One of the most interesting of the addresses at the meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club, October 20, was that given by Hugo Schroeter on "Estimating Decorations." The point on which he placed most emphasis is that the florist should charge enough to enable him to do justice to himself as well as to his customer. In estimating, therefore, he should bear in mind the many details that, if not watched, eat up the margin of profit.

When called upon to give an estimate for a decoration, it is best to get, first of all, either the entire confidence of the customer, or a clear understanding of his wishes before giving any figures. It is wise to remember that the lowest quotation is not always the one that wins the order, but, on the other hand, overcharging should be avoided. On a store decoration it is not difficult to state an exact figure, but there is always to be added the cost of a little extra stock that goes to some employee to "pave the way," so to speak. In a moderate sized order, such extras amount to a considerable sum.

One cannot expect to make as much on a $25 to $75 decoration in a home as he can on a funeral piece at the same price, but by all means charge enough to enable you to do justice to the job, for the decorator, not the customer, must bear the blame for poor work. If a reasonable price can not be obtained, it is better to let the other fellow do the work and get the blame. Flowers and plants are so varied in size and quality that they can not be figured at a certain standard, as you would yards of ribbon, and for that reason it is rarely wise to try to meet a competitor's estimate.

The best plan when a home decoration has much detailed work is to try to get an order to go ahead within a certain figure. If, however, the florist is called upon to include all the details in his estimate, he should not forget to allow for a change in the market prices of flowers; his time should be paid for, either as a separate item or otherwise; the trips made by his automobile and assistants must be included in the estimate, or he loses just that amount. If he wishes to do a good business and keep up a high standard, he must charge for all the detailed expenses. Little is gained by cutting prices for a customer who wants everything cheap. He will never be satisfied, no matter how little he pays, and a dissatisfied customer does no good. A decoration is seen by a large number of people and, when carefully executed, elicits many compliments, regardless of its cost, which is usually known only by the customer and perhaps a few intimate friends. The favorable comment thus obtained is worth in advertising far more than the gaining of a single cheap order on which a florist can not do his best.

A CHAPEL DECORATION.

The funeral of the wife of Chas. N. Fairbanks, former vice-president of the United States, drew great quantities of flowers and pieces from all over the country. The chapel at Crown Hill cemetery, Indianapolis, Ind., at which the funeral was held October 26, was covered on every side with the floral remembrances of her friends. The arrangement of the flowers was in the hands of the Bertermann Bros. Co., of Indianapolis, and a part of their work may be seen in the accompanying illustration.

MANURE FOR COMPOST.

Please advise me as to what manure to use in a sod pile I am about to build. There is plenty of cow manure at hand, but it contains wood shavings which were used to keep the floor clean. Is it out of the question to use this manure? I have plenty of horse manure; would you advise me to use it, instead? I grow bedding plants, carnations and chrysanthemums, and force bulbs.

L. B.

If you have plenty of horse manure which is free from shavings, I would advise you to use it in building your compost heap. The shavings in the cow manure might not prove harmful, but that would depend entirely on the kind of shavings used and the quantity contained in the manure. If the whole mass were thoroughly rotted before using, there would not likely be any detrimental effect. If the stable manure is short—not a great deal of straw in it—use one load of manure to each three loads of soil. If it contains a good deal of straw, then use one load to every two loads of soil. If you place the manure in layers, between layers of soil, do not make the layers too thick. The thinner the better.

Referring again to the membership of the society, your secretary earnestly requests that each member undertake to do some personal work to get new members. We greatly appreciate the loyalty of those who are standing by us and helping the society to keep up its work, but there are many things that we could do to help along the interest of the chrysanthemum if we had a larger membership.

We should extend a vote of appreciation to every member of the examining committees, who willingly give their time to examine every variety submitted to them.

The trade papers have been generous in printing the notices sent to them from time to time and publishing details of our meeting and the work of our society, for which we owe to them our vote of thanks.

As ordered by vote at our last annual meeting, a return post-card explaining the compromise scale of points as suggested by Ex-president Elmer D. Smith in scoring exhibition varieties when they were being judged in competition with a commercial variety, was mailed to all members, requesting them to give their opinion on the matter. The expression of the members by the return cards indicates that the majority favor a scale as follows: Color, 30; form and fullness, 20; size, 25; stem and foliage, 25; total, 100.

The badges for members winning first premiums at any chrysanthemum show have been sent to the secretaries of the different societies, requesting them to attach one to every first premium exhibit of a member of the C. S. A.

these narcissi and tulips for the Christmas trade, but they are novelties and bring good prices at that season, hence most of the specialists strive to have some in flower.

WEAK-STEMMED EASTER LILIES.

How long does it take Easter lilies to bloom after they are brought in from their rooting? How should they be treated to bring them to bloom with the largest number of flowers on short stalks, or to have the stems sufficiently strong to hold up the blooms without drooping? My plants have been tall and spindling, not strong enough to hold up the blooms properly. What kind of soil or fertilizer will overcome the trouble?

M. I. H. G.

As to the time required for blooming, everything depends on the variety of lily you are growing and the season of the year. It takes an average of six weeks from the time buds show until the plants are in flower in an average minimum temperature of 60 degrees. Plants, for instance, which will be two or three inches high at Christmas would be easily flowered for the end of March in a temperature of 60 degrees at night. In a higher temperature, still less time would be required. The length of stalk depends largely on the variety. The Formosas are tall, as a rule; Harrisii, moderately tall; multilorum, shorter; giganteums, the shortest, stockiest, and, in proportion to their height, the finest and freest flowering of all the Easter lilies.

To keep your plants from becoming spindling, keep them on a light, sunny bench, well up to the light. You can feed the plants quite liberally with liquid manure when once the pots are full of roots, and particularly after buds show. Do not use any chemicals and do not pot the bulbs in a rich soil. It will do them more harm than good.

NAME OF AMARYLLIS.

What is the name of the amaryllis that has no foliage? It has a spike of bright scarlet flowers. It grows in Florida.

M. F. C.

All the amaryllis flower with little or no foliage, and, as there are many scarlet varieties, it is not easy to say just what variety you have in mind. At this season, also, the nerines are in flower. There are several varieties that have bright scarlet flowers which come before the foliage appears. Is it possible you have seen these and mistaken them for amaryllis? The flowers are much smaller than those of amaryllis, and quite different in appearance. Amaryllis Belladonna flowers at this season before making any leaf growth, but the color is bright pink, not scarlet.

C. W.

Manchester, Mass. Wm. Lawson formerly at Dow's greenhouses, at Beverly, has taken a position with Axel Magnuson here.

Mansfield, O. Stuhlbacher Bros. are having a most successful chrysanthemum crop this fall. The number of plants under cultivation is half again as large as last year's, and it will be larger next year, as an addition, 150 x 200 feet, is being erected, raising the glass area to 25,000 feet.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lilies of the Valley.

Cold storage valley pips come along quite fast at this season, twenty-four to thirty days sufficing from starting to flowering. With fire heat now at command everywhere, a more even bottom heat can be given, and the pips start into growth with surprising rapidity. In order to ensure a nice lot of foliage, gradually expose the plants to light after the flower spikes are well advanced. The same sand can be used over and over again for valley, as the pips make no roots while being forced. For both Thanksgiving and Christmas, 5 inch and 6 inch pots of nicely foliated valley are salable, especially when offered in an attractive form at the stores. It is better to keep these in the dark for a short time, to allow fuller development of the foliage.

ODOR FROM WALL COVER.

I wrote to you recently about some roses that were not doing well; the leaves were dropping and not maturing their growth. I thought at the time that the falling of the leaves might be caused by an overdose of sulphur fumes or that possibly the soil might not be good enough, as described in my letter. The leaves continue to fall, so I have been looking for another cause than sulphur fumes, as the effect of these would hardly persist for three or four weeks without renewal. This morning it occurred to me that the outside covering of the walls might be the cause of the trouble. The walls are rough boarded and covered with some kind of roofing material which I supposed was partly composed of asphalt, but perhaps it is tar. The building was covered last fall, but there were no plants or heat in it until the present crop of roses was planted. There was only a slight odor of tar from the stuff when it was freshly opened to be put on, eleven months ago, and there is no noticeable odor outside now. This morning I noticed what seemed to be an odor of tar down near the pipes inside. I do not think there was heat enough in the pipes to start the smell of tar, if it is tar, as the temperature is seldom below 60 degrees outside and the pipes are scarcely warm; there is just a little fire to keep the air moving, with the ventilators open almost an inch at night.

The Killarneys are still losing foliage; some in 3½-inch pots are worse than those in the bench. The Richmonds are on the outer end of the bench, close to the end of the house, and have this tar (?) covering or sheeting on three sides of them. Although they have not made so much growth as the Killarneys, they have kept what growth they did make and have lost no foliage. Last fall I had to put a new wall in a 75-foot carnation house and I covered it with this same stuff, but have not seen any bad effects on them. Of course, the house is a great deal larger and the carnations would, perhaps, stand more than roses.

I inclose a sample of the covering used; you may be able to tell whether it is tar or asphalt.

This morning I started to try to shut out the effects of the outside wall covering. I tacked a strip of paper over the cracks and on top of that nailed a lath, in the hope that I would thus shut out a large proportion of the odor of tar, and it was while doing this I noticed the odor. I have made the walls as tight as possible in the hope of avoiding the work of stripping the whole thing off, if that is the cause of the trouble.

I should like to have your opinion of this wall covering. If it is a tar compound, the whole thing is explained. In that case, will it be necessary to strip it all off? When real firing begins, will the heat of the pipes warm the walls enough to increase the fumes?

W. C.

If you follow my suggestions, as given in The Review of October 23, page 12, in reply to your first letter, you should be able to remedy the trouble. You might also find a hint or two in my reply to H. G. A., on page 14 of The Review of October 16. The asphaltum roofing felt used on the outside of the house should have absolutely no effect on the roses. Killarneys will drop a lot of foliage at this time of the year, no matter how you may treat them, and if they are kept in pots and are potbound it is almost impossible to keep any foliage on them. As long as no blind wood is cut off the plants and the flowering shoots are not cut back too hard, the plants will not suffer from the loss of the bottom foliage unless they are checked from some other cause.

W. J. K.

PROPAGATION OF HARDY ROSES.

I have a number of hardy roses from which I should like to take cuttings. Will you kindly tell me the best way to treat the stock plants and the best method and time to strike the cuttings?

A. G. B.

The ripened cuttings of your hardy roses can be taken any time in November. Make them three to four inches long and place them in flats or pans of sand in a cold greenhouse. They will root in about three months, and then can be potted off singly and later planted outdoors in rich soil. They will make good sized plants before fall. A more common method of propagation is that practiced by specialists, who usually root hundreds of thousands of hardy roses under glass. Dormant plants are potted, pruned back, started cool, gradually given more heat, and, when the buds begin to show prominently, which is just about the flowering time, the wood is cut up into short lengths, each containing a single eye; then the cuttings are placed in a cutting bench where they can have a little bottom heat. All will be rooted in a month, and then can be potted off, gradually hardened and planted out, as in the case of ripened wood cuttings, Cuttings inserted in a gentle hotbed in July will also root quite satisfactorily. This method is not much practiced in America, but is quite popular in Europe. By adopting this method, nice plants, well rooted in pots, can be had before winter. The little plants should be kept dormant over winter and planted out as soon as the ground has thawed and dried sufficiently for planting.

Timothy Smith.

(Member Decorating Committee for the Cleveland Trade Show.)

You would do well to lift and pot some stock plants now, starting them under glass any time after Christmas. Plants which are to be left outdoors should be banked up with earth, and later a mulch of leaves or straw added. In localities where minimums of 10 degrees below zero, or lower, are recorded, however, the safest plan is to dig up and bury the plants before the ground freezes up, and to replant each spring.

C. W.

FIRE AT ANDERSON.

Fire in the early morning hours of November 1 destroyed the greenhouse plant of Williams & Matthews, Anderson, Ind. The flames originated in the boiler shed and quickly spread to the greenhouses and stables. The horses were rescued, but the greenhouses were destroyed, with their contents. Estimates of the loss are placed as high as $20,000.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Atlanta, Ga.—J. F. Matthiessen, who was adjudged bankrupt September 23, has petitioned the court for a discharge and the court has ordered that a hearing be had December 13. Communications relative to the matter should be addressed to O. C. Fuller, clerk of the court. J. P. Matthiessen's name appears on the letter-head of the Atlanta Commission Florists Co., as manager.

ATTACK RATES ON MOSS.

Freight rates on moss from Wisconsin points to Chicago by the Chicago & Northwestern railroad are attacked by W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, in a complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The shipments are from Warren, Laona, Long Lake and Wabeno, Wis. It is alleged that on moss shipments a commodity rate of 3 cents per 100 pounds more than the lumber rate was applied, the rates being 12 and 14 cents per 100 pounds. A refund of $32 overcharges is requested.

The Market.

Flowers during the last week were in great demand for parties, receptions and weddings, while funeral work used up great quantities of short-stemmed stock. The weather has been extremely cold for this season of the year and heavy frosts have entirely killed outdoor stock. The queen of autumn still holds her rightful place. Such varieties as Robinson, Chrysolora, white and yellow Major Bonnaillon and Ivory find constant popularity. Carnations, which seem to be rather scarce in the wholesale markets, are readily sold and bring good returns. The supply of roses is increasing, and the quality of the blooms is excellent. There are some fine chrysanthemum plants in the retail establishments, which meet with public favor.

Various Notes.

The November meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held Monday, November 3, at Richmond, Ind. At this meeting, in order that the florists might view the handsome exhibit of chrysanthemums of the company, they made a tour of the E. G. Hill Co. greenhouses. The following day the cut was taken for the Chicago show. This firm has grown some splendid commercial varieties, as well as novelties in mums. A number of florists from this city and vicinity are in attendance at Chicago.

The orchid grower of the Vesey greenhouses, S. Hudson, returned to this city November 1, after a visit to his home in London, England, which extended through the summer months.

Some pretty novelties in baskets were displayed in the shop of G. W. Doswell & Son, which were fashioned of reeds by Miss Doswell. These baskets are all adapted for plants and flowers. Some are stained in harmonizing colors and others are gilded.

Decorations for a recent reception of unusual brilliance, which were executed by the Flick Floral Co., were marked by much character and beauty. Autumn coloring was displayed in the arrangement of white and yellow Major Bonnaillon chrysanthemums in standard vases, with bronze oak foliage in the reception rooms, while the dining room was decorated with princess baskets and tall silver vases of Killarneys. Southern smilax was used in profusion on the screened porches. In the den, the walls of which are of mahogany, the niches were filled with bronze oak foliage, Chrysolora mums and Whitmani ferns.

One of the visitors the last week was a member of the force of the Ten Eyck Greenhouses, of Auburn, Ind.

St. Marys, O.—Henry J. Vander Horst and his son, Alfred, are working on an addition, 12 x 102 feet, to their greenhouses on South Webb street. It will probably be devoted to lettuce.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1913: President, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; vice-president, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.

Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 54 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo.
Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE man who is a good collector is prompt pay, and, usually, vice versa.

BOWLING, once the favorite relaxation for florists, appears to have largely lost its interest since the old guard has taken up automobiling, or golf.

THE advertising department of The Review would like to hear from the owners of some White trucks which have not been shown in the White advertisements.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

IN spite of the important quantities known to be in storage, and the well stocked condition of most of the large users, there are those who believe that sphagnum moss will be an extremely scarce article before spring.

THE real winter worth of a new rose of promise never is known before the second season after its dissemination. During the winter months of the first season all available wood is being used for propagating, so that no blooms can be produced.

IT may be true that "there is a sucker born every minute," but just the same the only business worth having is one that gives customers good enough service to hold their trade. Any florist who loses sight of this fact will some day find he is at the end of his rope.

IF the price of freshly imported plants of Cattleya labiata keeps going up there soon will be no glut of the cut flowers in any of the city markets. Growers who bought stock at $30 per case now have to pay $60 or more and say they do not get so good plants as at the lower prices.

MAKING IT EASY FOR HIM.

"Let's make him earn his money." How often have you heard a buyer make the remark in connection with some deal?

Did you ever stop to think that the buyer pays the costs of the seller? Did you ever pause to consider that in the long run you pay every extra and unnecessary expense you put on the people you buy from?

It costs just so much to produce an article, and it costs a certain sum in addition to sell it. The buyer has to pay the cost of production, the cost of selling, and the profit necessary to keep the seller in business. Not only the necessary costs, but the unnecessary costs. They not only must be but are added in, somewhere.

Consequently, having decided to patronize a seller, especially if you patronize him regularly, it is to your interest to help him keep his selling cost down.

Don't "make him earn" his money; make it as easy for him as you can. Everything he "earns" you pay. The less he has to "earn" the lower he can keep his selling price.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

There was an extremely good market last week, but it began to ease off October 31 and since then prices have softened quite a little, especially on roses and mums. Chrysanthemums are even more in evidence and only Beauties and first grade pompons are reported scarce. Carnations are not in oversupply, by any means, but with the reasonably bright weather of the last ten days the supply is heavy enough to take care of all orders at recent quotations. It is not hard to clean up on anything in the carnation line at a slight concession.

Chrysanthemums are all that could be desired and the heavy crops that are now being cut make it possible to take care of any unexpected increase in the demand. All the popular mid-season favorites are to be had and even Bonnaillon has appeared in considerable quantity. While there is no end to the smaller stock, the cuts include some high quality flowers that leave little to be desired. Pompons have been bringing excellent returns, not by reason of any unusual shortage of stock, but more on account of the brisk demand that the small flowers have enjoyed. They clean out quickly, especially the better grades, and the dealers say they cannot get enough of the good ones to satisfy all demands.

Beauties have shortened up and as a result prices have stiffened, especially on the long grades. They have shown exceedingly fine quality and the buds are not only of good color but are large and perfect. Killarneys are abundant, but the demand has been sufficient to clean them up at such prices as ordinarily rule during the mum season. While the better grades get the call, there is no let-up in the demand for short stock for funeral work and there is no surplus of shorts at present. The other roses are not so much in evidence, but there are enough Richmond, Maryland and Bulgarie to care for the needs of the buyers. Ward and Sunburst are in good demand for corsage work and there is hardly a time when

MILADY, MRS. WARD, BULGARIE and the KILLARNEYS

HERE are Roses you need. Milady is the Red Rose of the Hour; everybody likes it. We have a new crop just coming on and shall have a large supply for the next few weeks. Mrs. Ward is the Reigning Favorite for corsage work, and we also have it on long stems, for baskets or other uses. Bulgarie, frequently sold as Mrs. Taft, has been a best seller ever since it came out. And the Killarneys are the Bread-and-Butter roses. We have all these in quantity, of finest quality.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

The retailers certainly have been ordering our Beauties liberally of late—we have done a big business—but we are able to take care of still more out-of-town customers. Please remember that while the largest orders do not tax our resources, we never are too busy to take good care of the small orders.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

We announce the arrival of Major Bonnaffon and the vanguard of the late mums, the best of the year. Now it is possible to say the mum season is at its height—best varieties, best quality and largest supply. We can supply everything you need, from a bunch of Pompons to the big show blooms. Our mums are grown by mum specialists, but they cost no more than those not produced with such great care. Pompons, all colors, single and double, 50c per bunch.

VIOLETS

We handle more Violets than any other house in the West—business built on supplying the best in quantity.

CARNATIONS

You can get your orders filled here—good stock and plenty of it.

CATTLEYAS

There are no finer Orchids than those we offer. Home grown. There's a difference in keeping quality.

VALLEY

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies every day in the year.

these do not bring top prices. Milady is selling well. Russell has about disappeared, the wood being needed for propagating.

Violets are not causing any great flurry and yet they are bringing fair prices, owing to a decrease in the eastern shipments. Lilies are to be found in good quantities and there is no trouble about prices. Valley is not running so strong as might be expected, but the large social functions are not so numerous as when the season opened. Local cattleyas are bringing good prices in spite of shipments from the east at low rates. A few sweet peas are seen. Greens are quiet.

There is quite general complaint in the market that collections are not up to the usual standard. Cut flower dealers, florists' supply concerns, bulb and seed dealers all say the florists in general are as ready as ever to buy heavily, but that they are not so prompt as usual in meeting their bills.

October Weather.

The mean temperature for October was almost exactly normal and the precipitation was less than a quarter of an inch below the normal, but the percentage of possible sunshine was only fifty-four as against a normal of sixty-four; the average was exactly six hours of sun per day. The month was warm and bright in the first half and cold and dark in the second half, not good growing weather.

Credit Association's Year.

The association of wholesale florists organized under the management of the Wilbur Mercantile Agency is just finishing the year for which the original agreement was drawn. Theoretically excellent, and actually producing many desirable results, in practice the plan has not proved fully successful, some of the largest houses having declined to come in originally and others having some time ago either withdrawn or announced their intention of doing so. Many of the remainder feel that they cannot carry on the work alone. The result is that a plan has been broached looking to a reorganization eliminating the delinquent list, and apparently recognizing that this feature cannot be worked successfully in this trade.

Various Notes.

Lubliner & Trinz opened their new store at 41 South Wabash avenue October 29 and report that business has been much more satisfactory than had been anticipated for a new location. The interior of the store is finished in white and a United refrigerator in the same color is one of the most impressive ice-boxes yet seen. The only drawback in the new place is two large pillars that stand in the middle of the store, cutting off the refrigerator from the eye of the customer as he enters the door. A basement affords plenty of room for work and for packing orders for delivery.

Fire broke out in the office of the John F. Kidwell & Bro. plant, at Thirty-ninth street and Wentworth avenue, at 1 a. m. November 3, and before it was extinguished had done damage to the extent of about $1,500. The loss, however, was confined to the building in which the office was located and with the exception of a small quantity of broken glass the greenhouses were not affected. The broken glass was quickly replaced and John F. Kidwell says there was no loss in stock worth mentioning.

J. R. Fotheringham, of the F. R. Pierson Co., is in town on his way home to Tarrytown after an absence of nearly six months, during which he has made two trips to the Pacific coast, on one of which he acquired a bride.

For some weeks reports have been current that Mrs. Williams, who is proprietor of the Atlas Floral Co. and of the Williams Flower Shop, had disposed of the lease under which the latter has been operated since the completion of the building at the southwest corner of Wabash avenue and Monroe street, and that the store would go out of business, being succeeded by a saloon. Mrs. Williams still says no deal has been closed. The store is open as usual.

November 1 Otto Goerisch went into partnership with Fred Fischer, at 2737 North Clark street, where the latter has done a flourishing retail business for some years. Mr. Goerisch is 29 years of age and has spent his entire business life in the employ of A. L. Randall, having been with the wholesaler for nearly sixteen years. He is well equipped to make a success of retailing.

Frank Johnson and Eric Johnson, who are not brothers except in business, returned from a trip of ten days to New York, and south into the holly and boxwood districts. They say they did not find any place where business was poor, but the situation in Chicago looks better to them than it did when they left home.

Peter Reinberg has dropped Melody from his list, Sunburst and Ward having proved to fill the bill in yellow roses.

Ed Eisner is reopening his retail store, at 5548 Halsted street.

H. E. Philpott is in town on his way to the Cleveland flower show.

Schiller has given an order to Buchbinder Bros. for a new refrigerator for the north side store. It is to be finished in mission green and will be one of the largest in town, being fifteen feet long, four feet deep and ten feet high. Sidney Buchbinder states that business this year is far in excess of last year at this time and on October 30 reported sales to J. J. Kolar and the North Shore Floral Co. in addition to the Schiller order. Mr. Kolar is a newcomer in the trade and will open a store at Twenty-sixth street and Fifty-second avenue.

It is reported that Poehlmann Bros. Co. is figuring on a big plantation of peonies at Morton Grove for cut flower purposes.

W. F. Duntemann, of Bensenville, was in town November 3 with his first pick of violets for the season. He is selling through O. A. Tonner.

O. Johnson reports that the Batavia Greenhouse Co. has sweet peas and callas on the benches where the chrysanthemums stood. They were through cutting mums before some growers had begun.

John Degnan says that Winterson's Seed Store cleaned up quicker on Dutch bulbs than in any previous season. He had bought as heavily as ever, though apparently many importers reduced their orders this season.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., says this looks to him like a season when boxwood might prove quite scarce.

Wietor Bros. report an exceptionally good demand for pompon and single mums.

The E. C. Amling Co. blames the dark weather the latter part of October for the backwardness of the sweet peas, which are not yet arriving in quantity.

The first Paper Whites of the season reached the A. L. Randall Co. November 3.

A. T. Pyfer, of the Chicago Carnation Co., says he does not recall a season when carnations sold better in October than they did this year.

A. Miller, of A. Henderson & Co., arrived in the city November 3 after a number of weeks on the road. With him came Robert Rahaley, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, who was here to stage the new carnation, Philadelphia, at the chrysanthemum show.

C. L. Washburn says that the pompon mum was never so popular as this year and that, although they are cutting from 20,000 plants, it is hard to take care of all the demands.

A. L. Vaughan is one of those on the market who keeps track of the records for business done in previous years and a chart at a glance gives him the exact data. He points out that this fall has been exceptionally good and even with more flowers on hand prices are holding their own. One of the out-of-town visitors to call on Mr. Vaughan this week was E. W. Guy, of Belleville, Ill.

Albert T. Hey has a house 20 x 125 at Maywood, full of cattleyas. He says he did splendidly with the Gas-kelliana and is doing well with the labiatas. He has no gigas, which comes at a season he considers too late. Mr. Hey brings his orchids to the A. L. Randall Co. by hand each morning.

Carl Ickes, for many years the vice-president and treasurer of the A. Dietsch Co., has returned from Europe, where he spent the summer touring with his wife and daughter.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Market.

The last two weeks have shown a great improvement in business. A number of large funerals, Hallowe'en and a good frost have kept our market cleaned up in good shape. Chrysanthemums are fine in all colors. Carnations, roses, snapdragons, daisies and violets are in good shape, but are not plentiful as yet, we are glad to say, and we hope we shall be able to keep this balance until after the holidays.

Various Notes.

F. H. Lauck, of John Giles, Reading, Pa., was in town and placed a large order for trees and nursery stock.

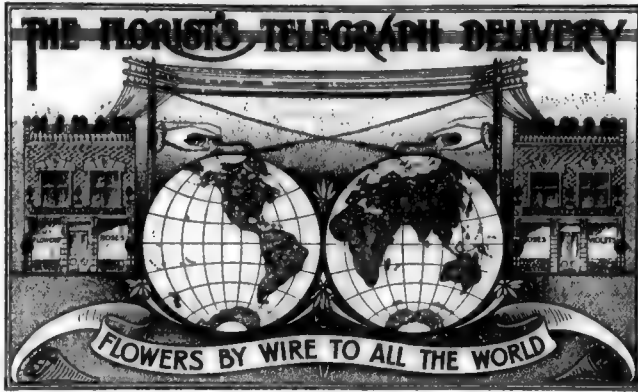

H. A. Schroyer's chrysanthemums are in full bloom and in fine condition.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

There have been many persons who have criticized the loyalty of this column to the Philadelphia market, the greatest distributing center in the east. That this loyalty was fully justified is shown today by the fact that almost every grower in this locality is today shipping to Philadelphia.

The market is only in fair shape. The supply of midseason chrysanthemums is heavy, with a demand that is not always equal to taking all of them, even at low prices. The best stock can be sold readily, but flowers that arrive bruised, soft or with weak stems are a trial to everybody. The whites are strong just now. Mrs. Razer, White Bonnaffon, Elise Papworth, Alice Byron and Ivory lead. Pink is not so plentiful. McNiece, when really well done, is an acquisition. Dr. Enguehard, Minnie Bailey and Pink Ivory complete the list. Yellow is strong indeed. The great Bonnaffon, Roman Gold, Appleton and Robert Halliday have closely followed Chrysolora. Semi-doubles like Garza and pompons like Quinola, Lagraverre, Iva, Baby and White Baby, are much used in preference to too short-stemmed carnations. The better grade carnations sell, but not those with stems from eight to ten inches long.

Roses are generally off crop, judging by the light receipts at many of the wholesale houses. Double violets have been short of the demand, particularly on football day. Fancy singles have helped out. Valley is in fair demand, the supply excellent. The quantity of cattleyas has fallen off. Mixed orchids are to be had in moderate numbers. Cypripediums are coming in quite freely. The frost has destroyed cosmos and all outdoor flowers excepting pompons, which, by the way, are never taken when the buyer can secure indoor-grown stock.

That Hundredth Man.

A good deal has been written about

Godfrey Aschmann's place, the large number of plants grown and sold there, the varieties, the sizes, and so forth; so much, indeed, that it will be more interesting to tell about Godfrey Aschmann himself. He is a man in the prime of life, who has had a thorough training as a florist since his boyhood. He has combined with his grower's knowledge a business shrewdness that enables him to reap the benefit of his work to an unusual degree; I mean by this that Mr. Aschmann seldom grows plants that are not in demand, or of sizes that are seldom wanted; he rarely forces plants on a dull market, preferring to offer them when they are wanted, and he does not encourage book accounts. These three reasons are important factors in Mr. Aschmann's success, but they are only forerunners to the fourth and most important reason of all, namely, his courage in advertising. Mr. Aschmann writes his own advertisements. His confident, fearless style has won him friends all over the country; his persistence has held them. I do not mean that a florist who once buys from Godfrey Aschmann always buys from him; that would be ridiculous. I do mean that he has a large following who look to him for the seasonable offers, and who frequently buy from him. He has what they want, and he tells them about it. Godfrey Aschmann has succeeded where not more than one man in a hundred would have succeeded. The conditions favored a small local business, one that would have dried up with the first unfavorable breath of wind. In spite of these conditions, a successful business has been built up that is known all over the country.

Godfrey Aschmann was in a cheerful frame of mind. Business was good for the season, he said. Azaleas were selling particularly well. Pointing with pride to some nice azaleas, Mr. Aschmann said that he had never seen them finer. His look was one of satisfaction as he strolled through the azalea and araucaria houses. When one of the begonia houses was reached he became eager. Some Christmas red Begonia luminosa needed room. They were in 2¼-inch pots. Some of the same sowing were in 4-inch pots and were twice as large. How to get room for a shift was the puzzle. That he knows the value of room was seen on all sides. A big batch of hardy ivies, three in a pot, were reposing under a bench in a cool house awaiting their turn next spring. The force was divided into two parts; one was packing orders, the other potting hyacinths. One part was to go over the Lorraine begonias before night, to get them just right for the holidays. A few words on the fern question, illustrated by many pots and pans of them and thousands of seedlings, closed a visit that showed the speaker knew whereof he spoke.

The Opening of the Season.

The roof of the Bellevue-Stratford hotel was the scene of a brilliant entertainment on the evening of November 3. It was the opening night of the opera season. The host, a man of national reputation in the business world, invited 100 guests to supper after the opera. The roof garden of the Bellevue, be it known, is not literally on the roof, but under it, on top of the top story, the twenty-second I think it is. The guests ascended gently to this dizzy elevation in a carefully run car. They found themselves confronting a scene of rich tropical beauty. Directly in front was a vine-covered pergola, beyond a long walk through the forest. Tall spruces, hemlocks and palms were interspersed with vines and brightened by many tiny electric lights that sparkled like fireflies. These bordered each side, beneath a grassy walk.

This walk changed from grass to tile as it approached the wicker gate that marked the entrance to the garden. Here was a scene of splendid Brazilian beauty. The center of the garden contained a fountain and pool of water, richly colored, from red to green, to blue, to pale shimmering moonlight, by electricity. Ferns and flowers surrounded the fountain. Around this central fountain and flower bed circled a walk bounded by tropical verdure and blossom, varied by a real Brazilian cottage, with porch, balcony, green shades and thatch roof, true to nature. The host and hostess received in a curve of the garden, with tall palms and delicate oncidiums forming a lovely background. Beyond another grass covered walk, with forest trees on either side and sky-like covering above, led to the supper room. There a touch of tropical life was added to the handsome foliage and flower and electric decorations. Monkeys, canaries and parrots were transported among the trees to the sound of sweet music from an orchestra embowered at the end of the room. The tables, seating four and five each, were decorated alternately with fruit and flowers.

While there were not many flowers

THE FLORISTS' SUPPLY HOUSE OF AMERICA

Thanksgiving Baskets

1290-6

We are in the position of a florists' barometer with regard to popular supplies. We think baskets will be largely used at Thanksgiving. The very wide oval handle baskets for big chrysanthemums and small handle baskets for pompons are likely favorites.

THE FERNERY

The first thing that every flower buyer wants at the beginning of the season. A stock of smart Fern Dishes, tastefully filled, encourages business. We have a good assortment of the best ferneries, jardinières, etc.

It is our aim to supply your every want. We ask the chance.

See our Gold Letter Special ad. on page 30.

IMMORTELLS

We Should Worry

You need not worry if Immortelles cost $1.00 per bunch. Neidinger's Original Japanese Frieze Chenille is a substitute that can be used in place of Immortelles without the substitution being noticed.

and what not, with telling effect. The decorations were a credit to J. J. Habermehl's Sons and to Philadelphia.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held November 4. Routine business was transacted.

The M. Rice Co. reports heavy orders for paper cape flowers, the largest ever received. This is due to the scarcity and the high price of immortelles. A feature of the showcase is blooming bromus delicately tinted.

Fred Sadling, who is with Edward Reid, is in the German hospital, suffering with a broken arm, the result of a fall last week.

Berger Bros. put a Kissel Kar on the street November 4.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are handling tremendous shipments from abroad this week. Many cases of immortelles were reshipped direct from the wharf to their customers.

The Century Flower Shop has put a new Ford car into commission. It is finished in yellow, the Century color, and bears the name of the proprietor on a modest plate.

Two bunches of dahlias ornamented the desk of J. Otto Thilow and George D. Clark, one on either side of the entrance to Henry A. Dreer's door. They were put there just before the killing frost at Riverton.

Henry C. Heilemann has closed his store at 5613 Germantown avenue. He has sold his lease. His stock and fixtures will be sold at auction November 6. Mr. Heilemann expects to join his father in another business.

Joseph G. Neidinger is making a specialty of beautifully prepared wreaths intended especially for florists who have been making their own. There are many styles, with oak and magnolia foliage as the groundwork, decorated with poinsettia, dianagrass, isolapis, cones, etc.

The Johnson Seed Co. reports encouraging business conditions.

Paul F. Richter is busy on catalogue work.

Paul Berkowitz spent several days in New York last week. He found that while the season has barely opened, prospects are excellent. There is already a shortage in some lines.

Godfrey Aschmann has purchased a lot at the northeast corner of Tenth and Ontario streets. Its size is 75 x 46 feet, three building lots.

Charles Henry Fox has put a handsome new car on the street. Phil.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The weather has been extremely unpleasant most of the week and business has not been any too brisk. Towards Thursday and Friday business began to improve. Flowers for Halloween are becoming a real necessity and there was quite a siege for yellow pompons and the larger varieties. However, our local growers supplied our needs in a generous way, as well as furnishing a surplus stock. There

NOTE THESE GOOD

WE MIGHT ALMOST CLAIM TO HAVE

In a canvass of a large number of the country's leading Florists and Decorators in 1911, we were surprised at the lack of practical appliances used in the great growing field of Floral Decorating. Our Perfection Line is the result.

After determining what was needed we next turned out samples which we submitted to Florists for trial and criticism. While the line met immediate general commendation, we found many points upon which we could and did improve and refine the line.

A few weeks after making the first stand we exhibited at the convention of the Society of American Florists, held in Chicago, and received the AWARD of MERIT for our line. Even this coveted recognition did not serve as a signal that Perfection has, strange to say, been little doing in funeral work during the last two weeks. Each store has more or less the appearance of a flower show. The gorgeous chrysanthemum blossoms in a mass of color give the patrons a great deal of pleasure. White Queen deserves all the praise it gets, while Polly Rose, Chrysolora, Pink Pearl, Early Snow and Pacific Supreme are other great favorites.

Roses, particularly Killarney and White Killarney, are in strong supply. There is also plenty of My Maryland, Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mrs. Shawyer, Lady Hillingdon and Richmond. Beauties are of good color and quality. Milady seems to have been off color of late, and somewhat soft. Violets are selling better now. Carnations are a little more plentiful in pink and white, but red is scarce. Gardenias and orchids are in fair supply and there is a little bouvardia. Easter lilies, callas and valley are plentiful. Cosmos is losing color and does not sell well. Artemisia in yellow, red, pink and lavender have sold nicely; many have used them for basket work. Tuberoses are nearly over. The supply of green goods is fair. Araucarias and boxwood are beginning to sell and porch boxes are being filled.

Various Notes.

Schuyler Arnold, who is with a seed house in Philadelphia, has been home sick with tonsillitis.

H. E. Bates, of the Lord & Burnham Co., reports business for the month of October as exceptionally good for this time of year. Two fairly good jobs are started, a greenhouse for Washington County Home, Arden, Pa., and two houses 30x134 for William Keene & Sons, Barnard, N. Y.

Visitors this week include W. P. Craig, of Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia; S. L. Hirschley, Castorland, N. Y., and Chas Schwake, of Schwake & Co., New York.

Rose E. Brown, of H. E. Wilson's, was initiated into the S. O. V. Ladies' Auxiliary No. 23, October 29.

The Market.

The week end was more encouraging in the cut flower wholesale market than it has been for a month of Saturdays. There was a helpful clean-up of the surplus and prices were firmer, with clear, cool weather on the side. It is generally believed that the tide has turned and that business will become more normal daily. The present week has to meet and forget the quieting effect of election day, but with a continuance of frosty temperature, the death of outdoor flowers and the return to the city of society's hosts, the good times, so long coming, are overdue.

The flood of mums is at high tide now, or nearly so. There will probably continue for two weeks an oversupply as usual, and this will hold the prices of roses and carnations down. Mums are selling at half their usual price. Excellent stock, which other years met with paying appreciation, cannot now demand half the realizations of even a year ago. There seems to be no remedy. The production is far above demand. There is no fault to find with quality; it is superb.

Violets are improving in price, quality and demand. There were none left on Saturday evening. Rhinebeck must be shipping to western points again. Valley is steady, lilies lower; $4 per hundred was the quotation as the week ended. Quality has deteriorated. Gardenias are improving in size, stem and beauty. The same may be said of carnations, though prices for these are low. Of orchids there seems to be still a great sufficiency and prices are but slightly better. Cypripediums are here, as well as sweet peas and daisies.

Roses are abundant and in wide variety. Many new ones appeal now for recognition. American Beauties are growing natural, with splendid heads and advancing prices for the selects. J. L. Mock and Killarney Brilliant are among the latest to bid for approval. The other new ones, especially Shawyer, Russell, Sunburst and Milady, are exceedingly popular. Prices last week were low, however, for everything, and they will not advance much before the mum ceases its reign.

The Market.

Business has been good for the last few weeks and the month of October has left a good record. The season of receptions for debutantes is now well started and several receptions have already been held which called for the use of a great many flowers.

The mum season being nearly at its height, many fine blooms are available and never have they brought as good prices as this year. It is no trouble at all to get $5 to $6 per dozen, retail, for average flowers. In past years $4 per dozen was considered a good, stiff price by most of the local flower buyers. Roses have shortened up, owing to a spell of dark, cloudy weather. Violets are now carried in stock by many of the retailers and meet with a ready sale. Pompon mums are also used extensively in corsage bouquets, which are worn freely so far this season. Fall weddings call for many thousands of valley each week. Cattleyas are coming more into favor locally each year, and where an occasional one was sold a few years ago many dozens are sold now. Green stock is used in immense quantities and the fine southern smilax now available is used extensively.

flower stores last week and some of them were quite cleverly executed. E. A. Fetters' window was trimmed with an abundance of cornstalks, corn, flowers, both real and artificial, and ribbon effects. In one corner was a small hut of cornstalks in which sat a realistic looking old witch; the expression on her face, which was well illuminated, was enough to cause the cold chills to run down one's back.

Breitmeyer's window had a high board fence across the background. The fence was painted pumpkin color. On this sat four black cats, their tails curled up so as to represent the figures 1913. In the foreground were many pretty baskets among a lot of straw scattered about the floor of the window.

Sullivan's had the windows in both of their stores prettily trimmed.

Walter Taepke attracted attention by a liberal use of corn and pumpkins, well arranged.

Schroeter's had an appropriately decorated table in one window. In the other window was shown an old tumbledown barn as a background, surrounded by many trees and an old fence. In the foreground were several heaps of pumpkins and cabbages and many black cats. Flying down over the roof of the barn was a well made monoplane, about seven feet long, upon which sat an old witch. The propeller of the aeroplane revolved. On the aeroplane was a small placard reading, "A Modern Witch in a Modern Flower Store."

Various Notes.

Tuesday evening, October 28, about thirty florists assembled at a banquet given in honor of B. Schroeter. Mr. Schroeter thinks pretty well of his fireside and it was only through a clever scheme of Albert Pochelon that his presence was to be had at the banquet. Toastmaster Scribner called on most of the men present for a few remarks and, if such a thing were possible, Mr. Schroeter's head would certainly have swelled some. He is one of the oldest florists in the trade locally, both in point of service and age, and it was recalled that he had given many of the younger men in the trade some pointers which had helped them in years past.

Mr. Grower:

I have had 18 years' experience in gathering forest products. Aside from Cut Ferns, we get Ginseng from the woods, and have set out large amounts in years past and now have as fine a Ginseng garden as exists under cultivation. You are the very best class to grow this paying crop. I can supply you with stratified seeds and plants, from yearlings to 3-year-olds, right from the very best garden, which is now paying larger returns from ginseng roots than any flower crop that ever was sold. Write for full particulars. E. H. HITCHCOCK, Glenwood, Mich.

E. A. Fetter's delivery car met with an accident last week which resulted in the loss of a wheel, as the driver was compelled to take to the curbstone to avoid running over a lady.

Gus. H. Taepke has been suffering for some time with an attack of pleurisy.

Ed. Beard is just recovering from what was at first thought to be typhoid fever, but which fortunately turned out differently. H. S.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

A slight drop in temperature last week proved beneficial to the florists' trade generally and there was a more even demand for flowers than in several weeks. Chrysanthemums have the call over everything and there has been a settling in prices that augurs well for the immediate future. Fancy blooms command good prices, as high as $6 per dozen being asked in some instances. The general run is from $1 to $3 per dozen, retail. Roses are plentiful and of good quality. Carnations are showing considerable improvement. One of the features of this fall is the increased number of orchids to be found in the local market and the greater readiness with which they are disposed of.

Various Notes.

Miss Florence Willard, of the Hope Greenhouses, had the decorations for the Mumford wedding, at which orchids were lavishly used.

William Hay is cutting a heavy crop of fine roses at his Oaklawn houses.

A large proportion of these are shipped to New York.

Harry Chandler, head gardener at the Moses Brown private school, is undergoing the Pasteur treatment, having been bitten by a stray dog that he was endeavoring to drive from the estate a few days ago. The animal caught Mr. Chandler by the hand, tearing it considerably.

F. Macrae & Sons are cutting a fine lot of Liliun giganteum, carnations and roses. Their houses of late mums are looking fine.

Frederick Dietz, of 23 French street, had a narrow escape a few days ago from serious injury. He was riding along Plain street in his automobile, when, to avoid a collision with another machine, he ran his car into a telephone pole. He was thrown violently to the ground, but escaped with a few cuts and bruises.

Louis J. Reuter, of Westerly, was a business visitor in New York last week.

Eric Bonevier, who had been an inmate of the Rhode Island hospital for several weeks prior to returning home a couple of weeks ago, has suffered a relapse and been returned to the institution.

Edward J. Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., and his wife are spending a few days on a fishing trip to Edgartown, Mass.

Charles Smith, of Washington, was in Boston last week, looking for novelties.

Louis D. Pierce is a candidate for membership in the Warwick town council from the village of Norwood.

The Vega Valley Orchards, Inc., is the name of a firm incorporated by Frederick W. Tillinghast, Rush Sturges and Chauncey E. Wheeler, all of Providence, to buy, sell and deal in fruits, vegetables, flowers, trees and plants. It is to be located here and is capitalized for $50,000.

PLANT RECEIPTS.

The Rotterdam steamer that arrived at New York October 27 brought a few consignments of plants, which were as follows:

Consignee.	Cases.
Langeler, H.	9
Adams Express Co.	112
Davies, Turner, & Co.	1
Kuyper, P. C., & Co.	85
Total	207

The Antwerp boat that reached New York October 28 brought a much larger number of cases, as it is from the Belgian port that the great majority of the plants are shipped. On this boat the consignments were as follows:

Consignee.	Cases.
Rölker, A., & Sons.	68
Lunham & Moore.	8
United States Exporting Co.	4
Maltus & Ware.	403
Hines, Ralph M.	89

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The nearest approach to a glut of chrysanthemums occurred last week, when it seemed impossible to clear out the large number arriving. Carnations, too, suffered a severe setback and piled up considerably. Roses feel the effects of this oversupply and are cheaper in sympathy. Valley keeps up well in price and orchids are not too plentiful. By the time these notes appear, Cattleya labiata will be in full cut and possibly there will be enough to meet the demand. The competition among handlers of greens brings prices down, to the advantage of the retailers. Maidenhair and good asparagus keep up in price and quality.

For a Show in 1915.

The publicity given to the work of the committee appointed by the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society has caused a good deal of comment here, and if the exceedingly capable members of this committee are able to live up to their promises and arrange what will be practically a continuous show during the exposition year, they will do a great work for horticulture generally. Our society has gone on patiently for years, striving in the face of opposition and neglect, but it seems that at last those who have been faithful to it are about to get recognition. Past President Payne has worked hard to interest the Chamber of Commerce and has apparently succeeded. The time is all too short to make the necessary arrangements and it is up to all to do their best and drop all differences of opinion, all working for the common good. But flamboyant newspaper articles, helpful as they are, do not mean real progress, and if we are to be ready by 1915 all have to put their shoulders to the wheel.

Theodore Payne, Jacob Dieterich, Fred Howard, Ed. Rust and Charles Winsel form the committee, and these are a pretty strong combination.

Various Notes.

Captain Grey has a commission to plant seven and one-half acres at the San Diego Panama exposition. This will be representative of what the various counties of southern California can do in the short time that will elapse between now and the opening day.

Morris Goldenson had heavy orders for funeral pieces last week. At least a dozen fine wreaths, several sprays and a fine casket cover of carnations, white roses and violets were ordered for one funeral.

The H. N. Gage Co. reports that business during October ran away ahead of that of last year. At the new place at Montebello the staff is busy potting azaleas and tulips for forcing. Orchids are in good demand here; also a yellow cosmos that is specially attractive.

Gus Swenson has been sending in specially good Silver Wedding and Bonaffon chrysanthemums, and the first Paper White narcissi were ready to cut October 25.

J. A. Philipps, of the Harvard Flower Store, Washington, D. C., has been visiting here.

In my notes on the Pasadena show no mention was made of the fine exhibits of roses put up each day by Dieterich & Turner. This was because I left before judging commenced and before all the exhibits had been staged. The roses in question were doubtless one of the greatest attractions of the show, and other growers thus had the chance to get acquainted with the newer kinds which are so well grown at the Montebello range. They were changed daily and so were always fresh and bright. Since then Mr. Turner has been putting up exhibits at all the local shows.

Howard & Smith have leased a large tract of land on the Whittier road, almost opposite the trial grounds of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., and intend to use it for roses and ornamental stock.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

We have been experiencing an alternation of warm and cold weather, which affected the retail business for the better and for the worse last week. The stock might be reported as having improved at least twenty per cent.

There are too many mums on the market to make them popular and, as is usual when there is a large stock of any flowering commodity, the growers lose their heads and, instead of standing pat, are willing to dispose of the stock at a ridiculous price. Street venders are selling chrysanthemums so cheaply at this writing that flower lovers have tired of seeing them everywhere and have specialized on roses of all kinds. Particularly meritorious are Sunburst, Aaron Ward, Mrs. Taft and American Beauties. Orchids are in good supply, and with valley and violets, were leaders in the market last week.

Carnations have longer stems and are becoming better sellers. They still stand at 50 cents a bunch, which is too high a wholesale price at this time. While we have had no rain as yet, it is surprising to see the quantity of violets that daily make their way into the flower market. The price shows no signs of dropping. They are retailing at two bunches for 25 cents and may be bought for 75 cents a dozen bunches. They lack a trifle in fragrance. A few dahlias may still be seen, but they are not up to standard. The madrona berry is a new acquisition of the week and the first of the real red holiday color in evidence. Pompon mums are new and are a welcome filler for decorative work.

The Flower Show.

The last day at the flower show proved to be perhaps the most interesting. The features for competition among florists were, first, the most artistically arranged hamper or basket, main feature chrysanthemums, and second, the most artistic arrangement in basket of cut flowers. Competitors who deserve special mention are Pelicano, Rossi & Co.; Julius Eppstein, of the California Florist, and Francis Schlötzauer, of the Francis Floral Depot. Pelicano, Rossi & Co. entered several baskets, one a wonderful creation carrying out the latest apricot shades in mums, ribbon and basket. They also had a meritorious basket of yellow roses with valley. Julius Eppstein won first prize for the best arranged basket of cut flowers. In his entry baby dahlias were arranged dexterously with Mahonia aquifolia, the first of the season. His Portola basket of yellow and red mums was a lavish entry and won much favorable comment. A basket worthy of special mention was that entered by the Francis Floral Depot and consisting mostly of colored foliage plants, crotons, dracaenas and a few sprays of Odonoglossum grande.

Various Notes.

We note with pleasure the arrival of a new florist among us, P. J. McMannis, who has taken over the Mayflower Floral Shop, at Powell and Market streets. Mr. McMannis is well known about the bay as a man of sterling business qualities and, although his experience with flowers is not extensive, we wish him success and feel assured that he will soon learn the wrinkles of the trade. Mr. McMannis' head man is Louis Cappuro, well known among florists. With his efficient service there is no doubt that the Mayflower Floral Co. will soon be one of importance in San Francisco.

Julius Eppstein, the California Florist, made an attractive window by incorporating in it the photographs of some of the prize-winners of the flower show with the trophies that he won, and featured orchids against a panel of dark green velvet. The whole scheme, although simple, was quite attractive and caused much comment.

Mr. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., reports an excellent week. This firm has been occupied extensively with Portola. They have decorated the queen's float. This was much commented upon, and it is pleasing to note that natural flowers were the main feature in our big Portola celebration. In addition to the queen's float, Mr. Rossi's firm decorated several private automobiles, prize-winners for excellent judgment and taste. Mr. Rossi is busy collecting Dendrobium Phalaenopsis to fill a order duplicating the bride's bouquet which he exhibited at the flower show. It was a wonderful creation and beyond a doubt there will be many duplications before the season is over.

The Bellevue Florist, in the Bellevue hotel, has had a good week. The business outlook is quite satisfactory and the spacious stores are a mass of artistically arranged blooms.

Donald McLaren, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., has returned from a trip to Fresno, where he attended the convention of the California Association of Nurserymen.

John Fotheringham, who has been with us for some time and who took unto himself a wife from the west, is on his way to the east, but we hope to see him with us again soon.

Patrick Orr, of the Fairmount Floral Co., is again about and actively at work. His return is much welcomed by his friends and particularly by the company.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has returned from the hospital after being laid up for over a month.

Mr. Pelicano's genial personality has made his absence from the store and from the brothers of the trade much felt. If he would work less and rest more, we think his health would improve.

The San Francisco Floral Co., of which V. Azzaro is the head, has just opened a new store in Fresno. Mr. Azzaro has made a success of the business in Stockton and we wish him continued success in his new branch.

Sievers & Co. are preparing to open their new retail establishment on Polk street. The arrival of the Sievers people on that street makes it a florists' row, as there are already five shops within four blocks. W. A. H.

TACOMA, WASH.

The Market.

The weather last week was somewhat cooler, with bright days, which had a tendency to force the chrysanthemums along, and now we are fairly in the midst of a glut of these flowers. The mums are of excellent quality; some extra fine specimens of Mrs. David Syme, Chrysolora and Sisowath have recently been noted. Carnations are of excellent quality, but the supply is far short of the demand. Home-grown violets are selling well; so are roses, but there is nothing like enough of either of these flowers to fill the demand.

Various Notes.

Several of the florists visited Henry Benthien on Sunday, October 26. A fine dining room table was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Benthien by the visitors, on behalf of the Florists' Club. The next regular meeting of the Florists' Club will be held November 20. J. L. S.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The stores are all crowded with chrysanthemums, which are moving well, and business along all lines is good. The recent fine weather has helped trade and the retailers have had their hands full. Carnations are loosening up a little, but there are not half enough for the demand so far. Roses are of good quality and are selling as fast as they are received. California violets are poor, and there is little local stock on sale. Cyclamens and a few Lorraine begonias are offered and ferns and palms are selling well.

Various Notes.

The Seattle Floral Co. received a large shipment of palms, etc., from Europe last week.

The H. B. Burdett Co. is busy unpacking araucarias, palms, azaleas, etc., received from Europe.

J. J. Bonnell is quite busy these days. He says the planting season so far is better than it has been for years and orders are larger and better than for some time.

Growers of lilies for Easter have received their bulbs, mostly in good shape. While some growers have decreased the number to be grown, others have increased, so that there will be about the usual quantity.

There was a large attendance at the special meeting of the Florists' Club Monday, October 27, called to ter discussion it was resolved to let the matter rest for the present, as there are no street peddlers working at present. John Richardson gave an elaborate exposition of the policy of the Floral Market Co. as regards trade in this city. The next meeting, the second Tuesday of November, will be interesting. T. W.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business still is moving in a rushing way. The prevailing pleasant weather is bringing the chrysanthemums into bloom almost too rapidly to be handled successfully in the lower grades. A heavy frost would be welcomed to put a quietus on outdoor stock. Roses are coming in rapidly. Maids are especially plentiful, but there is little stock that goes to waste. Carnations are increasing in quantity and improving in quality. Valley and orchids are scarce; in fact, the local market is almost depleted.

Ferns and palms are in good demand. The Boston type proves one of the best sellers.

Various Notes.

Hallowe'en business was slow, hardly justifying the making of special window displays.

C. T. Kipp, of Spokane, spent a day here en route home from a business trip to California, where he is interested in some valuable land.

R. Keil has purchased an Overland car, which facilitates delivery.

H. K. Spalding has opened a store at 353 Washington street, in the basement, with a counter on the street.

Julius Doesche received a carload of shrubs from Belgium this week.

Thomas Luke has been promoting amateur boxing bouts recently, which has been a financial success to the club, but his cherished white hope went down in defeat, which annoyed Luke considerably.

David Forbes left this week for Menlo Park, Cal., to make an exhibit in the show there for Martin & Forbes Co. Among the exhibits will be a showing of the Gorgeous carnation, which is being successfully featured by this firm.

E. W. McLellan, of San Francisco, Cal., was a recent visitor.

E. R. C.

Petaluma, Cal.—W. J. Hickey, a real estate dealer, has purchased the seed and flower business of M. Vonsen and will run it in connection with his real estate business. His nephew, Mert Stewart, will have charge of the nursery department which will be added.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE longiflorum bulbs are in and out again, most of them, except the stock that is to go into cold storage.

THE meeting of the Western Cannery Association will call a number of seedsmen and seedsmen's representatives to Chicago November 20.

THE J. Wilder Seed Co., of Cincinnati, O., has been incorporated with a capital of $10,000 by Walter C. Renaker, William J. Rahe and Walter Schmitt. The corporation is a successor to J. Wilder & Co.

A COLORED plate sent by F. C. Heine-mann, Erfurt, Germany, shows his new begonias in striking hues; also the variegated Asparagus Sprengeri, which seems sure to attract much attention from the trade in this country.

THE Treasury Department has given out a list of the merchandise in bonded warehouses at New York at the close of business the night before the new tariff law went into effect. The garden seeds were valued at $24,922. There were 31,785 bushels of peas valued at $55,205.

SOCIAL circles at Shenandoah, Ia., are all stirred up over the suit for divorce instituted by Mrs. Wilma Ratekin against J. W. Ratekin and the latter's retaliatory action against Levi Baker, Mrs. Ratekin's father, whom he purposes to sue for $35,000 damages for alienating the affection of the plaintiff's wife.

ACCORDING to reports received at Montreal, approximately 5,000,000 bulbs have been imported into British Columbia in the last few weeks. Bulb culture is making rapid strides in the Pacific province, particularly on Vancouver Island. Tulip, daffodil, narcissus and other bulbs are imported from Holland, Belgium and Japan.

THIS week's reports from the Wisconsin bouquet green districts are confusing. The weather is open and should encourage picking and weaken prices, but it is said the pickers no longer are willing to go out for the payment they once would accept and insist on prices that mean an 8-cent to 9-cent jobbing price at Chicago. Those in touch say they look for all the green needed to meet the demand at these figures.

A. CURRIE & Co., of Milwaukee, deposited several hundred dollars with a civil court there when they made a claim that they had been overcharged on a shipment from a Holland firm. When in Holland Mr. Currie made a settlement with the firm, and returning home, tried to secure the deposit, but found the attorneys for the foreign house held they had received no fees and had, therefore, a lien on the money. The judge now has the matter under advisement.

CALIFORNIA DROUGHT BROKEN.

The drought in the California seed growing section was broken November 1, when a light rain fell as far south as San Luis Obispo. Again November 3 rain fell, continuing most of the following day, with weather conditions indicating more to follow. The official weather report says the precipitation Cases of Horseshoe Brand Giganteum are just the thing for the retail florist, who wants just a few lilies every month. These neat little boxes are packed carefully in Japan with bulbs from the very best fields—bulbs from plants that have not been allowed to flower in the field. This strengthens them, so they will stand the Cold Storage strain better. Absolutely the very best obtainable. The cases contain 100 bulbs each, and prices, including storage, are as follows:

Size 7 to 9 inch,	-	-	$ 8.50 per case
Size 8 to 10 inch,	-	-	11.00 per case

CALIFORNIA PLUMOSUS SEED.

Reports from growers in the vicinity of Los Angeles seem to indicate that the new crop of Asparagus plumosus seed will be a remarkably good one, always supposing there is no setback in the way of frost. C. Morton, of the Los Angeles Flower Market, who handles the entire crop from the famous Meserve ranch at Long Beach, examined the crops recently and says the amount of flower is remarkable and it is especially forward for this time of year. There is every prospect of a bumper crop, of higher germinating power than ever. H. R. R.

DUTCH BULB ARRIVALS.

The shipments of Dutch bulbs are dwindling fast as the season now rapidly nears its end. A few consignments arrived on the Rotterdam steamer that reached New York October 27. The consignments were as follows:

The Rotterdam boat that reached New York October 30 brought a consignment of eleven cases for R. F. Lang & Co., raising the total receipts to date to 21,360.

WORLD'S RECORD SPINACH FARM.

It is reported from Austin, Tex., that last winter Del Walker raised 500 acres of spinach, and that he recently has finished planting the new crop, trebling the acreage of last year. It is the largest spinach farm in the world. Shipping the product to market will be started the middle of November, and from that time until late in the spring several carloads will be gathered and shipped each day. The net returns last year averaged about $150 per acre.

SEED BUYERS NOT PROSPEROUS.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Southern Texas Truck Growers' Association held a few days ago in San Antonio, the proposition to dissolve the organization was voted down, but such strong opposition to its continuation was manifested that the withdrawal of many of the members is practically certain. The chief reason for dissatisfaction on the part of the stockholders, who comprise the principal vegetable growers of the state, was that ruinously low prices were obtained for

Re-Orders That Count

A great part of our business is coming on re-orders. Some of the largest and shrewdest growers in the country have "come back" for their second and third lot. Among them are Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., the leading florists of the Southland. In 1911 they ordered three pkts. of seed of my famous Silver Pink Snapdragon. In 1912 they had three pkts. more, and last week came an order for 1000 plants and three pkts. of seed. What is good for the large grower is better for the smaller grower. Sow seed at once for blossoms from spring until July, which includes Memorial Day.

Price of seed, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 pkts., $2.50; 7 pkts., $5.00, by mail for cash.
Free cultural directions.

their products last season. Many of them believe that they can obtain better prices by individual marketing, or in selling their products to the representatives of commission men on the ground. The conditions are such that no increased demand for seeds can be expected for the planting season now close at hand. The business of seedsmen in the section has increased enormously of late.

INTERVIEW WITH MR. BURPEE.

When W. Atlee Burpee was in London last June he was interviewed by a representative of the Gardeners' Chronicle, which publication printed the interview with Mr. Burpee's portrait in its issue of October 11. Only a part of the talk was on seed trade subjects, but among other things Mr. Burpee is quoted as saying:

"Mr. Burpee remarked that many of the main differences between horticulture here and in America are caused by differences of climate, while custom also accounts for some. The seasons in America are much quicker. Of peas, for instance, weekly sowings are made in all large establishments, on account of the crops being over so soon. In the case of beet roots, a favorite garden vegetable in America, sowings are made every two or three weeks, the roots being pulled when little over an inch in diameter. All salad vegetables have to be treated in the same way. 'Your English tomatoes,' continued Mr. Burpee, 'are too small and seedy. In America large fruits are demanded, almost seedless, and with solid flesh, to cut up in thick slices. On the whole, the three most popular vegetables are sweet corn, Lima beans and eggplant fruits.' These latter are almost unknown in England; sliced and fried, they are delicious. 'Here, again,' added Mr. Burpee, 'the question is largely one of climate. On your side I can give you an example the other way. Your early cabbages and green gooseberries appeal to me strongly, but we cannot get them in America. The flavor of your early green cabbages is superb.'

"There is now in the states a larger and growing demand for the finer strains of flower and vegetable seeds. The market gardeners' seed is selected for prolific, sure-cropping qualities, whereas the private grower, who is prepared to take more pains with his crops, is beginning to demand a higher grade and finer quality in his produce. The large seed houses encourage this demand, and are doing all they can to induce private people to grow their own vegetables. This is all the easier, on account of the marked superiority of home-grown vegetables over those supplied by the market gardener, which often have to travel long distances before they reach the consumer.

"American growers and seedsmen are all inclined to specialize in one particular line. Mr. Burpee remarked that his own and many other large firms handle annually from fifteen to thirty tons of onion seed, and it is not uncommon to sell annually about two tons of seed of one variety of melon, or from 500 to 1,000 pounds of a popular strain of tomato. Sweet corn, of which there are at least twenty varieties, is reckoned by the bushel, and a single house will sell from 400 to 1,000 bushels a year of a popular variety. Much more seed of garden beets is sold in America than in England, but, on the other hand, much less is handled of mangels or swedes."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Central Seed & Bulb Co., Benton Harbor, Mich.—Vol. 5, No. 3, of "The Leaflet," published quarterly or "as occasion in business demands," by E. S. Thompson, the manager; sixteen pages, containing price lists of seasonable stock, with cultural directions.

G. Benard, Orleans, France.—156-page catalogue, in the French language, of general nursery stock, including roses, fruit and ornamental trees, shrubs, plants, etc.

Baker Bros. Co., Fort Worth, Tex.—A circular on Salvia Greggii, described as "a hardy, ever-blooming, red-flowering shrub, a native of the cold, arid mountains of west Texas."

P. Vos Mz., Sassenheim, Holland.—Special list of long-stalked gladioli.

Kurt Engelhardt, Leipzig, Germany.—Illustrated circular on the new dahlia, Kalif.

Perry's Hardy Plant Farm, Enfield, England.—Trade list of perennials, rock plants, delphinium ferns, shrubs, seeds, etc.

Battle Creek, Mich.—The Flower Shop, conducted by K. G. Kleckner at 179 West Main street, has been enlarged and redecorated. The interior is finished in white enamel, and the addition of mirrors, new furniture, etc., greatly improves the store. Mr. Kleckner began in this line only a year ago, but the presence of the big sanitarium two blocks away has brought him a big trade. He gets stock daily from G. Van Bochove & Bro., of Kalamazoo.

Tuxedo Park, N. Y.—At the autumn show of the Tuxedo Horticultural Society, William Brock, gardener for Richard Delafield, took the special prize for the best dinner table decoration of cut flowers and foliage, and Emil Barth, gardener for Mrs. Samuel Spencer, for the best basket of flowers arranged for effect. A group consisting of flowering Nerine undulata and Erica regerminans ovata, shown by Knight & Struck, of New York, attracted attention by its high quality as well as by its novelty.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

ST. LOUIS, MO. January 11, 1913.

Florists' Publishing Co.,
Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.20 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1912, to December 31, 1912, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.20.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

Lexington, Ky.

The Market.

The increasing supply of chrysanthemums is now having its effect on the market, which has been holding up wonderfully well hitherto, and clearances are not so easily made. Clearer skies and more seasonable weather have improved store trade, and there is no cause for dissatisfaction with present conditions, which are a decided improvement on those of a year ago. Chrysanthemums in greater variety are now seen, but old favorites like Bonnaffon and Ivory still hold first place against all newcomers. Roman Gold, Ramapo, Pacific Supreme, Nellie Pockett and Chrysolora are a few other kinds coming in now. There is a good call for pompons, singles and anemones in bunches; this branch of trade shows a good growth of late years.

Roses are getting off crop with most of the growers, and prices are holding up well. Killarney Queen continues a favorite. Some of the less scrupulous salesmen are palming off Dark Pink Killarney for it in order to get a better price. Russells are good; so are Beauties and Wards. Milady has some admirers. It opens up quickly compared with Richmond, which, if cut tight in bud, remains so for a long time. Carnations are arriving in increasing volume, but, for the mum season, are selling well. Violets are not yet coming in overabundantly. Valley is now in demand for November weddings, and lilies are selling well.

Among other flowers seen are bachelor's buttons, cosmos, Paper White narcissi, snapdragons, mignonette, forget-

Cattleyas are abundant. The average price on C. labiata is $4 per dozen.
Gardenias are as yet rather scarce.
More activity is felt in the green goods market.

Flower Market Banquet.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Boston Coöperative Flower Market was held at the Quincy House
November 1. Over 150 ladies and gentlemen were present, this being by far the largest and most enthusiastic gathering the market has held. A splendid banquet was served, and the service was prompt. A commendable feature was the absence of all intoxicants, while cigars were not allowed in the banquet hall.

At the annual meeting of the corporation John McFarland presided. The treasurer's report showed that receipts for the year and balance from previous year totaled $10,279.93. Expenses were $6,946.76, leaving a balance of $3,333.17. A dividend of ten per cent was voted to all stockholders. It was voted to set aside $300 for a trade show to be held in the Park street market next spring. It was also voted to pay W. W. Tailby, the clerk, who has hitherto given his services free, $100 for last year and a similar sum each year in the future. The following board of directors was elected: John

Montgomery, W. H. Elliott, L. E. Small, H. Shedd, C. Streiferd, Donald Carmichael and W. W. Tailby. Donald Carmichael was reelected treasurer and William W. Tailby secretary.

Following the banquet, the floor was cleared and dancing enjoyed, the musicians being Robert E. Montgomery, violinist, and Miss Winifred Fuller, pianist. The banquet committee, whose work was well done, was N. F. Comley and Robert Montgomery. Mrs. E. M. Gill, 83 years old, was one of the guests of honor. Robert E. Lassman, of the same age, was another who enjoyed the festive occasion. H. R. Comley represented the retail florists.

Various Notes.

William Jurgens, of Newport, is sending quantities of his high-grade valley to A. E. Walsh, and it sells quickly. He also has a fine lot of pompon mums.

C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., whose carnations are well known here for their high quality, has his new house, 50x200 feet, planted, and the stock is now in fine crop.

William Caraher, representing the Sutermeister Estate, Readville, is in the market with fine Bonnaffon and Shrimpton mums, and is just starting to cut his first Paper White narcissi.

Roses at the Montrose Greenhouses are looking particularly well this season. Double White and Dark Pink Killarney, Ward, Richmond, Russell and Taft are leaders. Some Milady is also being tried.

William Patterson, of Wollaston, is bringing in a fine lot of pompon mums this season. He is just starting to cut his indoor crop of bachelor's buttons.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, in addition to his big lot of carnations, has three large houses of cucumbers. One of these is now being pulled out and will be planted with single violets. He is trying William Eccles and Commodore among the new carnations.

Among visitors the last week were Thomas Knight, New York; A. Baldwin, representing C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; W. R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; F. G. Sealey, Rutherford, N. J.; C. S. Strout, Biddeford, Me.; F. C. Green, Providence, R. I.

Penn's, on Bromfield street, had in one of their windows a November bride carrying one of Penn's famous shower bouquets of valley. The settings were white chrysanthemums and palms tastefully arranged. About every other passer-by seemed to stop and examine the window.

Galvin, on Tremont street, had a fine display of cut orchids in his windows last week, in addition to gardenias, mums and valley.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, is one of the largest growers of Cosmos Lady Lenox locally. He is cutting quantities of white, yellow and pink Ivory chrysanthemums.

A. H. Knight, of Shrewsbury, is making a hit with Chrysanthemum Roman Gold. He also has a fine crop of carnations.

P. and W. O. Jahn, of East Bridge-water, are carnation specialists. This season they are having splendid success with Pink and White Enchantress, Beacon and Pink Delight.

Albert Batley, of Maynard; J. T. Gale, of Tewksbury, and J. H. Leach & Son, of North Easton, are all large shippers of Bonnaffons to the local markets now.

The Southwestern Market.

The wholesale market last week was in a splendid condition. There was a lot of good stock coming in at all the five markets and, as the retailers were quite busy, the demand cleaned up the receipts in excellent shape. Prices stiffened on the fancy and first grades on all stock. The chrysanthemum is the predominant flower, in demand, with the top price at $3 per dozen.

Some nice Appleton and Kelley were seen, also some excellent Vivian-Morel and Poehlmann. Pompons have a good demand. Fine shipments of Beauties were in last week and also of the smaller varieties, such as Killarney, Ward, Kaiserin and Maryland, the latter having exceptionally good color. Carnations are not in their prime and fancy grades are extremely scarce, with prices up to $4 per hundred. The lower grades, too, have been scarce. Violets are coming in better, but as yet are not any too plentiful, with quality not yet up to the standard. Valley is fine and plentiful. The demand for Easter lilies far exceeds the supply. Ferns are up to $1.75 per thousand. Asparagus and smilax are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Harry P. Schaad, who recently opened at the corner of Cherokee and Iowa avenue, had a lot of plants frozen, owing to the steam pipes of the new building bursting. He had to close for a week, but opened again November 1, with a fine show.

Fred H. Weber put in a busy week with high class funeral work. The horse show, too, used up a lot of first grade stock in chrysanthemums and roses.

Lillian Russell, who was at the Schubert theater last week, used a dozen of the best long fancy Beauties at every performance. Her stage manager informs us that these are used at every week stand.

Frederick Gregg, a landscape gardener at 4014 Loughborough avenue, was found dead in his room October

F. WALKER & CO., 634 Fourth Ave.

29. He died from the effects of Paris green poisoning. His only relatives live in Germany.

Fred C. Weber had the family order for the casket cover for the recent Busch funeral, which was one of the finest ever seen.

Henry Berning had several shipments of fancy American Beauties last week and says the demand cleaned them out daily.

Wm. Ossick, boss of the cut flower department of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., says they have been cleaned up on all fancy grades.

John Himmer, Jr., who has charge of John T. Milliken's place at Crescent, Mo., known as the Mosgiel Gardens, is sending a fine lot of cut chrysanthemums to this market. They have a greenhouse, 50 x 150, in the course of construction. This is to be used for Killarney roses.

Frank Windler, head of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., says that his firm had a good run on supplies last week and a brisk demand for cut stock.

It is with regret that we announce the death of William F. Holtz, one of the faithful workers of the Geo. H. Angermueller force. Mr. Holtz died October 29, after an illness of several weeks. Ten days ago he recovered and was at his post when he suffered a relapse, which caused his death. He was a widower and leaves two little girls, who will be cared for by his mother. The funeral took place November 1. Many beautiful floral pieces were sent by friends in the trade.

Secretary Wells, of the club's publicity committee, has sent out letters with enclosed postals asking the trade to cooperate in soliciting funds to be used for publicity. The responses so far have been good.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

The killing frost last week did much to relieve the market of an oversupply of unprofitable flowers, yet there remains too much stock. Roses are scarcer than they have been, but they are plentiful enough to meet all demands. Carnations are much better than they have been, but suffer in price because of the large offerings of chrysanthemums. It is said that this week will see the passing of the height of the glut of chrysanthemums. There is quite a call for valley. Northern violets are coming in and locally grown single violets are quite plentiful, although not of as good a quality as could be desired. Orchids are the only flowers that cause any anxiety in the filling of orders.

There seems to be a general complaint around town of dull business, and this applies to other lines besides flowers.

Various Notes.

Frank P. Gaul is the new manager for the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., having accepted the position made vacant by W. E. McKissick some months ago. Mr. Gaul is quite well known to some of the local trade, having had an experience covering twenty-two years in the flower business. He started in as an errand boy and doing general store work with William H. Wyatt, in Philadelphia. For fourteen years he was with H. H. Battles, of the same city,

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

CHRISTIAN REISER, who went into the nursery business with James W. Scott at Hartford, Conn., a year ago, has moved from that city to Cromwell, Conn.

MRS. WILLIAM A. PETERSON, wife of the well known nurseryman, is in St. Luke's hospital, Chicago, gaining strength nicely after a serious operation a few days ago.

THE Hollenden hotel, at Cleveland, O., will be the place of meeting of the thirty-ninth annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, June 24 to 26, 1914.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to sell nursery stock. Everybody is pushing harder and harder and the man who does not keep the pace soon finds himself falling to the rear.

THERE has been a wonderful improvement in the iris in the last few years, fully as great as in any other flower, and greater than appears to be realized by most growers of hardy plants.

ELMER NOY, who now conducts the Wide View Nursery, near South Bend, Ind., is building a greenhouse to house plants to be carried over until next year. In the spring the house will be given over to roses.

CALIFORNIA nurserymen are becoming quite concerned, to say the least, over the lack of rain. The effects of the long spell of dry weather are beginning to be noticeable, especially in the neighborhood of San Francisco.

CASH prizes amounting to $150 were offered by the Texas Nurserymen's Association for the best native grown pecans and other nuts exhibited at the meeting of the National Nut Growers' Association at Houston, Tex., November 5 to 7. Pecans in particular are becoming an important item in the nurserymen's business on the Gulf coast.

MANY nurserymen are planning to visit Washington, D. C., the week after next, when the American Pomological Society, in coöperation with the Eastern Fruit Growers' Association, the Northern Nut Growers' Association and the Society of Horticultural Science, will hold a series of meetings during fruit week, November 17 to 22, at the new National Museum.

THE Phoenix Rose Garden & Nursery Co. has been started at Phoenix, Ariz., by F. G. Sheffer and B. W. Getsinger. The nurseries are on Central avenue and the Arizona canal, and the offices at 16 West Adams street. The specialties are potted ornamentals and roses, although shade, ornamental and fruit trees will be an important part of the business as well.

THE peony root business, now drawing to an end for this season, has not been quite up to the best previous records but has, nevertheless, been ahead of what most of the wholesale dealers expected. It is noted that the business comes later each season, which really is exactly opposite to the best interests of the buyers, and this season some good orders have come out after the business usually is considered closed.

THE fifty-ninth annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society will be held at Rochester, N. Y., January 28 to 30, 1914. An unusually strong program is promised, dealing with present day problems.

IMPORTS OF NURSERY STOCK.

The Rotterdam steamer that reached New York October 27 brought the greater part of the imports of trees and shrubs last week, although the Antwerp boat that arrived the following day brought two big consignments, one of 292 cases to McHutchison & Co. and one of 427 cases to C. B. Richards & Co. The consignments on the Rotterdam boat were as follows:

Consignee.	Cases.
Behrend, F.	2
Lunham & Moore	28

The Rotterdam boat that reached New York October 30 brought a consignment of eighty-three cases of trees to P. Ouwerkerk.

SHIPPING BERRY PLANTS.

"In shipping berry plants in large quantities, there is nothing better than the double-slatted crate, which holds from 1,500 to 2,000 plants," said L. J. Farmer, in his paper on "The Proper Handling of Berry Plants," before the Portland convention.

"Slimy packages, that go to pieces en route, as well as large, heavy crates and boxes, should be avoided. The 32-quart berry crate, such as is used largely for shipping berries along the Atlantic coast, is almost an ideal package for shipping strawberry plants; all such packages must be well lined next to the wood with oiled paper. Small orders of 200 to 500 plants are best packed in, and carry better in, market baskets. The market basket must be well lined with oiled paper and the plants stood up in the basket, the roots pointing down and well interlaced with damp moss. Every bunch must be entirely surrounded with damp moss, and if there is any space not filled by the plants and moss, it must be filled up with excelsior or straw. The top of the basket must be covered with gauze or coarse burlap to protect the plants.

"Plants that are to go by mail should be tied in small bunches of thirteen plants each, and in packing, the moss should be so arranged that it will entirely envelop each and every bunch. The plants should first be done up in a bundle, with moss for packing material and oiled paper to cover the roots and moss, leaving the tops or leaves of the plants open and exposed to the air. Around this package there must be wrapped a sheet of heavy cardboard so that its edges will extend a little farther out than the leaves of the strawberry plants. This is to protect the leaves and crowns from bruising while in the mails. The whole package should then be wrapped up tightly like any other package; the tag, with address and shipping directions, should be bound to the package under the cord and not allowed to swing free, so that it can be torn off. A few holes should be punched through the outer paper to allow the steam and moisture to escape from the leaves.

"By the parcel post, from 300 to 500 plants can be sent in one package, and with a great saving of time in long-distance shipments. The man who wants plants to set out a family garden can get enough in one package for his wants. This use of the mails is going to rectify much of the trouble that has existed. The purchaser will get his plants fresh and in good shape. The express companies have had too much business in the last few years to handle it carefully and expeditiously and as a result packages have been smashed and shipments delayed. Nothing equals the United States mail service for prompt delivery, no matter what are its faults. Taking away the small packages from the express companies will compel them to handle the larger shipments in better shape.

"No matter how plants are packed, they should be properly labeled with wood labels, well and legibly printed or written with indelible pencil. If every bunch is not labeled, the different varieties must be kept apart with old sacking or waterproof paper. Common thin paper will wet and soon go to pieces, and the different varieties will be mixed up, especially if the person who opens the package is inexperienced in handling plants. If you label every bunch, you are sure of their being all right if the package is broken open en route. Crates and boxes must be made so that they will not easily split and go to pieces while they are in transit. A narrow piece of tough half-inch perhaps never without some flowers. In the fall it puts on another full crop of blossoms that continue till long after the early frosts have set in. It requires a killing freeze to check its flowering.

The color is an indescribable, lovely shade of red; it is a dark, soft cerise crimson, much the color of a well grown American Beauty rose. It has none of the harsh, glaring shades of the Salvia splendens. The beautiful color is perhaps the most attractive feature of this novelty.

It is a hard-wooded shrub. Grows three to four feet high and three to four feet wide in a compact globe, very full and neat in appearance. It is beautiful when massed in a solid bed, and is as useful as the Spiraea Van Houttei for bordering shrub beds. It is not so tall, but is as compact and graceful as the Spiraea, and in addition it is a blaze of beautiful red nearly all the season.

The very important question as to where it will grow has not been fully demonstrated, though we are fully convinced it will succeed in nearly every state of the Union. Young plants in Philadelphia, Pa., Lexington, Mass., North Abington, Mass. and Parsons, Kan., went through last winter in the open ground without protection. We have never heard of their being damaged by cold weather anywhere, but we do not know of their being exposed to anything colder than ten degrees below zero.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Plans for the coming winter were discussed at the meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, November 28. During the evening President Andrew S. Meikle presented to John Fletcher, gardener for Capt. William L. Rodgers at the training station, the cup awarded to him at the recent flower show. The committee on the winter course of lectures has secured for the first lecture J. Otto Thilow, of H. A. Dreer, Inc., who will speak on the "Canadian Rockies and Their Flora."

There was an active demand for stock during the greater part of last week. There was, however, so large a quantity of flowers on hand that the prices were hardly fair ones. Friday's and Saturday's demand cleaned up everything in white and all the smaller stock. The rose supply is fully adequate and includes fine Killarney and Richmond. The demand for Beauties is increasing, but is not yet sufficient to take up all receipts of long ones. The carnation market is tight and prices have gone up. On some days last week the receipts were short of the demand. The supply of chrysanthemums is large and includes many choice offerings. The average prices are not up to the average of other years. Lilies are not plentiful. Excellent valley and orchids are coming in and are meeting with a good call.

What every Carnation grower really needs is a true Rose-pink Carnation. The Philadelphia Pink is the one. When we say that is the ideal rose-pink Carnation in every respect (color, productiveness, size of bloom, non-splitting calyx, length of stem, etc.), we state the plain, unvarnished truth. Mr. W. Wells, the noted horticulturist of England, has 1000 "Philadelphia" on his place, and in a letter received on the 29th of October, he writes us as follows:

"They are doing extremely well. The petals push clear out of the calyx, so that they won't split. It is the prettiest pink we have, and altogether I like it the best of any pink."

But we do not want you to take our word for it. Investigate for yourself, before you place the order. We want you to see it growing. Come to Detroit at any time during the season, and see for yourself about thirty-five thousand plants—as clean, as vigorous, and as perfect as any you ever had the good fortune to have on your own place.

PHILADELPHIA is a producer superior to many and second to none. Its color is of that shade of rose-pink which sells at sight and which your average lady customer would designate as "perfectly lovely."

Place your order early to insure early delivery and remember that you reserve the right to cancel it if upon seeing the Philadelphia growing you conclude it is not up to your expectations.

NOTE:—Any Florist Club wishing sample blooms can have them by addressing a postal to the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, 38 Broadway, Detroit, Mich.

The Market.

The market was brisk enough last week to enable the wholesalers to clean up everything that was in bloom. Halloween had little effect, though it helped to dispose of some yellow mums and there were a few decorations for tables. Carnations are so scarce that it is almost impossible to get enough to fill orders. Killarney roses are in good supply, while the demand seems to keep them cleaned up. The best grades go the fastest. Beauties did not do so well last week; competition with the big mums seemed to affect them. The demand for violets was stronger than it has been for some time. The call for chrysanthemums was good; the market seems to use all of them that can be cut, and the price seems to be a great deal better than last year. The sorts that sell best are those that can be had for $3 a dozen, retail.

Various Notes.

A Florists' Club is to be organized November 7, at T. Noll's, 1109 Grand avenue. All florists in this vicinity were requested to be present and over twenty-five have promised to be there to start things going.

Samuel Murray reports that business has been good. The sale of orchids so far this year is away ahead of any preceding year. Last week he made up an especially handsome centerpiece of 125 orchids, with yellow sprays of oncidiums.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. has commenced to cut a fine lot of roses and carnations since the cool weather arrived, and is also ready to start cutting the mum crop. This firm's plant trade has been heavier this year than ever before.

Nelson Jarrett has taken out two of the hot water boilers at his greenhouses and has installed a large one which will heat the whole range.

The flower department of the Baltimore Drug Co. has been moved around the corner to 117 East Eleventh street.

E. H. Frandsen & Co. have finished repairing the greenhouses that were damaged by fire last spring. Their stock is in good shape; the roses are better than they ever before have had them.

T. Noll is receiving some exceptionally fine stock. Most of the stock that is consigned to him is grown in this vicinity. The call for florists' supplies has been heavier than he expected.

J. Austin has returned from Excelsior Springs. He is feeling much better and is able to look after business in the greenhouses again.

Henry Kusik & Co. have recently doubled the amount of their shipments of roses, carnations and mums, and the roses are the best they have had since they have been in business here.

W. J. B.

Huntsville, Ala.—A. Manson, manager of the Abbingdon Floral Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife October 19.

Charleston, S. C.—Chas. M. Newman has returned from his trip with his family to his former home in Germany. While abroad he visited several other European countries and enjoyed the tour greatly.

The Market.

The volume of business done last week would not have been so large had it not been for the All Saints' day trade. From all reports, business for this day was no better than last year's, but it was as good. Small chrysanthemums and carnations were in greatest demand, and as a result there was nowhere near enough to meet the demand. Carnations at the present time seem to be a little off crop; this, perhaps, is due to the last few weeks of dull weather. There are, however, enough at ordinary times to meet the requirements, for this is the day of the chrysanthemum and all other flowers have to take a back seat. The larger varieties of chrysanthemums are in great abundance and in some instances there is an oversupply. Roses in all varieties, even Beauties, are plentiful, but with the mum predominating in popularity, they too, in many instances, are a glut. There seem to be only a few lilies on the market, and these find ready sale in funeral work. Green goods are plentiful and the demand is fine.

Various Notes.

W. J. Engle reports an exceptionally good business during the last month on field-grown vincas. He attributes much of this good fortune to The Review, in which he advertised his stock for sale. Miss Alberta Engle returned last week from a pleasant vacation in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Heiss Co. has recently purchased ten acres of ground south of this city, on which there will be erected several large greenhouses in the near future. This company had one of the prettiest Hallowe'en windows in the city last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Phebus is having splendid success with her chrysanthemums this season, both in growing and disposing of them.

George Bartholomew reports a most satisfactory business for All Saints' day. This was Mr. Bartholomew's first All Saints' day since being in business for himself, and he is greatly satisfied with results.

All Saints' day trade was so rushing at Mrs. L. D. Johnson's that it was necessary for her to call on her mother, Mrs. Bertha Hendrichs, for assistance. Mrs. Hendrichs was formerly engaged in business at Mrs. Johnson's present location.

The Miami Floral Co. had a large wedding decoration last week; they elaborately decorated both the church and the home for the occasion.

Mrs. Pearl Dimbath, youngest sister of Mrs. B. Haschke, is in a serious condition on account of a fall which she had a week ago. For some time her recovery was despaired of, but at the present time she is improving slightly.

W. G. Matthews has his new greenhouses under roof and has been the recipient of many large donations in the way of ferns and other plants. Mr. Matthews had a heavy day of funeral work November 2, when orders for four large casket covers came in at once in addition to other work. R. A. L.

Lexington, Ill.—A. L. Lambrose is planning to make a specialty of rooted cuttings and small pot plants for the wholesale trade.

PREPARE FOR THANKSGIVING--Hit the Bull's Eye and Buy from the Firm that Protects your Interests

Now the time has arrived to stock up your store and greenhouse with the best quality stock the market produces. Every careful florist is turning over page after page of The Review and is anxious to find the ad - what their favored friend, Godfrey Aschmann, has to say. He is the fellow that has his heart in the right spot. They all can depend on him; he always has a smile and protects their interests. He doesn't sell to the trade-killing dealers, cheap Johnnies or department stores. It means what all florist stores want--Protection to the Florist Trade; retail store keepers' protection.

TESTIMONIAL

Mr. Godfrey Aschmann, 1012 W. Ontario St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sir:--Yours of the 15th inst. has been received. We beg to state that the plants arrived in very good shape. We wish to express our highest approval of your method of packing and the general quality of goods you sent us.--W. J. Robinson."

Amount of order, $159.75. Speaks for itself. These goods were shipped by fast freight from North Philadelphia Aug. 29, 1913. Three weeks en route.

NEW CROP AZALEA INDICA

has just arrived per Steamer Marquette from Ghent, Belgium, and had on board for me 75 cases of Azalea Indica of only the best selected varieties, raised for us for the last twenty years by an Azalea Specialist in Belgium. I tell you frankly that by buying your Azaleas from us you never get disappointed, either in size or variety. Our eyes are our judgment, you will receive just what you pay for; if you send us 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00 or more, you will receive your full value with no measurement quotations. We have the reputation for that; we do the right thing for everybody; and, my friends, please don't get angry when I say, cash with order, please--the profit on Azaleas is so small that we can run no risk whatever; we are not in business for fun, we cannot afford to pay duty, freight, etc. (which is from 50% to 60%).

COLUMBUS, O.

Various Notes.

The Columbus Floral Co. is cutting heavily on Killarney and White Killarney. The Mrs. Ward carnations are looking fine.

The Munk Floral Co. has some fine looking roses, among which are several benches of splendid American Beauties. Primroses, cyclamens and poinsettias are coming along in good shape.

J. H. Williams makes a specialty of growing Enchantress and White Enchantress carnations, of which he has now benched 6,000 plants. Last season he averaged about nineteen blooms a plant.

The Livingston Seed Co. has a fine lot of mums. The firm's annual show will be held about the middle of November.

Underwood Bros. have good mums in great variety. Their poinsettias look exceptionally fine.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is cutting heavily on carnations. Some fine snapdragons are being cut here at present.

Mr. Woolman has erected four large houses and is growing roses, carnations and mums, for which he finds a ready sale in this market. J. H. W.

WACO, TEX.

The Waco Floral & Nursery Co., which was started about three months ago, now has completed three large greenhouses, giving a total glass area of 14,000 square feet. At an early date a propagating house and another large greenhouse will be added to the plant. The range is located on South Twelfth street, a mile beyond the city limits. An uptown office will be opened in the new Masonic building, at Eighth and Washington streets. Here will be kept a full supply of cut flowers, plants, etc. A specialty of the firm will be landscape gardening, in connection with which a line of nursery stock will be kept.

The company is controlled by George Yard and R. Dawson. The plant is under the supervision of A. Whyte, for many years in business at Asheville, N. C., from which city Mr. Dawson also comes. The business has been begun on an elaborate scale, with all up-to-date equipment, and the firm expects shortly to have a big trade.

Missoula, Mont.—M. McDonald, of Spokane, Wash., was a recent visitor.

"Mr. A. A. Gannett,
"Dear Sir: The ferns you sent me were the best I ever saw for the price. I have written to two of my friends up the Island to tell them about the stock you are sending out."

The name of this party may be had on request. I have a large stock, about one-half being the new Whitman compacta which is a prettier fern than the old Whitman, is bushy and does not revert to the Boston frond. I guarantee every shipment to please you absolutely.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. Some of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. "I would like to get 4000 or 5000 of your pansy plants. I saw a house of pansies from your stock last winter and they were the finest I ever saw." Harry W. Stewart, Rhinebeck, N. Y. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed with reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE," gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

...NEWS NOTES...

Dallas, Tex.—Ernst Nitsche, 2717 Grand avenue, has gone out of the florists' business.

Centralia, Ill.—J. W. Ross has on display in the windows of the Sentinel's offices specimens of his best mums, one of which, a William Turner, is eight inches through and seventeen inches in diameter.

Lebanon, Pa.—C. C. Yost displayed some fine mums, dahlias and roses at his opening at his store on Eighth street, in the Rise block. His houses on North Tenth street are in good shape this fall.

Dayton, O.—The Miami Floral Co. has set two dates for its fall opening, Thursday, November 6, and Sunday, November 9, to insure as wide an attendance as possible at its store on Broadway and River road and at the greenhouses outside the city. For those who wish to visit the latter, the company provides automobiles at the street car terminus.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—By a recent deal Mrs. J. L. Dillon becomes the sole owner of the interests here left by the late J. L. Dillon. In the will three-fifths of the property was left to Mrs. Dillon and one-fifth each to his daughter, Alice, and his son, Max G. Dillon. One of the principal items is the range of fifteen greenhouses, valued at from $40,000 to $50,000. Max Dillon, who retires from the business, has not made known his plans.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

A SMALL HOUSE.

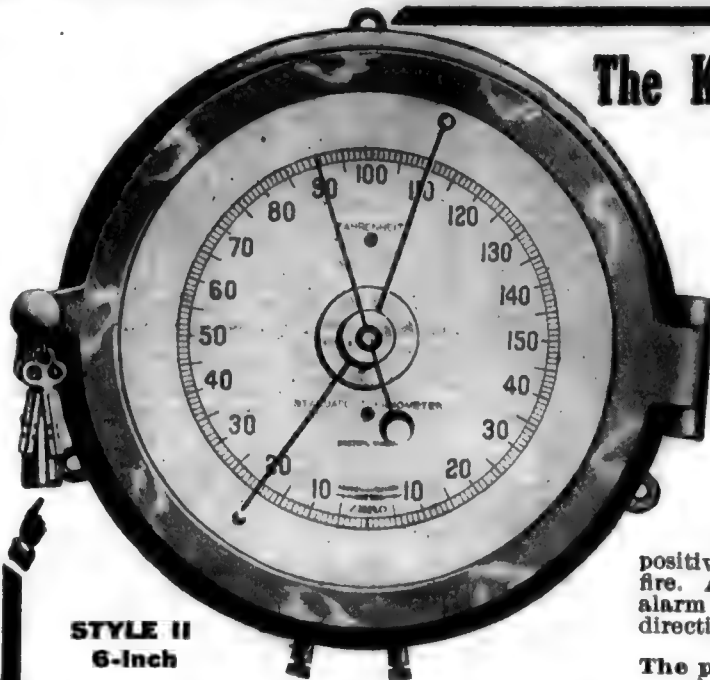

I am building a small trial house, 14 x 28, with no glass in the sides. The height is four feet at the sides and eight feet to the ridge. I have a good sized water-jacket stove that I wish to use. The taps are for 1-inch pipe, one above the other, with a distance of eight inches between them. Is there any way in which the house can be heated by using only 1-inch pipes, on account of the taps being but 1-inch? The heater will stand inside the house. The location is northern Ohio and the temperature wanted is 50 degrees.

J. C.

If the heater is large enough to take care of 200 square feet of hot water radiation, there should be no difficulty about heating the house. It will be desirable to use one 1½-inch pipe for the flow, and the main return should be of the same size. These can be connected close to the heater by means of reducers. Run the flow pipe overhead to the farther end of the house and connect there with two coils, each containing five 1-inch pipes. These should run halfway across each end, as well as along the sides. Unless the heater can be placed below the level of the walks, a generator should be used.

THE CAR SHORTAGE AGAIN.

The coal market is reported to be strong in spots, but uneven and uncertain from a general point of view. East of the Allegheny mountains and west of the Mississippi there has been only a moderate demand, with some slight difficulty in maintaining prices. In the middle west, however, the cool weather and consequent activity in buying, combined with the shortage in cars, have resulted in a firmer market, with a prospect of higher quotations. The car shortage is especially apparent in Ohio, western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, but is noticeable in nearly all the leading markets. That the lack of cars is an increasingly troublesome factor is indicated by the report that in certain districts, where consignees at first demanded flat-bottom cars, they are now thankful to get cars of any description and have "waived all specifications as to character of equipment."

"The Chicago market," says the Black Diamond, "has noted an increased demand for domestic coal and the inevitable shrinkage in the number of cars available. BOILER AT SIDE OF HOUSE.

Please give me your idea as to the best way to pipe my greenhouse, which runs east and west and is 24 x 50, with eighteen inches of glass in the sides. I want a night temperature of 55 degrees, in this Illinois climate. There are five benches. The boiler shed is at the middle of the north side of the greenhouse. Shall I use an overhead flow, extending to the east end of the house, which is the higher end?

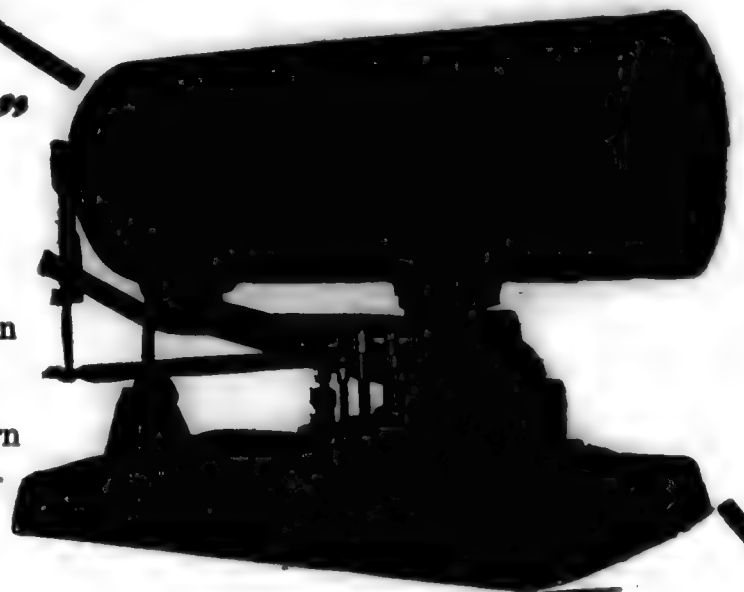

H. M. M.

The letter states that the boiler shed is at the middle of the north side of the greenhouse, but does not indicate where the doors and benches are located; hence it is difficult to give exact directions about the arrangement of the piping. If both ends of the house are exposed and there is glass in both of the side walls, the amount of glass is probably between 1,750 and 1,800 square feet, depending upon the pitch of the roof. To heat such a house to 55 degrees in Illinois, rather more than 600 square feet of radiating surface will be needed.

Provided the arrangement of the house permits it, I would suggest that a 3-inch flow pipe be carried into the house and extended to the east end, about two feet below the ridge. By means of 2-inch pipes connect the end of the flow with two coils, each containing four 2-inch pipes, which should start at the middle of the east end of the house, or on each side of the door if there is one at that point. One of these coils should run along the north side of the house as far as the boiler shed, and if there is no door in the west end of the house the other coil may be carried along the south, west and north sides of the house until the boiler shed is reached. If there is a door in the west end of the house, the coil should stop at that point and another coil should run from the boiler shed around to this door. This coil should be fed by means of a 2-inch pipe leading to the main flow pipe near where it enters the greenhouse.

To make up the full amount of radiation, eight 2-inch pipes should be placed in coils under the benches. These can be fed by means of two 2-inch pipes running to the main near the east end of the house.

The Market.

Favored by ideal weather, All Saints' day brought the same amount of business, both to wholesalers and retailers, that it did last year. The chrysanthemums were the finest in years and all claim that they ought to have brought better prices, although the stock on hand was enough to supply the demand. Chicago wholesalers furnished some big shipments of fancy mums, roses, carnations and valley, all of which were of a high standard of quality and arrived in perfect condition. All the retailers worked from early in the morning the day before until the evening of All Saints' day in a continuous rush, with increased help. On the decoration day the street cars and automobiles were filled with people of all classes, laden with bunches of flowers or designs. It was the general opinion that the cemeteries of the Crescent City never presented a more gorgeous display of flowers, especially chrysanthemums, than this year.

Various Notes.

A. Alost disposed of nearly the entire crop of 12,000 fine Robinsons and the cut of two houses of roses All Saints' day.

H. Cook had a big, fine stock of home-grown mums, most of which were disposed of by the All Saints' day business.

P. A. Chopin sold out completely. He had a fine lot of home-grown mums and a heavy shipment of choice northern mixed flowers.

C. Eble disposed of some extra choice Chicago mums, besides his regular big stock of flowers.

C. W. Eichling carried a big and select stock, not much of which was left.

P. Kaul's Robinsons were finer than ever, and with a big Chicago shipment of roses and carnations, were mostly sold.

J. A. Newsham's business at the new store as well as at the nursery was quite satisfactory. He sold most of the 10,000 Robinsons on hand.

Mrs. C. Rehm's business was as fine as last year, but she thinks the high grade of chrysanthemums produced this year should have brought better prices.

M. Scheinuk had a big and fine lot of mums and was nearly all sold out at the store and at the nursery.

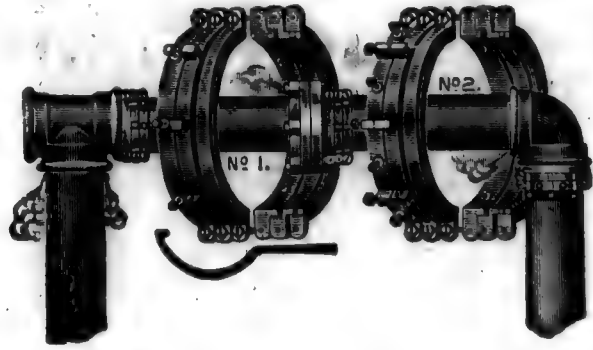

U. J. Virgin entirely sold out his heavy stock of mums, roses, carnations and valley.

F. Ziegler was well prepared and did the same good business as in other years.

Henry Kraak had more and better mums than formerly, besides a big shipment from the north, all of which were sold.

F. J. Reyes & Co. carried the same big stock of mums and other fresh flowers, and artificial and metal designs, and was well satisfied with the sales.

Speaking of Joints

We know you're familiar with our Emergency Pipe Clamps (for stopping leaks in pipe lines), but have you heard of the Climax Steam Joint Clamp?

The "Climax" stops a joint leak by forcing a strip of packing into the very source of the trouble—the threads.

Like our "Emergency" clamp, it's permanent and easily applied.

Mr. Donnelley, power superintendent of the big Commercial National Bank building, wrote a little while ago—"I had a ten inch pipe line at my old building that started to leak at a joint. I put on a Climax Clamp and it held that joint till eight years later, when all the piping in the plant was renewed. The Climax is a life saver in Emergency."

Prices net, f. o. b. Chicago, as follows:

1/2-inch	$1.13	2-inch	$2.25
3/4-inch	1.13	2 1/2-inch	2.81
1-inch	1.13	3-inch	3.38
1 1/4-inch	1.43	3 1/2-inch	3.94
1 1/2-inch	1.69	4-inch	4.50

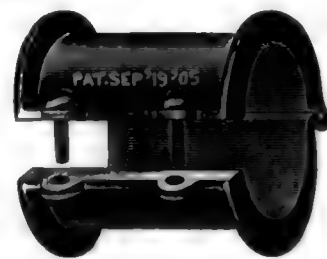

We're always glad to quote prices on larger sizes.

The "Climax" is made of brass, and furnished complete with rubber packing. Our full directions make its application easy. We will ship the day your order is received.

The Market.

The market is in better condition than it has been for several weeks. Chrysanthemums are in full blast, from the big fellows down to the little pom-pom varieties. They are splendid sellers. Roses are in excellent shape, this being especially true of American Beauties and Radiance. In yellows, Mrs. Ward seems to predominate. Carnations are scarce and are bringing a good price. Bouvardia is making its appearance, but cleans up on sight.

Various Notes.

Adam Heitz, whose greenhouses are located opposite St. Louis Catholic cemetery, cleaned up everything available for All Souls' day.

Henry Fuchs and George Schulz, located near St. Michael's Catholic cemetery, also enjoyed a big business November 2.

Anders Rasmussen, from over the Rhine, is sending some good Richmond and Radiance roses to this market.

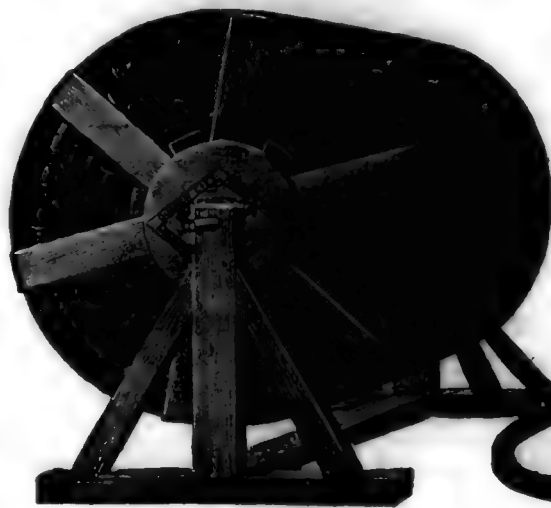

C. B. Thompson & Co., Wm. Walker, Fred Haupt, Jacob Schulz and Mrs. M. D. Reimers all had appropriate windows for Hallowe'en.

A nice display of chrysanthemums was recently noted in the windows of A. R. Baumer, in the Masonic Temple.

At a recent opening of one of the large clothing houses the writer noted a large horseshoe of Richmond roses and Mexican ivy which was shipped from New York. The flowers were all wilted and the design on unpacking was the worst looking thing I ever saw. It was an expensive design and it is hard to understand why this florist did not entrust the order to a Louisville florist and have it delivered in good shape and thereby be a credit to him as well as his customer. USE THE PEERLESS BLOWER

DESTROY MILDEW

Distributes Sulphur, Lime, Slug Shot, Grape Dust, Tobacco Dust, Paris Green or any other powdery substance. Does the work evenly, so every leaf receives its due proportion, without any being wasted. By using the Peerless, a 200-ft. greenhouse can be perfectly powdered in less than five minutes. Florists say:

"It's a great improvement over the bellows."

Ask your jobber for the Peerless or order direct from us. Price, $4.00 F. O. B. Chicago.

FALL SPRAYING

Fruit trees, ornamental trees, evergreens and all hardy stock susceptible to scale and other insects, should be thoroughly sprayed before freezing weather sets in.

SCALINE will cleanse your trees and shrubs of San Jose, Oyster Shell and other hard scale, red spider, larvae of the aphid, grub of the locust borer and other insect pests which secrete themselves in the crevices of the bark during the dormant season.

SCALINE is composed of a high grade of petroleum and the properties of the well known fungicide, FUNGINE; mixes readily without agitation; is used at a strength of one part to twenty parts water; containing no sediment, can be applied through the finest spray nozzle, and requires no drenching of the plants, but simply misting them, to get effective results.

J. S. Place, proprietor of the Dighton Nursery Co., has finished covering with glass his new even-span greenhouse, 40 x 150 feet, and is now building the foundation for the large Ideal boiler he is going to use to heat the house.

J. Harvey Briggs has one of the best fields of violets in this section, which is a pretty sight to see. He commenced last week to house the violets.

Owing to the extremely cloudy weather we have had for the last month, sand cuttings are rooting quite poorly and will not be up to the average.

George H. Walker has commenced to harvest his fields of dahlias for winter storage. His collection comprises about 500 varieties, including the latest novelties. He reports that the sale of bulbs this fall has been greater than those of previous years, and that his flowers have taken high honors at the numerous fairs he has attended throughout New England.

Charles E. Olney has finished cutting asters. He has had some of the finest asters taken to the Providence market this year. He has a fine lot of cuttings rooted for spring trade. W.

Blick the Florist opened a store in the Arcade last month. This branch is about two blocks distant from the main store in the business section. An immense number of people pass through the Arcade. While it is a little late to talk about the opening, it was a tremendous success. The store was thronged; souvenirs were given to those who called, and many good wishes were received. The new branch, as well as the main store, is under the management of Miss Blick. Phil.

No mats and boards

They eliminate the need to use mats and shutters because the air space between the two layers of glass affords better protection.

They save half the labor

But the greatest advantage is to the plants. They get all the light. They grow steadily and are stocky as well as extremely early.

Inexpensive greenhouse

The inexpensive Sunlight Double Glazed Greenhouse is 11 x 12 feet in size and may be extended to any length in multiples of three feet. The roof and sides are covered with Sunlight Sash and they may be readily removed for repairs or cleaning or for use on cold-frames or hot-beds. A wide greenhouse of the old type cannot be advantageously double-glazed. This Sunlight house is needed in every garden. It may be attached to the residence.

You owe it to your interest to get the Sunlight literature at once.

The Market.

Trade has been slack the last few weeks, on account of the general coal strike in this state. We are now in the midseason of mums, and some extremely good specimens are shown. Carnations, roses and valley are good. Violets are scarce and of poor quality. California violets are shipped in and are being sold by street venders.

Various Notes.

The growers are feeling the effect of the coal strike through the advanced price of coal.

Emil Glauber is cutting some fine Sunburst and Bulgarie roses.

Ben Boldt is cutting some fine catleyas, which are being handled by the Boldt-Lundy Flower Shop.

Miss Bessie Hortop has opened a flower store at 1005 Sixteenth street, which she calls the Flower Nook. She has the best wishes of the trade for her success.

The Denver Wholesale Florists' Co. is busy these days filling the out-of-town orders.

N. A. Benson made a flying trip to Kansas City.

J. R. Fotheringham, of the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., called on the local trade a few days ago.

Lyle Waterbury will read a paper entitled "Thrips" at the next meeting of the Colorado Florists' Club.

Our 15 cent store's flower department died a peaceful death. L.

Lake Geneva, Wis.—That lively organization, the Lake Geneva Gardeners' and Foremen's Association, will hold its ninth annual fall show at Horticultural hall November 11 and 12. Big Eastern Contractors Let Their Greenhouse Contracts to Lord and Burnham

THE contracting firm of Stone & Webster, of Boston, are credited as being one of the largest building firms in the East.

The fact that both heads of this concern gave to Lord & Burnham the contracts for building their greenhouses is an endorsement of our work that means much.

It is evidence that they look upon the constructing of greenhouses as a high order of building, requiring both much experience and a particular training.

When you come to consider building a greenhouse, consider the considerations of these big contracts.

For your further conviction, let us send you our catalogue. Or better yet, set a day for one of us to come and talk things over with you.

Alexandria, Ind.—H. A. Maxiner, who established himself in the flower business here about three years ago, has sold his plant at 109 East Van Buren street to M. E. Goode, who will continue the business. Mr. Maxiner has moved to 1128 North Broadway, Greensburg, Ind.

CYPRESS FOR STAKES AND LABELS

Small matters, of course, just as you say, Mr. Greenhouse Man and Mr. Nursery Man, but they cost money. It costs you no more to get these labels and stakes of CYPRESS, a wood that will not rot the first year, than of an ephemeral wood that never was born to last. Both labels and stakes are made of CYPRESS and you may get them if you insist on using the "Wood Eternal."

Don't let anybody "put one over on you," even in so small a matter as a tree label or a plant stake. Stand for your rights, which means to demand the best and most enduring wood for these uses.

JUST ONE TESTIMONIAL

G. E. Robbins, 4 Vanden Bosch Avenue, Auburn, N. Y., writes: "My attention was first drawn to Cypress several years ago by using some of it for dahlia stakes, along with some pine, etc., and after the pine had rotted away the Cypress showed no sign of decay. Since then I have used it for boats and canoes and it has been very satisfactory." This is a small matter, but it is worth while to listen to the experience of others.

HELP YOURSELF TO THE BOOKS

Vol. 3 is the greenhouse story. Vols. 4 and 20 are for farmers, containing plans for all sorts of farm out-buildings. There are 37 volumes in the CYPRESS Pocket Library and they are 37 free booklets. There are two new books, and they are very attractive. Vol. 36 is devoted to home carpentry, showing how to make dead easy a dozen hard jobs in house and barn building; Vol. 37 is the new Silo book, a complete treatise on the silo question. Write for one before you forget it.

STEEL FRAME SERVICE BUILDINGS

INTERIOR OF SERVICE BUILDING 25 x 100 FEET.

The Trussed Steel Frame Service House is the last word in modern construction. This building should be as well built as the greenhouse and with Moninger cambered trusses you have a structure that is easy to erect—an inexpensive building which so far outclasses the frame roof you can't afford to be without it. Let us figure on your new buildings.

There's a Grade of Battersea Brush

For Every Service—and Every Grade is Uniform

Once you have determined which grade is best suited to your own conditions, you can be sure that every time you order the grade you will get identically the same characteristics as in your first lot.

This is because practically every process in the making of Battersea Brushes is performed under laboratory conditions—records are always made of all mixtures, which can thus be duplicated exactly at any time.

Give us the essential data on your motors, and we will send a set on approval.

This Book

on

tells some of the things about brushes learned during nearly 40 years devoted to Carbon Brush manufacturing.

It isn't quite up to date as to Speer Carbon Brushes, but it is full of general information that should be of great value to any brush user. Only a few hundred copies of the book (published in 1906) are left. While they last they are free to inquirers who will write requests on their company's stationery and state their official connection with the company.
